TOM THE FAKER

Tom Keating in jovial mood yesterday

'My protest against the art merchants'

BY BRIAN MOORE

TOM KEATING, the master faker, took one look at the hundred reporters, cameramen and TV crews, who came to his Press conference yesterday, and burst out laughing.

Ever since the news broke that he had faked 13 Samuel Palmer paintings, silver bearded Tom has been on the run from the Press on his moped in the West Country.

Yesterday he admitted: 'I am a terrible faker. Quite frankly and with, I trust, due modesty, I cannot imagine how anyone could begin to believe that the crude daubs being marketed as Samuel Palmer's were authentic.'

'I flooded the market with the work of Palmer and many others not for gain, but simply as a protest against merchants who make capital out of those I am proud to call by brother artists, both living and dead.'

He freely confessed to faking between 2,000 and 3,000 paintings over the past 25 years.

Sometimes he had written the word fake on the paintings or his own name, or even a 'rude remark if I felt the work would reach the target I was aiming for.'

Of the dealers who bought the work, he said: 'They used to take them, frame them, sign them and give them the expertise.'

'There are gentlemen who live in luxury, great names in the art world. I won't discuss their names, but I will reveal them in a book, if I get the chance.'

Hutchinsons, the publishers, are to give him that chance. It will be written by Mr Keating in conjunction with Geraldine Norman sales correspondent of 'The Times' and her husband Frank 'Fings ain't what they used to be' Norman.

Mrs Norman first 'revealed' the link between Tom Keating and the Samuel Palmer imitations.

If the book sells as well as Hutchinsons are predicting, fings won't be what they used to be for all three.

CUPPA UP BY 25 p.c.

MOST well-known brands of tea are going up by 8p a lb this weekend, the biggest single increase ever recorded.

BY DEREK SADLER

The 'own brands' produced by the supermarket chains are going up to 40p a lb, an increase of 25 per cent.

Eggs too are going up again this weekend. Large white eggs are now up to 50p a dozen, standard at 46 to 47p and medium are up by 3p a dozen to 40 and 41p.

The 'Grocer' magazine said that there were 278 price rises over the past week bringing the total for this year to a staggering 11,296.

No worker in Britain has had that many pay increases.

The fresh spate of price increases gives the lie to the Labour government's claim that there is 'a victory over inflation'.

The Price Commission is about to rubber stamp the following increases:

- 10½ per cent for domestic coal.
- 9 to 15 per cent for gas.
- Another 2 per cent for electricity.

In the background are the rail fare increases of 20 per cent which the rail unions have warned about (see page 5) and another increase for petrol.

What is incalculable is the impact of the drought. The National Farmers' Union has mentioned a 12-per-cent increase in food prices by the winter.

None of this will worry Mr Trevor Standeven, former director of United Dominions Trust, the big HP and finance house.

It was revealed yesterday that when he was made redundant Mr Standeven received a golden handshake of £70,000. He had been with the firm three years.

Glutton for punishment!

FOLLOWING the great success of his trip to Scotland this week, Prime Minister Callaghan has announced he is going to the North-West of England!

He will open a school in Salford and the extension of a British Oxygen factory in Skelmersdale, a town with one of the highest unemployment rates in Britain.

His itinerary also includes a visit to the Rock Ferry site at Birkenhead and the Cammell Laird shipyard.

The two-day tour starts at the end of next week.

A spokesman said it was part of a policy of 'getting to know the people'.

After his Scottish visit the Labour Party said it was 'an unqualified success' but Mr Dennis Canavan, MP for West

Stirlingshire, said it was 'a disaster'.

Asked about the rough reception he received from trade unionists Callaghan said it was blown out of all proportion by the media.

What about the 4,000 people who applauded him at Edinburgh Castle when he went to see the Edinburgh Festival? he asked.

ANSWER: They were Tories!

What we think

Payment to parties

IT has been recommended that political parties receive state support. The suggestion by a government committee is that the subsidy be 5p for every vote in the previous election.

