THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 1113 Washington Ave., New York, N.Y.

THE DAILY WORKER

A German Communist Meeting

By William Z. Foster

Sunday, May 6, 1924

As usual, the German Communist Congress was well attended, and a large number of people were present. The Congress was held in a large hall, and the speakers were all seated on high chairs. The meeting was opened by the Chairman, who welcomed the members of the Congress and spoke of the importance of the work of the German Communist Party. The speakers then proceeded to discuss various questions, such as the workers' struggle for the eight-hour day, the need for international solidarity, and the importance of building up a strong organization in Germany.

The Socialist Party Compromisers

By Paul Surtz

We have been told by many friends that we are too harsh in our criticism of the Socialist Party. This is not the case. We are only pointing out the facts as we see them. The Socialist Party is a_scan

Our Pallman Strike Special

Yesterday's issue of the DAILY WORKER was given over to a considerable extent, to the strikers of the Pallman Corporation, Chicago. The strikers of this firm have been on strike for some time, and the conditions in the plant are as bad as ever. The workers have been forced to live on a meager diet, and the hours are long and toilsome.

Getting the News

The Seattle Union Record began to be published in 1915. It is a weekly periodical, published by the Seattle Union Record Company in Seattle, Washington. The Records have been started and edited by members of the Seattle Union Record Company, including Mr. John S. Mitchell, Mr. Charles E. Leonard, and Mr. George A. Baroff.

An Exploded Charge

When the探索ed episode of members of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, because of their membership in the Trade Union Congress, was announced by the Independent Labor News Agency in Boston, the New York Daily Worker, in its issue of May 7, 1924, gave the following account of the event:

"The members of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, because of their membership in the Trade Union Congress, were forcibly discharged by the management of the Marcus Garment Mills in New York City. The members of the union, who had been working at the Marcus Garment Mills for several years, were ordered to leave the premises on May 6, 1924, and were told that they would not be rehired. The management gave the following reasons for the discharge of the members of the union:

1. The members of the union are not members of the Trade Union Congress.
2. The members of the union are not members of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union.
3. The members of the union are not members of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, because of their membership in the Trade Union Congress.

The members of the union were given until May 7, 1924, to leave the premises. They were also warned that if they did not leave the premises, they would be arrested. The members of the union have decided to file a complaint with the National Labor Relations Board, and to take such other action as may be necessary to protect their rights.