PRSC-From Conciliation to Outright Surrender

The following is an open letter to the Press from Lenine-Temistocles, an independent Puerto Rican Solidarity Committee (PRSC), which participates in the Cuban solidarity movement.

The PRSC has taken a stand in support of the U.N. Decolonization Committee's resolution of 1968, which recognizes the right of self-determination of the Puerto Rican people. The resolution was adopted by the Committee on 23 September 1968, with 56 votes in favor, 3 against, and 30 abstentions.

Further, it is necessary to understand the political character of the U.S.S.R.'s role in the economic reconstruction of Latin America. In its efforts to modernize and industrialize the region, the U.S.S.R. is supporting the independence of the Latin American countries. It is clear from its role in the United Nations that the Soviet Union is opposing any moves by Latin American countries to gain greater economic self-reliance through the regulation of their raw materials. The U.S.S.R. has opposed the creation of all the major anti-latin coalitions such as CELAC and the Council of Mutual Economic Assistance (CMEA). It is only in these situations that the Soviet Union has called for the "liberation" of Latin American countries from U.S. influence. The call of many Latin American countries for an expansion of their economic independence is a clear indication of the desire to regulate their own economy.

In its dealings in Latin America, the U.S.S.R. has revealed its true intentions through the revolution in Cuba. Since the revolution in Cuba, it has adopted a more direct role in the political affairs of the region. The U.S.S.R. has also taken active steps to support the independence movements in Latin America, such as the Cuban revolution. It has been a key player in the development of the revolutionary movements in the region, providing economic and military aid to the various revolutionaries. The U.S.S.R. has also been a strong supporter of the anti-imperialist movements in Latin America, including the revolutionary movements in Nicaragua, Bolivia, and Chile.

The U.N. Resolution

The PRSC has taken a stand in support of the U.N. Decolonization Committee's resolution of 1968, which recognizes the right of self-determination of the Puerto Rican people. The resolution was adopted by the Committee on 23 September 1968, with 56 votes in favor, 3 against, and 30 abstentions.

The resolution also calls for the withdrawal of all U.S. forces from Puerto Rico and the recognition of Puerto Rico's right to self-determination. The resolution was adopted by the General Assembly of the United Nations on 13 December 1968, with 56 votes in favor, 3 against, and 30 abstentions.

The resolution has been supported by a number of countries, including Cuba, Nicaragua, Bolivia, and Chile. It has also been supported by a number of non-governmental organizations, including the International Solidarity Movement for Puerto Rico (SIMPR). The resolution has also been endorsed by the United Nations Special Committee on Decolonization, which has called for the withdrawal of all U.S. forces from Puerto Rico and the recognition of Puerto Rico's right to self-determination.

The resolution has been opposed by the United States, which has called it an "unjustified challenge" to its sovereignty in Puerto Rico. The U.S. government has also called for the withdrawal of all U.S. forces from Puerto Rico and the recognition of Puerto Rico's right to self-determination.

The Case of Federico Chirino-Tallo,

Federico Chirino-Tallo is a member of the PRSC and was imprisoned in Puerto Rico in 1973. He was sentenced to 25 years in prison for his role in the PRSC. Chirino-Tallo was released from prison in 1980 after serving 9 years of his sentence. Since his release, he has become a prominent figure in the Puerto Rican independence movement, and has been actively involved in the struggle for Puerto Rican independence.

The July 4th Coalition

The July 4th Coalition is a group of Puerto Rican activists who have been active in the struggle for Puerto Rican independence for many years. The coalition was formed in 1973, and has been involved in a number of key events in the Puerto Rican independence movement, including the 1973 PRSC-Concepcion conference and the 1980 4th of July demonstrations in New York City.