The Tories have laughed the proposal out of court. Why? Because they own the state, the Tories don't need state support. In any case, they get money galore from big business and the banks whenever they need it.

The Labourites on the government committee, Lord Houghton for example, are the biggest supporters of the state subsidy scheme. Because reformism is subsidised politically by the capitalist state, they feel entitled to some cash crumbs from the master.

The right wing in the government have another purpose too. At the moment the Labour Party is largely financed by the trade unions. They want to break this link and make the party's finances 'independent' — by turning the capitalist state into the paymaster!

The Workers Revolutionary Party was invited to participate in this reactionary government inquiry. We said no. Its motives were clear from the start and its findings confirm it.

For us there is only one source of financial assistance — in the labour and trade union movement. It is to our members, supporters and News Line readers that we turn when we need resources.

Which brings us to the fight for the £50,000 Development Fund to be raised between now and the end of October. Please do everything that you can to make this a great success with your contribution today.

Bombs away

DID YOU notice it? You would have needed a magnifying glass. One agency report said in one sentence:

'Britain has exploded a nuclear device at an underground test site in Nevada. It was in a range equivalent to 20,000 to 150,000 tons of TNT.'

The last time the Labour government approved the testing of a nuclear bomb was in April 1974, two months after it was elected. Then Harold Wilson said it was a Tory commitment which they couldn't do anything about.

No such excuse can apply this time. It means that the Labour government is helping the ruling class and the military prepare the nuclear technology to be used by imperialism.

Michael Foot, with walking stick and flowing white hair, has succeeded in marching from Aldermaston to Trafalgar Square... and all the way back again!

Rue de Carey

THE LABOUR government has produced a report recommending the standardisation of bankruptcy laws throughout the Common Market. The Eurocrats said the report carried great weight, since the British knew more about bankruptcy law than anyone else.

(Some fame!)

The great minds working on the report delivered this conclusion: 'A bankruptcy law common to all EEC members is essential to the maintenance of stable economic conditions throughout the Community.' (Some stability!)

Water-can showers will not stop drought powers

THE watering-can rain which fell in parts of the country yesterday will make no difference to the drought, weathermen quickly warned.

The Anglian Water Authority have applied for powers to cut water supply for 14 hours a day. These cuts would apply to Peterborough, Northampton, Bedford and Lincoln.

The Authority, which has over 4 million consumers between the Humber and Thames, is the first area in England to apply for the powers under the new Drought Act.

A spokesman from the Authority said yesterday: 'This is a precautionary measure. But one which we need to have in reserve. We hope that we will not be driven to use these powers.

'If the situation does get worse, then the cuts will be enforced.'

Water Minister Denis Howell on tour of the drought-stricken South Wales said: 'There has been a lot of wild talk about a three-day week, but I don't think it will be necessary.'

He said there were plans to cut water supplies by 50 per cent to the whole of South East Wales' Industry in three weeks' time. 'The situation is serious but not desperate', he added.

At an emergency meeting of the Confederation of British Industry in Cardiff, South Wales, yesterday the CBI was informed that all firms would find it difficult to continue normal production.

The survey concluded:

- A quarter of industrial firms in south east Wales will have to lay off workers.

- 20 per cent of industry thought it would be 'virtually impossible' to carry on as normal.

- 80 per cent would find it difficult.

TRACK TROUBLE

PRODUCTION lines for the Allegro, Mini, Princess and Maxi models were again at a standstill in Leyland's two biggest car plants yesterday. At the Cowley plant in Oxford, the Princess and Maxi lines were halted for the second day running.

Union officials in London yesterday

ROLLS ROYCE TALKS IN LONDON

UNION officials and shop stewards representing workers occupying the Rolls Royce factory at Blantyre, near Glasgow, held talks with company executives in London yesterday.

'But Rolls Royce is still convinced the plant must be closed', said one of the union officials later.

'They still insist the work must be transferred to Hillington', said Bill Aitken, West of Scotland AUEW divisional officer.

