By William Z. Foster, Special Correspondent

Second Victory

On the afternoon of December 15th, when a contingent of men led by W. Z. Foster marched into The Socialistic, I accompanied them, as usual, so as to witness their arrest and be enabled to report any unusual features attending it. On this particular afternoon at the office and Hotel Statler, members of the Socialist party and other radical groups were meeting. During the actual arrest, I accompanied them to the jail, and took part in the student meeting following the discharge of the prisoners. I also witnessed the trial on the charge of having conducted an illegal meeting.

On the afternoon of December 15th, I accompanied the marchers into The Socialistic, where I took notes of the proceedings and of the arrests that followed. I also accompanied the marchers to the jail, where I took part in the student meeting that took place after the discharge of the prisoners. I also witnessed the trial on the charge of having conducted an illegal meeting.

By W. Z. Foster, Special Correspondent

Second Victory

On the afternoon of December 15th, when a contingent of men led by W. Z. Foster marched into The Socialistic, I accompanied them, as usual, so as to witness their arrest and be enabled to report any unusual features attending it. On this particular afternoon at the office and Hotel Statler, members of the Socialist party and other radical groups were meeting. During the actual arrest, I accompanied them to the jail, and took part in the student meeting following the discharge of the prisoners. I also witnessed the trial on the charge of having conducted an illegal meeting.

On the afternoon of December 15th, I accompanied the marchers into The Socialistic, where I took notes of the proceedings and of the arrests that followed. I also accompanied the marchers to the jail, where I took part in the student meeting that took place after the discharge of the prisoners. I also witnessed the trial on the charge of having conducted an illegal meeting.

By W. Z. Foster, Special Correspondent

Second Victory

On the afternoon of December 15th, when a contingent of men led by W. Z. Foster marched into The Socialistic, I accompanied them, as usual, so as to witness their arrest and be enabled to report any unusual features attending it. On this particular afternoon at the office and Hotel Statler, members of the Socialist party and other radical groups were meeting. During the actual arrest, I accompanied them to the jail, and took part in the student meeting following the discharge of the prisoners. I also witnessed the trial on the charge of having conducted an illegal meeting.

On the afternoon of December 15th, I accompanied the marchers into The Socialistic, where I took notes of the proceedings and of the arrests that followed. I also accompanied the marchers to the jail, where I took part in the student meeting that took place after the discharge of the prisoners. I also witnessed the trial on the charge of having conducted an illegal meeting.