The Capitalists Demand More "Militancy" from the A.F. of L.

By Fred Ellis

A very interesting and instructive editorial appeared in the New York World of October 8 under the caption "Where Is the A.F. of L.?" The editorial was written by J. S. Phillips of the People's Weekly, who is one of the most brilliant young American writers, and is the author of "The New Commonwealth," a very popular book.

The editorial was written in response to a letter from a union member to the A.F. of L. headquarters, who asked why the A.F. of L. was not doing anything to help the workers in their fight against the capitalist class.

"We can't do anything," replied the union official. "We have to be careful, you see. We can't do anything that might cause trouble."

The editorial pointed out that the A.F. of L. is not doing anything to help the workers because it is afraid of the capitalist class. The capitalist class is afraid of the workers, and the A.F. of L. is afraid of the capitalist class. This is a vicious circle, and it is one that needs to be broken.

The editorial called for the A.F. of L. to take a stronger stand against the capitalist class. The workers need the support of the union, and the union needs the support of the workers. The A.F. of L. cannot afford to be weak and timid.

The editorial ended by saying that the A.F. of L. must be courageous and bold. The workers need the union to fight for them, and the union needs the workers to support it.

The editorial was a powerful call to action, and it is one that all workers should consider reading. The capitalist class is a threat to the workers, and the A.F. of L. must be strong enough to fight it.