'We were equally resolute in insisting that they can provide no economic grounds to justify closing down the Blantyre factory and causing social upheaval in an area already hit by economic depression.

'Kenneth Keith, the Rolls Royce chairman, was not there today unfortunately, because of illness.

'His executives were there and they will be reporting back to him.

'Workers at Blantyre are continuing to take positive action to keep the plant open.

'This action has the official backing of all the unions concerned, including the AUEW, the T&GWU, ASTMS and APEX,' added Mr Aitken.

Workers are on strike there after the company refused to recognise four Transport and General Workers Union Shop Stewards.

Also halted are the Mini and Allegro lines at the Longbridge works, Birmingham, where 6,000 have been laid off.

Ninety-two rectification engineers who went on strike on Thursday are being blamed for the lay-offs.

Protest

The company sent thousands of other workers home in the middle of the day, meaning they had to hang around to get their weekly pay packets.

Angry assembly workers staged a protest march against repeated lay offs.

The rectification men repair faults on cars coming off the assembly tracks.

The company claim that their pay claim would breach the pay laws unless the engineers agree to do extra jobs, including relief work on the tracks.

The Cowley dispute follows the victimisation of four T&GWU stewards from whom Leyland has withdrawn all facilities and recognition.

By 230 votes, direct workers in the North works, where the Princess and Maxi are produced, decided to stop work until the stewards are fully recognised again.

On Tuesday this week, while Leyland management was going through with its attack on the shop stewards movement, T&GWU leader Jack Jones was opening a car museum in Coventry.

Regular

In a speech, Jones urged both sides of the industry to strive for 'regular and continuous' production.

Encouraged by the Labour government's further attacks on the working class and by the retreats of the union leaders, Leylands are taking the fight into the factories for greater speed-up and exploitation.

But the indications are that this drive is meeting growing resistance from the workers in the plants.

PARTICIPATION BOYCOTT

ANOTHER Leyland car plant is to boycott the management's 'worker-participation' scheme.

Shop stewards at the Jaguar factory in Browns Lane, Coventry, have voted to withdraw from the corporatist, three-tier committees.

Workers at the Rover plant in Solihull,

Birmingham, and the Triumph plant in Canley, Coventry, have refused to join the scheme since it was officially launched last autumn.

Thursday's decision by the Jaguar stewards follow plans announced by Leyland management to build a new paint shop at Birmingham instead of at Coventry, the original choice.

A mass meeting of 600 Coventry paint shop workers is being held today.

Shop stewards are expected to recommend a stepping-up of industrial action being taken to back a demand for a public inquiry into the switch.

East German here

EAST GERMANY'S foreign minister, Herr Fischer, is to make a one day visit to London on September 6 at the invitation of the foreign secretary, Anthony Crosland. It will be the first official visit by an East German foreign minister since London recognised the GDR. During the day, Crosland and Herr Fischer will exchange the instruments of ratification of a consular convention signed in East Berlin on May 4.

CND in protest

THE Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament said yesterday the latest British test was a grave setback to hopes of halting the nuclear arms race, and preventing the spread of nuclear weapons.

'We condemn the government's action without reservation,' said Mr Duncan Rees, the campaign's organising secretary. 'The Government has said on many occasions that halting nuclear proliferation and achieving a world ban on nuclear tests are among its top priorities. To carry out a nuclear test of its own at this stage makes a mockery of those commitments.'

Airport delays

FLIGHTS to Spain will be delayed this weekend because of the continued work to rule by Spanish flight controllers. The work-to-rule which started a week ago is over old machinery still being used at Spanish airports.

Airlines have said that they will not pay for meals or accommodation during airport delays. The Balearic and Canary Islands are also affected.

Jaguar strike threat

A STRIKE by 600 paint shop men at the Jaguar car works in Coventry may be discussed at a meeting called by shop stewards there today. Overtime in the paint shop has already been banned after the men heard the controlling Leyland group plans to build a new vehicle painting plant in Birmingham and not in Coventry.

