Today, yoo, the Canadian working class which boast outstanding militant tradition's stands in the frontine at the efforts of the Canadian people, against the bourgeoisis imperialism and the reactionary circles. It is resolutely opposing the term of the Canadian people, against the bourgeoisis progressive and the reaction of the stand registry of the working people, against the violation of the natural rights of the working people, against the violation of the natural rights of the working people, against the strategies of readom, people's democrary and socialism. The entire world capitalism and the structure of the deadence and decay, It is growing weak and latis contradictions and has put the revolution on the order of the day. To promote the resolution that uses of the liberation of the peoples and the progress of mankind, it is absolutely recessary to wage a merciless struggle against all these forces of reaction and retrogression. In the present day conditions, it is of viall importance to adopt a principled stand and conduct an uncompromising struggle against the two imperialist superpowers, the United States of America and the soviet Union, which, as Comrade Enver Hoxha points out, constituer the greatest force in defence of the capitalist operpowers and exploiting system, the main bulwarks of world reaction, near the open tangerous memics of the revolution.

The danger ous activity of the two superpowers against the revolution, the freedom of the peoples, socialism and peace has been added to by a new threatening and very dangerous factor — the anti-Marxist, counter-revolutionary, expansionist, aggressive and warlike policy of Chinese social-imperialism for world domination. Speech of the Representative of the Revolutionary Communist Party of Chile to the Sixth Consultative Conference of CPC(M-L)

To begin, I would like to extend warm fraternal greetings from the Revolutionary Communist Party of Chile. From the barricades of the anti-facsist struggle and in the spirit of protearian internationalism, the Revolutionary Communist Party of Chile wishes you the best successes in your Sixth Consultative Conference.

Conference. Today, the situation in Chile demands greater efforts from our Party so that it can place itself at the head of the mass struggle and lead the revolt against the distantship on the source internal to distant the structure of the source of the source is opposition and it faces, since a certain time, the increasingly intense struggle of the masses. In the last few weeks, here have been new demonstrations in the streets of Santiago and in open defiance of repression. Amongst our people, there exists a spirit which the Party must correctly channel, by transforming it into organization and struggle of the masses and by fighting the dictatorship and isolating revisionism. Our Party is making serious efforts to lead this anti-fascist struggle, because we are clear that if the struggle is not led by the proletariat through its Party, it will be led by one or the other section of the bourgeoisie. This would lead the present situation to a false conclusion by simply changing the appearance of the regime while at the same time, maintaining its reactionary and anti-people

This is why, in the heat of struggle against the dictatorship, our Party launched a campaign to strengthen the Revolutionary Communist Party of Chile, on all fronts. This campaign bears the

We see the development of our F particularly in the working class, as being closely linked with development of the mass struggle. We wish to thank once again the fraternal Communist Party of Canada (Marxist-Leninist) for having invited us to participate alongisde with other fraternal parties in the Sixth Consultative Conference. The mere fact that we are meeting in order to exchange experiences-amongsy various fraternal paties contributes to the unity of the International Communist Movement. Chinese revisionism has repeatedly tried to boycon the unity of the International Communist Movement by acting as a mother par-ty, by redognizing more than one Marxist-Leninist party in every country, by boyconting multilateral meetings, etc: But, since the onset of the struggle against Chinese revisionish, the International Communist Movement has become stronger and had developed its

We believe that a thoroughgoing analysis as to the causes of the friumph of revisionism in the vast majority of the old communist parties in the world, is of fundamental importance to the development of the revolutionary struggle on the world scale. We must seriously develop this analysis, put the emphass on that which unites us, that is, Marrisi-Lennist principles. Contacts, This conference, which is so important for developing the unity of the Marxist-Lennist movement, also is dealing with the burning issues facing the revolutionary movement. Contractes, I would like to speak on the basic principles of Numerical development.

Contrades, I would like to speak on the basic principles of Marxism-leninism. They are: 1. in order for socialism to come into being definite objective conditions are necessary. In particular, a certain level of development of the productive forces, 2. the destruction of capitalism and the-building of socialism does not take place spontaneously, but is the result of the action of proletatians led by their Party: 3. the superstructure of bourgeois society, the rule of the bourgeoise, can be destroyed only with revolutionary violence. These basic principles are formidable ideological weapons for the proletariat. The bourgeoise has used every means to take away these weapons.

