RED ARMY HEARS BERLIN

February 2, 1946—As we go to press, the Red Army, in one of the most spectacular military campaigns in history, is at the gates of Berlin. This advance poses a number of important political questions for the working class. Here are the questions, and our analysis of them:

1. When the Red Army overruns Germany it will be the first time in history that the working class has conquered another country by the direct action of its own armies. What is the effect of that on both the German working class, and the workers of other countries?

2. When the Soviet forces eventually meet up with the Anglo-American armies, what will be the effect on the relationships of the workers of the two countries?

3. What will be the effect of all this on the internal relations in the Soviet Union?

The United States is preparing its structure to fight the Soviet Union. IF NECESSARY. The right answer is, plans for slave battalions, and all the other capitalist measures as they have as one of their main aims: preparation for an eventual struggle with the Soviet Union (and of course the increased counter-revolutionary role of the Allies in Europe and Asia). What happens in the German Red Army will have a far-reaching effect on history — and on the Soviet Union as well. IT WILL SPEED UP THE DEVELOPMENTS UNDER THE CLASS STRUGGLE. It will pose enormous problems for Stalinism. Possibly for a short time the Stalinist bureaucracy may be able to keep the German masses quiet with a few reforms and other minor concessions. Experience in Central Europe shows that Stalinism is alive, though demagoguing and maintaining its hold on the masses for a period. But so far they have been operating in countries that were primarily peasant. What will happen, however, when they meet up with industrial Germany?

RED ARMY AND GERMAN WORKERS

Unfortunately the present military victory of the Soviet forces poses equal problems for the Allied workers. As long as the Red Army has not been overwhelmed, the contact of the Soviet Army with the Berlin proletariat may be the beginning of the end of Stalinist dictatorship. The Red Army is preparing to convert the present imperialist war into a civil war.

The Red Army, if it is not a tool of the imperialists, has a more important role to play in opposing the capitalist forces in Germany and revolutionary Germany.

POPULAR FRONT IN RECONSTRUCTION

Popular Front has again delivered a shattering blow to the Popular Front in reconstruction. It is the second time that this attempt has been crushed by a powerful and united Popular Front movement. How was this done?

1. The Popular Front has again used its considerable influence to reduce the fear of the Popular Front movement. The Popular Front movement is not a tool of the imperialists. It is a tool of the workers and the masses of the world.

2. The Popular Front movement is a tool of the masses. It is not a tool of the imperialists. It is a tool of the workers and the masses of the world.

In conclusion, the Popular Front movement is a tool of the masses. It is not a tool of the imperialists. It is a tool of the workers and the masses of the world.
DOUBLY EXPLOITED—DOUBLY OPRESSED

Doris Tillon of the National Association of the State of Illinois is a far from people of President Herbert Hoover and the New Deal. We found that the two groups of workers we contacted were highly discontented and that there were signs of a growing movement for labor in the city. We also found that workers were increasingly radical, not only in their demands for higher wages and shorter hours, but also in their attitude toward the government.

The strike began in September of 1934, when the workers at the Ford Motor Company in Detroit, Michigan, went on strike. The strike was supported by the Communist Party, and the workers were demanding a 15% wage increase and better working conditions. The company threatened to fire any worker who joined the strike, and the police were called in to break up the strike. However, the workers remained determined, and the strike lasted for five months.

The strike was a major victory for the workers, who were able to win many of their demands. It showed that workers could organize and fight for their rights, and it set the stage for future labor struggles. Today, the struggle for workers' rights continues, and the memory of the 1934 Detroit Auto Workers strike is a reminder of the power of workers to change their lives and the world.
THE ARMY AT WARDS

The officer clique in the army and navy, together with the business tycoons of the country, are using every trick and device at their command to create a bitter hatred of the labor movement. The whole program of the government, as the POW, FCC, WBL, and others, is marked by this propaganda campaign of slander and lies goes on.

The Army and Navy Journal and the adjutant general of the army have an opportunity to play upon every fight of the workers against their profit hungry and power mad bosses as saboteurs of the military establishment. The boss-controlled press in the U.S. is alive with editorials and "slanted" news stories against the workers using their organised strength.

But behind this smoke screen of slander and high pressure propaganda there is a situation which does not at all excite the generals and the military establishment. In fact, these generals are greatly interested in the fight against the situation. And yet the various governmental agencies, including the Department of Labor, stand by idly.

PATRIOTIC WHITEWASH

The Negro workers of the North face the same bitter struggle. In an interview on Nov. 11 J. E. Wilcox, head of the Negro labor bureau, told a Negro newspaper reporter (the Chicago Defender) that "out of (70,000) jobs for colored men are portsers' jobs." The Negroes of the North at wages understood, as model employees, Wilcox had

The Negro workers will be used to further the ends of the white masters. The Negro workers must be handled in order to make bigger and better profits. First, they are going to re-examine their so-called "demagogues" who quote "the man's country, right or wrong." They are going to test the validity of this statement, either in words or action, if he acts alone. But combined, planned action of a section of the white and the Negro workers will be necessary if they can successfully defend themselves against the attacks of the employers and exploitation by the bosses.
