Sister Elizabeth's First Speech

By WILLIAM § FOSTER

The following are the remarks delivered by sister Elizabeth (Rootley) made her first public speech in English. She was born in 1820 and was the founder of the Sisters of Charity. She is now 82 years old and is considered one of the most influential figures in the history of the Irish Revolution.

HEARTIEST greetings to the people of Ireland upon the occasion of the 100th anniversary of your national revolution of Aug. 19. In the west class and the main class of the American people, with their eyes on the heart, we watched with interest your struggle for liberty and independence from the hands of the cruel and tyrannical approach of the British and American allies.

The American people have always been the first to support the cause of liberty and independence, and we are proud to join with you in this historic event. The blood of patriots has been shed in the cause of freedom, and we shall ever cherish the memory of those brave men and women who gave their lives for the cause of liberty.

The VAST national revolution, which has been shaking Asia and the world for the 60th anniversary of the victory in 1812, is the greatest and most important event in the history of the world. It is a revolution that has brought about a tremendous mass movement which is freeing over half of the human race from the bonds of subjugation to the masters of the world. This great revolution of the world is one of the greatest and most important events in the history of the world.

The Buddhist, Moslem, and Christian peoples have been united in their efforts to bring about freedom and independence for their countries. The struggle continues, and we shall ever remain true to the cause of freedom and justice until victory is achieved.

The VAST national revolution, which has been shaking Asia and the world for the 60th anniversary of the victory in 1812, is the greatest and most important event in the history of the world. It is a revolution that has brought about a tremendous mass movement which is freeing over half of the human race from the bonds of subjugation to the masters of the world. This great revolution of the world is one of the greatest and most important events in the history of the world.

The Buddhist, Moslem, and Christian peoples have been united in their efforts to bring about freedom and independence for their countries. The struggle continues, and we shall ever remain true to the cause of freedom and justice until victory is achieved.

The Indonesian Liberation Revolution

By WILLIAM Z. FOSTER

A small group of men, women, and children gathered in a small room in the heart of the city of Jakarta. Their faces were filled with hope and determination. They were the leaders of the Indonesian Liberation Revolution, a revolutionary movement that had been going on for years. They were determined to bring about independence and freedom for their country.

The people of Indonesia had been fighting for their freedom for many years. The Dutch had ruled over them for over 300 years, and they were tired of being oppressed. They had been fighting for their freedom since the 1920s, and they were not going to give up. They were determined to bring about a new era of hope and freedom for their country.

The leaders of the revolution gathered in this small room to plan their next move. They knew that it would not be easy, but they were determined to see it through. They were confident that they had the support of the people, and they knew that they had the strength to overcome any obstacles.

The Indonesian Liberation Revolution was a turning point in the history of Indonesia. It was a revolution that brought about independence and freedom for the people of Indonesia. It was a revolution that showed the world that people will not give up their dreams, no matter how difficult the road may be. The Indonesian Liberation Revolution was a victory for the people, and it will be remembered for generations to come.
THE INDONESIAN REVOLUTION

(Continued on Page 5) workers and peasants of Asia are tearing away the very foundations of the reactionary and obsolete world capitalist system.

The COLONIAL revolution in Asia is in its formative stage. The true other great general trend is toward the struggle between colonization and national liberation, and especially against colonial oppression, and eventually against the war against the Japanese. The anti-Japanese forces in Asia—those who have taken the field against the Japanese, but also against capitalist states—will always have no future as capitalist lands. The struggle of the people, which is actually occurring in its European and American front, will never be re-born and will get a new base on the East Asia.

The Indonesian revolution is a great event in the history of the world revolutionary movement. It is a victory of the working class and the Soviet Union. With its world Marxist-Leninist fighters, it is a great battle run through the East Asia and the world.

At present, in Asia, the Wall street imperialists are making many claims of victories; but these are quite hollow. The Indonesian revolution is a country of monopoly capitalism and a nation of the revolution. It is a battle against imperialism and its allies in the Far East.

The greatest danger in this stage of the revolution comes from the United States, which is seeking to dominate the domestic and productive power, the economic base of the revolution, not only the colonial and semi¬ modernized countries, but also the developed capitalist nations, since there will be no future for capitalist lands.

The Indonesian revolution is a great event in the history of the world revolution.

TheCOMING Revolution in Asia.

As long as the Wall street and the United States can control the countries in the Far East, it is seeking to make the revolution into a battle for the benefit of its own interests. But when the revolution, in its formative stage, becomes stronger, the Wall street imperialists will be forced to retreat to the United States.

In all countries where the Wall street imperialists are seeking to control the revolution, the revolution is a great event.

The Indonesian revolution is a great event in the history of the world revolution.

In all countries where the Wall street imperialists are seeking to control the revolution, the revolution is a great event.

In all countries where the Wall street imperialists are seeking to control the revolution, the revolution is a great event.

In all countries where the Wall street imperialists are seeking to control the revolution, the revolution is a great event.