The Liberals and March 6
Some Aspects of Unemployment Campaign

By WILL Z. FOSTER

The Liberals are shooting wildly in the dark in trying to come to grips with the crisis that the unemployed American worker faces. Their campaign, in its present phase, is characterized by a complete lack of understanding of the basic question and by an utter confusion of methods.

The Liberal leaders are throwing a lot of hot air around, but there is no indication that they have a program that can meet the needs of the unemployed masses. Their policy seems to be to try to use the situation to advance their own political aims, rather than to serve the interests of the workers.

The Liberals' campaign is based on the false assumption that the unemployed are a passive force, waiting for someone to come along and solve their problems. In reality, the unemployed are a mighty force, capable of organizing and fighting for their rights. They need a program that will give them confidence and help them to take control of their own destinies.

The Liberal leaders are not doing the job they should be doing. They are not helping the workers to understand the nature of their problems and to organize for a solution. They are not providing leadership that is strong enough to meet the challenges of the moment.

The Liberals' campaign is a total failure. It is a complete waste of time and effort. The workers need a program that is based on a clear understanding of the situation and a realistic assessment of the possibilities for change. They need a program that is strong enough to meet the challenges of the moment and to help the workers to take control of their own destinies.

Rutheberg vs. Lovestone

The Plenum of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of Germany (KPD) has decided to expel the leader of the KPD in Leipzig, Dr. Heinrich Rutheberg, from the party organization.

Rutheberg has been accused of carrying out intrigues against the party and its leaders, and of trying to undermine the revolutionary work of the KPD.

The decision of the Central Committee is based on the fact that Rutheberg has been found guilty of serious violations of party discipline. He has been found guilty of engaging in activities that are contrary to the interests of the party and that are aimed at weakening the revolutionary struggle of the working class.

The Central Committee has decided that Rutheberg should be expelled from the party organization. This decision is based on the fact that Rutheberg has not been able to show that he is capable of carrying out the revolutionary work of the party in a responsible manner.

The decision of the Central Committee is final and cannot be appealed. Rutheberg has been informed of this decision and has been given the opportunity to make a statement.

The Central Committee has also decided to take disciplinary action against other members of the party who have been found guilty of similar violations of party discipline.

Organization of Workers Defense Corps

As a Spy

The Organization of Workers Defense Corps has established a number of local units in various parts of the country. These units are engaged in the protection of meetings and the prevention of disturbances.

The units are under the control of local organizers who are chosen by the workers themselves. The organizers are elected by the workers, and their tenure of office is limited to a certain period of time.

The units are not under the control of the party organization, but they are under the guidance of local organizers who are chosen by the workers themselves. The organizers are elected by the workers, and their tenure of office is limited to a certain period of time.

A Reply to Kukll-Eungarip

The following letter was received by the Kukll-Eungarip in response to their recent attack on the Organization of Workers Defense Corps.

The letter states that the Kukll-Eungarip's criticism of the Organization of Workers Defense Corps is based on a misunderstanding of the purpose of the organization. The Organization of Workers Defense Corps is not a political organization, but a defensive organization. It is not a party organization, but a workers' organization.