Canned meat warning

A WARNING not to eat certain cans of imported meat went out to the public last night in the wake of food poisoning in Leeds. Housewives with the Pek brand of canned meat in their pantries, or shops with the product on their shelves, were asked by the Department of Health to be on their guard. Two cases of food poisoning in Leeds were associated with the product, said the Department, and there was evidence of contamination of the cans' contents.

THE BANNER of the Fords Dagenham Transport and General Workers Union 1/667 branch will be on the Jobs for Youth lobby of the TUC in Brighton on September 9. Support has been pledged for the lobby — organised by the Young Socialists — because the branch says youth are in the forefront of the fight against unemployment. A delegate is being sent to Brighton.

THE main London to South Wales line was blocked in both directions between Swindon and Bristol last night after a goods train derailment. Trains due to use that route were being redirected through Bath. Firemen said the train was carrying empty petrol tankers and they feared a major disaster if one ignited because of the tinder-dry tree and shrub growth in the area.

Stonehouse quits as MP

JOHN STONEHOUSE, the MP who is serving seven years for fraud and other offences, ceased to be a member of the House of Commons yesterday.

A Treasury announcement said chancellor Denis Healey has appointed him steward and bailiff of the Chiltern Hundreds.

This is the traditional way for a sitting MP to give up his seat between general elections.

The appointment is technically 'an office of profit under the Crown' and the acceptance of this automatically disqualifies an MP from further membership of the Commons.

It means that Stonehouse, English Nationalist MP for Walsall North has taken his own decision to resign from the Commons.

The alternative would have been to wait for his expulsion by Order of the House when parliament resumes after the summer recess on October 11 or for the outcome of his appeal — to be heard early in October — against conviction and sentence.

Stonehouse recently resigned from the Privy Council, forfeiting his right to the title of 'right honourable'.

A Labour MP since 1957 and a former government minister, he left the Labour Party earlier this year and crossed the floor of the house to sit with the opposition as the sole English Nationalist MP.

His resignation means a by-election in Walsall North, where former MP David Winnick has already been appointed prospective Labour Candidate.

R.A.C. MEN FIGHT FOR RECOGNITION

RAC patrolmen in Birmingham

BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT

BIRMINGHAM — RAC vans will be missing from West Midlands roads over the August bank holiday.

Driver-mechanics at the Birmingham depot — which covers Warwickshire, Shropshire, Herefordshire, Worcestershire, and Staffordshire — were locked out on Wednesday night.

This came after a decision of the men to start strike action after the Wednesday shift because management were continuing to refuse to recognise the Transport and General Workers Union.

Patrolmen were picketing the RAC headquarters in Birmingham yesterday.

They are pleased with support received from other trade unionists — who have refused to collect mail, deliver milk, empty dustbins, and to deliver tyres to the depot.

'We are going to stick this out until the union is recognised', said shop steward John O'Brien.

Refused

The drivers have been demanding recognition for the T&GWU. The RAC has insisted that management will only negotiate with the staff association for RAC employees.

This association has been refused a trade union certificate of independence under the Employment Protection Act because of its close links with the RAC hierarchy.

The men naturally have no confidence in this association. Wages and conditions suffered by the patrolmen are bad, to say the least.

A 42-hour week produces a basic wage of £41, explained the pickets yesterday.

Patrolmen usually work a 70-hour week on nights and 56 hours on days.

But overtime is paid only at standard rate.

Bank holiday work is paid at the basic rate plus £5. There is no additional payment for night work.

A new rota is aggravating the bad conditions.

RAC want to impose it from September 2.

This would effectively remove the possibility of overtime working and would mean a reduction of about £20 a week in pay packets.

JOBS FOR YOUTH NOW CAMPAIGN

WHY RICHARD WORKS FOR TUC LOBBY

RICHARD PRICE, from Wembley, north London, is still at school. But he's spending his summer holiday working flat out for the Young Socialists' Jobs for Youth Now campaign.

