On the path of armed insurrection popular

The principle of armed struggle for the seizure of power is a universal principle of the revolutionary way. This principle is the concrete result from the analysis of the question of the relationship between people and state. The armed wing of the state is against the people when the state is in the hands of a minority class.

The armed wing of the bourgeoisie has repeatedly attacked the people, railing against any protest against any expression of the popular will of the majority.

The electoral path, indicated by the reformists, not only hides the fact that the majority people can not express its will in a unitary form electoral indirect and abstract, but also hides the fact that every little suited to the election result is annulled by the pressure regime violent armed state.

The armed struggle of the popular masses is made necessary by the bourgeoisie itself, which is opposite the popular struggle contrary to the reaction with the strengthening of the armed and with the financing of teams fascist armies. The slightest desire of the people will finally get satisfaction only by breaking the armed resistance of the bourgeoisie by armed force of the people.

It is about giving life to the armed struggle when this corresponds to the consciousness of the majority of the toiling masses. This means that the armed struggle is distinguished by its forms according to the reports that you are among the people and the bourgeois state in the various countries.

In a country of developed capitalism, whether parliamentary or social-fascist and fascist regime, up to the time of the revolutionary crisis generalized, mediation policy prevails over the armed repression, and then the people will see the need for the armed struggle only in time of crisis revolutionary. For this reason, in these countries the armed struggle is in the process culminating in the revolutionary struggle, taking the form of popular uprising.

Thus, in Italy, the armed struggle it is possible and necessary in the decisive battle, in which the mass struggles have turned into power struggles and the middle class faces with armed repression. This means that the path of armed struggle is the way to Italy proper armament insurrection of the masses in the climax of the struggle for political power. The action of the Party will be adequate to the task of driving on this road the masses.