The boungeoistic has used every means to take away the evisionic of the Khruyhchovite-type denies revolution; in recent years able a different revisionism has come upon the stage and is no less dangerous; it denies the basic principle that the objective contradictions of bourgeois society are the necessary preliminary condition for revolution, a revolution that can only be protectrat. Comrades, tam impressed that this conference has begun with an examination of the objective conditions and has clearly esposed the evelopment of capitalist concentration in the dialectical movement of the economy is necessary for the survival of capitalism, but is at the same time the condition for its demise. I am impressed that yesterday and today you deall with the objective conditions and that tomorrow the topic will be the subjective conditions and that tomorrow the topic will be the subjective conditions and that period take (Marsist-Leminst) is the result of the

Our delegation was then faced with the provocations of -certain Chinese leaders, such as Chen Piao, who attacked the light and the revolutionary activity of Stalin and attacked the light liternational. But we were perplexed because some of the Chinese leaders gave different positions. In 1975, another delegation of our Party was pressured to adopt not only the theory of "three workds", but also to abandon the struggle against imperialism. We were told that we should support NATO and the European Common Market and they told us that American military bases in Italy were for protection of our independence from the danger of Soviet social-imperialism. Our delegation firmly relused their pressure. For example, the struggle especially against the Chinese re-visionists on an international plane and the exposure of their anti-leminist counter-revolutionary features have given great impetus to the revolutionary movement in Britain and have drawn clear lines of ation between the genuine Marxist-Leninists apportunism, for years, there have been a number of different apportunist groups posing themselves as the so-called "Marrist-learnists" that have been spreading much confusion, causing much disruption in the communist and workers' movement and have been doing their utmost to attern to hamper the work of building the genuine Marrist-Leninist Party. As the revolutionary viruggle internationally and nationally has matured, and as the viruggle to defend the purity of Marrism-Leninism and to deepen and broaden the struggle against revisionism has advanced, so the "Marrist-Leninist" mask of these opportunists has been ripped wave to reveal their true colours, to reveal their open modern revisionism. For example, for a number of years, there lurked in their wheal their trevisionist movement many recours who usheld that so valued anti-revisionist movement many groups who upheld that the time was not ripe to form the Party, who refused to unite to carry out this most decisive task and said that it was necessary instead to build many "pre-party collectives". They stated that the time was not ripe to engage in and develop revolutionary action to take revolutionary ideas to the people, but instead it was necessary to read books and do so-called theoretical work. It was a conclusive recommonary networks on the people, our instead it was necessary to regulate books and do so-called theoretical work. It was a conclusive exposure of the revisionist nature of these groups to the revolutionary forces in Britain, to see all of these characters rush forward in the 1976 period to openly drop their "Marxist-Lennist" usive and to a man, all of these "pre-party collectives" adopt the reactionary "three worlds" theory as their guiding ideology. More recently, the situation in the Marxist-Lennist movement in Britain has been further clarified, as an old neo-revisionist, economis thend, calling ided Marxist-Lennist movement in Britain has been further clarified, as an old neo-revisionist, economis Marxist "Mae Zedong Thought" and to label the revolutionary forces that justly oppose it as "Bukharinie Western intelecuals". The vituation in Britain is, as the situation throughout the world, characterized by intensifying class struggle between the proletariat and the bourgeosite. The British monopoly capitalist system and class are in the throes of an ever deepening economic, political and all-round crists. The oncer imperial empire upon which the sun was never to set has now one of the weakest (conomics in Europe. Not only has the British humonopol capitalist kennomity been seriously affected by the crisis huting the entire imperialism world, but its crisis has also been made even more acute as a result of the relative and inevitable decline of British capitalism and imperialism in relation to other imperialist and capitalist powers. No matter what government has been in power, no matter what scheme it has adopted to so-culted solve the crisis, has continued to worsen and deepen, any temporary uplift leading only to a more serious vituation in the economy. This is precisely, as Marx and Lenin explained. that the crises of capitalism are inevitable and insoluble under the capitalis system. the capitalist system.

In the face of this crisis, the monopoly bourgeoisie and its overnments, in order to maintain and in order to increase their koverments, in order to maintain and in order to increase their uperportions, are making the workers and other oppressed people pay for the crisis. They are attempting in an all-round way to increase the rate of exploitation of the working class. Straight wage cuts have been forced onto the working, class year after year through severe wage restraint policies in the face of soaring inflation, that has caused prices to double in the last fouryear. This ways the non-memory they cause the government has attempted to restrict wage rises to 5 nt in the face of 10-12 percent inflation. Increasing numbers of

Furthermore, as part of this process, the reactionary bourgeoisie is fostering, protecting and promoting the development of a mass nazi movement. Carrying out the most rabid fascist and racist propaganda, carrying carrying out the most radio tacks and radio polyagamout carrying out para-military training, carrying out numerous racist and fast is attacks on the working people, including murder, the nazis ar openly protected in their activities by the police and other state openy protected in their activities by the point and software agencies. This whole development of fasciviti salso being prepared by the entire reactionary ideology of the British bourgeoise. Its militarism, its rabid great-power chauvinism, its glorification of the monarchy, its basic racis and colonialist ideology, its glorification of Interactly its basic last faits commands to compare the product of the so-called British nation, etc., all form an important ideological justification and basis for the development of fascism in the country. This ideology is upheld and promoted by all sections of the bourgeoiste; it is used by the labour aristocrats, for instance, to justify their attempts to force the workers to pay for the crisis. The