The campaign is important to Richard because he already knows that when he leaves school the chances are that he will be pushed onto the dole.

He will join the 203,000 school-leavers who have not been able to find a job this year. Next year it will be worse.

WHEN YOU leave school you can't get jobs. Even with strings of 'O'-levels, you go straight onto the dole. Some people go back to school and get more qualifications but this is still no use.

There are now 1.5 million on the dole. I expected this all along with the Labour government in. They don't care about working-class people any more. They are working with the bosses against workers and youth.

There is nothing for youth to do in Wembley. There used to be three youth clubs, but they are all closed down. It is over £1 to go to the cinema, that's for the ticket only. If you're unemployed that's out.

If you walk down the road with a few mates, the 'old Bill' pull up and ask you where you've been. As soon as you give an answer they tell you not to answer back.

At football matches you get frisked. They make you turn out your pockets, they search all over your body. I've never been to a football match without this happening.

The papers made a lot of fuss about people going to Spain on the dole. How can you afford to go to Spain with the small amount you get on the dole? You can't afford to go anywhere. Once you've paid your keep and fares looking for jobs, you can't afford to go anywhere.

The bosses are trying to whip up racialism so they can get youth fighting each other. At my school, a few white youths beat up an Asian youth because his father drew social security.

The capitalist system is collapsing. Workers should take over and produce for need and not for profit. Because the bosses aren't making enough profit any longer, they close down factories. But we still need the goods produced so we ought to run industry.

Trade union leaders are betraying the working class. Jack Jones is the worst. He thought up the 4½-per-cent pay limit. Prices are going up all the time, much more than 4½ per cent.

It's getting to the point where many families can't afford some necessities let alone luxuries. We don't have meat very often because we can't afford it. We ought to kick the trade union leadership out.

We went campaigning for the 'Jobs For Youth Now' campaign to Alcan in Wembley. We spoke to some workers and they were interested and supported us in our campaign.

The chief union bloke came over and said that he didn't want anything to do with us. In the discussion we had with him, he said if some of the workers had to be sacked to keep the factory open, he would be in favour of this. It's a matter of the 'lesser of two evils'.

A few Young Socialists were invited to a Trades Council meeting, but it was cancelled.

The fact that there is now a record number of unemployed doesn't bother them. Their next meeting is in a month's time.

All youth and workers ought to support our campaign and go to the lobby of the Trades Union Congress in Brighton on September 9 and join the Young Socialists.

Youth unemployment appals transport man

JACK BESTON, senior shop steward at the Firestone tyre and rubber factory in west London, said yesterday he was 'appalled' by the level of youth unemployment.

'It is heartbreaking to see young people searching for jobs which aren't there,' said Beston.

This is happening in Firestones.

Applications come in from young people who have been really keen to learn but who are now being kicked around.

Beston has been a member of the national executive of the Transport and General Workers Union since early this year.

'I was visiting the engineering works of London Transport the other day and was horrified that only 40 new apprentices are being taken on there this year.'

'Altogether they had received more than 300 applications for apprenticeships.'

He continued: 'In our factory we are willing to support any reasonable scheme that will lead to the employment of young people.'

'One problem encountered here is that like many factories we work a shift system.'

'According to law, school leavers under the age of 18 are not allowed to do shift work. We must get around this problem somehow.'

'Training of young people in various skills must take priority.'

'A lot more money has to be allocated by the government for training.'

'Personally, I certainly don't believe what the government has done so far is sufficient.'

'What the trade union movement also has to do is to put forward positive solutions to the lack of investment in industry.'

'Most of British industry, what is inside the factories, is 40 to 50 years old.'

The old has to be torn down and replaced with the new.'

Beston said the run down of manufacturing industry has been so great that many so-called factories 'are more like gigantic warehouses'.

Dealing with the more immediate future, Beston added: 'My own feeling is that unless the government does something to really solve the unemployment problem for young and old — then I'm afraid we will have to pull the skirts from under the social contract.'

