Taxpayers Pay for Dewey Race

The people of New York have been shelling out for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's campaign for the Republican Presidential nomination and will continue to pay for his election campaign.

In this week's issue of "Look" magazine, there is an article bashing Dewey for "the silent millions." Of the 28 million New Yorkers listed on the state payroll, with a combined salary of $11,000 a year, not counting the Governor's own.

A large part of the time of these men is spent and in planning for the GOP designation, which has been going on for the last three months, the time he moved from the executive offices to his private office. Virtually all of their time during the next few months will be spent on his election drive.

These men write the Governor's speeches, do his research, help make his speeches and attend to the many administrative matters.

The growth of the state payroll is:

Peter E. Lookwood, the Governor's secretary who is on the payroll of the Civil Service Association, is also the Governor's traveling companion and adviser throughout the campaign.

Ellis V. Bell, former assistant director of the Governor's office, and a New York Times, who is now a member of the Governor's staff, keeps close./ The time he enters the state payroll.

Charles D. Sibley, counsel to the Governor, who was one of Dewey's associates during his campaign for governor.

John B. Burton, director of the Budget, who advises Dewey on all questions of taxation and spending plans.

Harold Keller, whose technical job is the Director of the Department of Revenue, but who is known to be one of Dewey's closest aides, is another major official.

James C. Greely, press relations man, who spent a lot of his time during the campaign on questions concerning Dewey's campaign.

Hamlin O'Neill, Dewey's assistant secretary and Cheese who has been taken on as Dewey's campaign.

The growth of the recent campaign is indicated by the large payroll increase in the budget just before the primary election on Tuesday in my capacity to be reported to the newspapers. The Governor was to be reimbursed for his services.

The Governor's office will keep his name on the payroll.

Wendell Wilkie at the Political Crossroads

by WILLIAM E. PETERSON

What will Mr. Wilkie do politically, after the defeat of his attempt to secure the nomination for President in the primaries and the loss of his party? This is a vital question. If an effective political leader, his popular polls indicate he can be a major factor in the event. Mr. Wilkie advises his large base following as follows:

You can do both but it will require that Mr. Wilkie, long a√à mning, be transformed into a pro-

democratic, even a democratic, leader. His speeches line up the Republicans in the primaries and the Democratic base in the general election.

"No decision," he said, "can be made without the support of the Democratic forces of our country. The Dewey-Baker line has been moving towards the Democratic forces in the country. The situation is now such that the Dewey-Baker line can be made a decision to be taken by the Democratic forces in the country.

Any tendency to support the Dewey-Baker line is a dangerous one. Mr. Wilkie, I believe, is the man who can unite the Demo-

'ratic forces of our country and the Republican forces into the Democratic forces of our country. The situation is now such that the Dewey-Baker line can be made a decision to be taken by the Democratic forces in the country.
