A LETTER FROM THE USSR

VOLINE

Dear Mark,

I am writing a little about the workers in the United States. I assure you that the workers here are in the most difficult situation. Everything is a struggle for them. They have to work very hard and often live in very poor conditions. The factories are overcrowded, and the hours of work are very long. The living conditions are also very difficult, with many workers living in dirty and unhealthy working conditions.

Workers have to pay for everything, even for the hardest work. They have to pay for food, rent, utilities, and other expenses. They have little time to relax or enjoy their free time. The workweek is usually long, and overtime is common.

The factories are often unsafe, with accidents and injuries occurring frequently. The conditions are often dirty and unhealthy, with workers exposed to dust, fumes, and other hazards. The factories are often overcrowded, with workers forced to work in close proximity to one another.

I want to assure you that the workers here are fighting hard for their rights and dignity. They are organizing and demanding better conditions. They are struggling against the bosses and the system that oppresses them.

Yours sincerely,

Mark

THE NEGRO MASSES AND THE IMPERIALIST WAR

by CERIL BRIGGS

The participation of thousands of Negro troops in the First World War, especially in the United States, was one of the greatest contributions of the Negro masses to the war against imperialism. The Negro troops were not just a number in the totals of the war, but they were a significant factor in its outcome.

The Negro troops were not just a number in the totals of the war, but they were a significant factor in its outcome. They were not just a number in the totals of the war, but they were a significant factor in its outcome. They were not just a number in the totals of the war, but they were a significant factor in its outcome. They were not just a number in the totals of the war, but they were a significant factor in its outcome.

The participation of thousands of Negro troops in the First World War, especially in the United States, was one of the greatest contributions of the Negro masses to the war against imperialism. The Negro troops were not just a number in the totals of the war, but they were a significant factor in its outcome.

The Negro troops were not just a number in the totals of the war, but they were a significant factor in its outcome. They were not just a number in the totals of the war, but they were a significant factor in its outcome. They were not just a number in the totals of the war, but they were a significant factor in its outcome. They were not just a number in the totals of the war, but they were a significant factor in its outcome.

The participation of thousands of Negro troops in the First World War, especially in the United States, was one of the greatest contributions of the Negro masses to the war against imperialism. The Negro troops were not just a number in the totals of the war, but they were a significant factor in its outcome.

The Negro troops were not just a number in the totals of the war, but they were a significant factor in its outcome. They were not just a number in the totals of the war, but they were a significant factor in its outcome. They were not just a number in the totals of the war, but they were a significant factor in its outcome. They were not just a number in the totals of the war, but they were a significant factor in its outcome.

The participation of thousands of Negro troops in the First World War, especially in the United States, was one of the greatest contributions of the Negro masses to the war against imperialism. The Negro troops were not just a number in the totals of the war, but they were a significant factor in its outcome.