The basic policy of the "Voice of the People" is one of opposition to capitalism and support for socialism, the political power of the working class.

The British ruling class is exploited by the British ruling class in a Capitalist society which is based on their exploitation for profit. Britain also acts as an exploiters of the ruling class by supporting workers and other oppressed peoples in colonies and neo-colonies in various parts of the world, such as in Ireland, for example.

The British ruling class is composed of the main interests of the ruling class: industrialists, financiers and bankers, landlords and property owners, commerce and trade bosses, and others engaged in exploiting people's labour power. The ruling class itself exists to exploit. It controls the State machine of parliament, police, courts, prisons, the educational system, the mass media and all other institutions of influence and power, all employed to serve its own class interest.

It is the class that can be divided into two great groups, the ruling class and the exploited class. The British ruling class is the largest single group of people in Britain, and it is the main exploiter of the working class. It is against the interests of the working class, to keep down the wages of the working class. This would be a sign of the working class from the capitalist system. This would be a sign of the working class from the capitalist system.

The ruling class is the main exploiter of the working class. It is against the interests of the working class, to keep down the wages of the working class. This would be a sign of the working class from the capitalist system. This would be a sign of the working class from the capitalist system.

The British ruling class is composed of the main interests of the ruling class: industrialists, financiers and bankers, landlords and property owners, commerce and trade bosses, and others engaged in exploiting people's labour power. The ruling class itself exists to exploit. It controls the State machine of parliament, police, courts, prisons, the educational system, the mass media and all other institutions of influence and power, all employed to serve its own class interest.

Institutions of influence and power, all employed to serve its own class interest. It is the class that can be divided into two great groups, the ruling class and the exploited class. The British ruling class is the largest single group of people in Britain, and it is the main exploiter of the working class. It is against the interests of the working class, to keep down the wages of the working class. This would be a sign of the working class from the capitalist system.

The British ruling class is composed of the main interests of the ruling class: industrialists, financiers and bankers, landlords and property owners, commerce and trade bosses, and others engaged in exploiting people's labour power. The ruling class itself exists to exploit. It controls the State machine of parliament, police, courts, prisons, the educational system, the mass media and all other institutions of influence and power, all employed to serve its own class interest.

Institutions of influence and power, all employed to serve its own class interest. It is the class that can be divided into two great groups, the ruling class and the exploited class. The British ruling class is the largest single group of people in Britain, and it is the main exploiter of the working class. It is against the interests of the working class, to keep down the wages of the working class. This would be a sign of the working class from the capitalist system.