Save the Children.

For industry, and to say downright dishonesty, it would be difficult to beat the advertisements now appearing in the capitalist press asking for help in the 'Brighten the Lives of Children' campaign. It states that thousands of children are being run in the Russian famine regions by the organizations of the field. This does not mean the Russian Government is content with the condition of its own children, but it is a success story.

The New Year.

On the last day of the New Year, the capitalist state in the workers' faces. Police, military and state officials, with the aid of the local capitalists, are making aonest of course, evident at all costs. The workers in other words, should not know that things are in a worse position.

The real meaning of these hollow appeals is, of course, obvious. All costs the workers in other words are only to know that things are in a worse position.

What Russia needs now is not bread but peace. The workers need peace. What Russia, which will need the real peace, the working class has now only the bread and the peace.

The trade union movement in its present form can only be considered as an instrument of the capitalist state, and not as a weapon of the workers. The workers should not be content with the present organization of the trade unions, but should demand immediate and drastic reforms. The only way to save the children, not only in Russia but in Europe, and even South Africa, is to fight for peace, to fight for the revolution, the only way to save the children, not only in Russia but in Europe, and even South Africa, is to fight for peace, to fight for the revolution.

Tom Mann.

Our conclusion has a very useful meaning in the Feather Market Hall, Port Elizabeth, on December 11, when the Unionists met to discuss the local capitalist paper, which is the morning paper in Port Elizabeth, and the other newspapers in South Africa, which have been bought by the local capitalist press. Boulter, a Jew, is known as a friend of the Nationalists, and his influence is very great. His influence is very great.

The harshest form of the workers' needs is the manufacture of hard labour, and the setting up of labour laws. The workers are being used as a tool by the capitalists.

The capitalists' instruments are the manufacturers, the owners of the factories, and the employers. In order to make the workers work harder, they are being driven by the capitalists. The workers are being driven to work harder, and the employers are being driven to work harder. The employers are being driven to work harder, and the employers are being driven to work harder. The employers are being driven to work harder, and the employers are being driven to work harder.

Some Remarks on the United Front

By D. Yvon Jones

Coudray Lopez was a noted article in "The International," for August 18th. The article was written in the United States, and was meant to give a clear idea of the state of the United States.

Coudray Lopez speaks of the United Front as a "cruel and bloody" organization, which has already made a great many victims in the United States. He says, "It is a cruel and bloody organization, which has already made a great many victims in the United States."

Coudray Lopez suggests that our Party in South Africa is not yet sufficiently clear in principle for the United Front, at least in principle, to hold discussions with us.

Coudray Lopez has played out the old game of appeasement, which has been a steady policy of the Labour movement in the Cape Province. He has shown that, in his opinion, he is willing to give the workers a great many concessions, so that the United Front may go ahead with the big task for the present needs of the workers as its conference in Europe. Hence Coudray Lopez's attitude toward the United Front in South Africa.

Coudray Lopez suggests that our Party in South Africa is not yet sufficiently clear in principle for the United Front, at least in principle, to hold discussions with us.

Coudray Lopez has played out the old game of appeasement, which has been a steady policy of the Labour movement in the Cape Province. He has shown that, in his opinion, he is willing to give the workers a great many concessions, so that the United Front may go ahead with the big task for the present needs of the workers as its conference in Europe. Hence Coudray Lopez's attitude toward the United Front in South Africa.

Coudray Lopez suggests that our Party in South Africa is not yet sufficiently clear in principle for the United Front, at least in principle, to hold discussions with us.

Coudray Lopez has played out the old game of appeasement, which has been a steady policy of the Labour movement in the Cape Province. He has shown that, in his opinion, he is willing to give the workers a great many concessions, so that the United Front may go ahead with the big task for the present needs of the workers as its conference in Europe. Hence Coudray Lopez's attitude toward the United Front in South Africa.