Also, with the other European monopoly capitalists and the U.S. Imperialists, the British bourgeoide is gained to the support of the soviet social monopoly capitalists against the curporar proteinant, against the world's pecelle and as part of the contention against the Soviet social-imperialism and their alliances. In the face of these schemes to make the working class and in their allist of the observers on the interflations and their alliances to the period of the soviet social-imperialism and their alliances in the face of these schemes to make the working class and people. In the course of these struggles against the class enemy and against opportunism, the Marxist-Leninist centre was stage by stage against opportunism, the Marsisi - Leninst center was stage by stage strengthemed, and by 1972, the political, ideological, and organizational conditions had been created to announce the historic formation of the Marsisi-Leninsit Party in England, the Communist Party of England (Marsisi-Leninsit), for many years, it has been the line of our Party that there has to be one Party for the entire British working class, that the revolution in Britian was not going to succeed by organizing on national lines on the built entire Brilish working class, that the revolution in Britain was not going to succeed by organizing on national lines, on the basis of nationality. Over these years, CPE(M-L) and its Central Committee developed the necessary internal and external conditions to bring this situation about, and at its recent Third Plenum, the Centain Committee decided that the time was now right or tename the Party, the Revolutionary Communist Party of Britain (Marxist-Leninst).

The history of the birth and growth of our Party has been a history of the most concerted struggle to defend the principles of Marxism-Leninism and a most concerted struggle to fight and defeat all form of revisionism. The Party has withs od numerous attacks from th reactionary state, numerous attempts by the opportunists to dis the work of the Marxist-Leninists, and nume us atte ots by so-called genuine anti-revisionists to disrupt the work of re-building the Party, RCPB(M-L) is the steeled Marxist-Leninist Party of the British proletariat.

of the British profestavia. In its struggle to advance the revolutionary movement in Britain, the Party has to wage, at every stage of its history, a most concerted struggle in the working class movement, against one particular type of opportunism, which has been trade unionism and economismin various forms. The centre of this tracherous programme is the social democrats and the trade union bigwigs, who from an early stage in the history of the working class became the chief representatives of the bourgeoisie in the working class movement, converting the trade union from instruments of militant defence of the working class against the worker, doing their utimost to resist the injection of Marsism, to suppress the revolutionary struggles of the workers, confine tiqm within the walk of reformism, and to maintain the rule, the system and the superprofils of the capitaliss. This line has had considerable influence historically in the working class movement and still has today. One of the important reasons to apport to this stelf-same tracherous programme by a host of opportuniss including the modern Khuskhchwier revisioniss, the trotskyttes and the two-revisioniss, shamelersky calling The evence of the opportunis thesis of these revisionists is: 1. Gorifying the bourgeois trade union and trying to decrive workers that their struggles should always be waged in the contines of the trade union expective, in other works that it workers' struggles should be limited to bourgeois policics, to struggling merely for one or two reforms under the capitalist system. In its struggle to advance the revolutionary movement in Britain.

Reducing the workers' struggle to making the trade union struggle merely more militant or changing one or two of the labour aristocrast, etc., under the justification that by this inself or by renaming these struggles with resolutionary sounding phrases, the workers will gain revolutionary contclourness.
 Stating that politics should not be brought into this economic struggle, or that politics or political struggle is a diversion from the injection of revolutionary politics into the worker's struggles, while contain struggle and under this guite attempting to stop the injection of revolutionary politics into the worker's struggles.
 Opposition to theory, especially Marsis-Lennist theory under the justification that the worker's on one ed or want such a thing, or that it will "emerge" spontaneously in the course of struggle.

struggle. 5. Stating that the so-called communist or proletarian party should be reduced to a coordinating centre whose main activity centres around coordinating various spontaneous struggles in the country. 6. Stating that at all times workers' struggles should be limited and restricted for fear of "rocking the Labour Party boat", "causing the further decline of Britain", or "antagonizing the (so-called) the further decline of Britian", or "antagonizing the two-cancer "chi." The Party has also to wage an incessant struggle against another, although less significant, opportunist line, that contents itself with having a so-called "correct" theory and which reduces itself to giving general abstract calls for the "real" struggle for revolution and socialism from the sidelines of the working class movement. These opportunists never develop concrete programmes, concrete plans of revolutionary actions to ensure that, stage by stage, the working class is won awe/ from the influence of social democracy and crossionism to Maxim-teninism and the revolutionary road, treacherously stating that so-callent Maxist-teninists hould not "contaminate" themselves in reformist struggles. The effect of this line and programme is the same as that of the neo-revisionism of the bourgeois trade unions and under the way of bourgeois trade union politics.

Party, the RCPB(M-L), upholds the absolute necessity of Ou bringing about the fusion of socialism and the working class movement. Its programme, in order to stage by stage advance the revolutionary movement in Britain, is to constantly and at all times pay the most serious attention to further bokhevizing the Party, co-further build and extend the influence of the Party, copecially in the heart of the working class. To extend the struggle to delend the purplet Maratam-tentiating to extend the struggle to delend the purplet Maratam-tentiating to extend the struggle to delend the purplet Maratam-tentiating to develop the provide or to commens of evolutionary actional to a develop the provide or to commens of which the revolutionary taken prints the working class: to combat the influence of opportunism of all hues; to arm the working class with the revolutionary taken points the working class paints the influence of opportunism of all hues; to arm the working class imponpoly capital on a revolutionary basis.
