South Africa: Act I Of The Revolution

by Glenn Wolfe

Black workers at a strike meeting in Natal. The new wave of black resistance has spread since illegal black unions won wage increases in 1973. These workers represent the revolutionary future of South Africa.

This popularly written little pamphlet outlines the nature of the South African state, the role of the U.S. in supporting the apartheid system and the prospects for permanent revolution in South Africa.

WOMEN IN APARTHEID SOUTH AFRICA

A Collection of Articles about Women in South Africa

Black South Africa Explodes is the only detailed account of events in South Africa since the uprising which began in June in Soweto.

This report gives a day by day chronology of the last six months in the main areas of confrontation, using original source material and a large number of photographs which have not appeared before outside South Africa.

Hundreds have been killed and thousands wounded, the majority of them children. The report details the tactics used by the security forces, and reveals the true extent of the brutality and repression.

This thoroughly researched and extensively illustrated report is essential reading for an understanding of present and future events in Southern Africa.

WHAT MAKES THE DIFFERENCE?
ANSWER: U.S. MONEY.

Not the money US corporations give to this American miner. They don't give him any. He has to strike for every cent But the $3 billion US corporations invest in South Africa. This lets South Africa spend $300 million a year on the military to keep black Africans down.

IF YOU THINK THAT AMERICAN FOREIGN AID AND INVESTMENTS HELP THE PEOPLE OF POORER NATIONS — THINK AGAIN. IN SOUTH AFRICA, IT'S THE OPPOSITE.

Both of the above posters have also been produced as gummed stickers. They are great for putting up in all public places. Stickers are only $1.00 for a packet of 50.
