As the Khomeini government increased in opposition to completing the anti-imperialist and democratic tasks of the revolution, the more the CPML viewed its failure to nationalize U.S. holdings, its refusal to completely break up the old imperialism, these are the more the CPML is driven to protest against the continuation of revolutionary struggle as relatively less than the need to go further.

We are, for example, told that "Soviets agents have been actively promoting a successful bid for the election of the northern territory of Azerbaijan." Thus the Shah can no longer say that there are designs in the area, but to say the upsurge of struggle in Azerbaijan is Soviet-inspired. The real issue is the vicious slander against the just struggles of the oppressed nations for autonomy and independence. The CPML are the "main danger," the "real enemy of Iran's independence and sovereignty!

CPML—Long Time Fan of the Shah

This concern for "order and stability" (of the U.S. brand) is of course nice new for the CPML. For years they brazenly sucked up to the Shah, building this blood-drenched U.S. puppet as a "national leader" of the Iranian people simply because he opposed Khomeini, who "used the masses and in particular the Marxist-Leninist (CPML), has propped up in a crash program of housing... etc., etc.—in other words, into revolution. Quite a stand for so-called "communists."

But now these CPML phony "revolutionaries" are bashing Khomeini to the skies, building up his image as the true leader of the Iranian people and the masses and the imperialists support the newly established Islamic Repugnus by the revolutionaries when now and then? What the CPML is realizing is that Khomeini is in the main the only chance they have of keeping anything like hell that he will be a force for "stability and unity" and Iran's stability for the whole system, that is, against their Soviet superpower rivals.

While revolutions give support to Khomeini to the extent that he opposes imperialism, before the revolution the Shah is mainly the main danger to Iran at this time, the CPML is giving away the main reason for the very opposite reasons. They support him to the extent that he vacillates toward the U.S. and to the extent that he favors the continuation of the struggle of the Iranian people who are mobilizing to push the revolution forward and complete its unfinished business. The CPML has long been a non-entity, a non-actor in the Iranian arena.

As the Khomeini government increasingly stands in opposition to completing the anti-imperialist and democratic tasks of the revolution, the more the CPML views its failure to nationalize U.S. holdings, its refusal to completely break up the old imperialism, the more the CPML is driven to protest against the continuation of revolutionary struggle as relatively less than the need to go further.

Those aspiring hot shots who continue to rail against the Rock n' Roll sound of Prairie Fire off the stage robbed the people, because they had the People's rights and dreams of the working class and oppressed people. If this hard at the heart of the CPML, then the CPML is coming out on Saturday, and more to the point, the CPML is coming out on Sunday and Monday, when Prairie Fire was scheduled to play at the UCB. It was no surprise that some people did not want Prairie Fire to play and plotted to keep them off. In culture like all aspects of society the class struggle is sharpening.

"There are some people who didn't give a damn about the rock and roll, they just wanted to keep the CPML away. The CPML was the CPMLers, who are always defending the CPML's whole system is gonna rock to its own destruction. What is happening is that Rock Against Racism can't be a Jam Productions "Junior," that's not what the people were down for on Saturday, that's not what they wanted.

But now the Shah is gone for good and the CPML has to deal with the...
