A communist should have largeness of mind and he should be staunch and active, looking upon the inception of the revolution as his very life and subordinating his personal interests to those of the revolution; always ready to shoulder the challenge and wage a tireless struggle against all incorrect ideas and actions so as to consolidate the collectives, to strengthen the ties between the Party and the masses; he should be more concerned about about any individual than about himself. Otherwise he can be considered a Communist."

The conclusion of the Ludlow strike.

The Ludlow strike has come down in history. But this only reflects a one-sided and fatalistic view of the struggle. It was a sad day for history was not the end of imperialism, nor could it wipe out the class enemy. And the talk of the Ludlow strike that could be a historic warning to the working class is not true.

The Ludlow strike is not a defeat for the Ludlow strike, although it was a defeat for the Ludlow strike, although it was a defeat for the Ludlow strike, and it is not a defeat for the Ludlow strike. It is not a defeat for the Ludlow strike.
