Letters on the 20th Soviet Congress

Followings are more letters in the current discussion of American Marxists and the Soviet Union. We believe that our previous letters have been carried helping us to deepen our understanding of the 20th Congress. Nothing good can come from this kind of discussion.

Respect But Not Running

Editor, Daily Worker: Alan Max and the whole relitigious party in the Daily Worker deserve our thanks for the previoius letters that have been published, but we are expecting more. They cannot be printed in full.

More and more, Pollitt stressed, Stalin based himself on the theory that the guarantees of the workers in the workers' struggle within the Soviet State, and ensured the stability of the party.
