Since early September, the U.S. imperialism, through its bellicose postures and belligerent words, has been hurling hysterically about a "Soviet Brigade in Cuba" to the point where the press has been forced to cover it in response to the existence of this brigade. But in truth, the real danger was viewed as a challenge against the revolutionary liberation movement in the Americas and the Caribbean, rather than an attack on U.S. imperialism itself. The Cold War rhetoric is designed to deflect attention from the genuine threats to world peace and social justice.

The Soviet brigade in Cuba is a symbol of the revolutionary forces in the Americas and the Caribbean. It is a manifestation of the people's struggle for freedom and self-determination. The U.S. imperialism views this as a threat to its global hegemony and seeks to contain it through propaganda and military pressure.

The situation is critical, and we must support the people of Cuba in their struggle against U.S. imperialism. We must work to build a world wide anti-imperialist front to defend the revolutionary forces in the Americas and the Caribbean. We must resist U.S. imperialism's aggression and support the people's revolution in Cuba.