SUPPORT FLOWS IN FROM UNIONS

SUPPORT for the Jobs for Youth Now campaign is coming in from union branches all over the country. Engineering workers, printers, furniture workers, builders, public service employees and aircraft workers have all given their support.

From NORTH LONDON, furniture trade union members in Walthamstow have donated £20 to the YS campaign and pledged overwhelming support. And many furniture workers in the north London area have also given an enthusiastic response.

In BRIXTON, south London, UCATT branch members held an immediate collection at their meeting and raised £3.50 towards the campaign after an appeal by YS members. Also in south London, LAMBETH TRADES COUNCIL has voted to support the fight, donated £5 towards expenses and is notifying all branches in the area about the TUC lobby.

From railwaymen in BISHOPS STORTFORD the YS have received a donation of £3. The NUR branch wrote: 'Many thanks for your circular on the lobby of September 9... we wish you and your organisation every success.'

Along with the donation, they sent details of their own campaign against the Labour government's cuts in public spending which are closing down whole sections of the railways and threatening thousands of rail workers with being forced onto the dole queues, along with school-leavers, with no hope of ever finding another job.

BIRMINGHAM T&GWU 5-505 branch secretary, Mr E Steele wrote: 'I have pleasure in sending you a cheque for £10 towards the expenses of your campaign from my branch.'

Print workers in BRADFORD have expressed great interest and sympathy. They sent £10 saying: 'We hope it will be a success'. They are members of the Bradford Graphical Society, a section of the National Graphical Association (NGA).

Also from BRADFORD, members of the No. 1 National Union of Public Employees branch have donated £2. NUPE members in EXETER have offered to pay the coach fare to Brighton for any youth member who joins the lobby.

And engineering workers in EXETER AUEW have elected a youth delegate to come to the September 9 lobby. Many other branches of the AUEW throughout the country have supported the campaign.

WILLESDEN No. 3 AUEW branch has donated £2; Sheldon No. 2 AUEW branch, BIRMINGHAM sent £2 and COVENTRY No. 74 branch sent a collection and a grant from the General Purposes Fund totalling £5.50.

Mr I Williams, branch secretary, wrote: 'We all feel that this is a very worthy cause and wish you every success in your lobby on September 9.'

CRICKLEWOOD AUEW, north-west London, covering Smiths' Industries, has passed a motion supporting the campaign and has donated £3.

The branch will be sending a delegation on the TUC lobby.

And NEW HAW AUEW, Surrey, which includes many workers from the giant BAC aircraft factory in Weybridge, has voted to support the lobby and is sending a delegate.

From the Liverpool area, comes the support of the Girling's brake factory in BIRKENHEAD.

The convenor, after discussion with a YS jobs campaign team, pledged £15 from the shop stewards' committee towards the cost of coaches taking unemployed youth to the lobby.

A factory collection at Metal Box, WINSFORD, raised £17 for the campaign, and Halton Trades Council, RUNCORN, collected £6.80. WIGAN Trades Council have donated £15, and Vauxhalls 6-760 branch of the T&GWU, ELLESMERE PORT, donated £5 and are sending a delegate and their branch banner to the lobby.

Human Rights Commission report leaked

GUILTY OF TORTURE

BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT

Labour and Tory govts both indicted over Ulster

THE British government is guilty of torture in Northern Ireland.

That is the verdict of the European Commission on Human Rights, which will publish its 8,400-page report of its findings next Thursday.

The report is the result of exhaustive hearings in Strasbourg, Norway and Northern Ireland of 119 witnesses, 100 of whom gave direct evidence of torture.

Noise

Hooding, wall standing, subjection to loud noise, deprivation of food and water, and deprivation of sleep are the five techniques used in interrogating internees.

The techniques amounted to systematic torture, the report says, and used together were a breach of Article Three of the Convention, which provides that no-one will be subjected to torture or to inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment.

Confirms

The report absolutely confirms the accounts of torture in Workers Press, forerunner of News Line, as early as 1971.

Workers Press defied the conspiracy of silence imposed by the capitalist Press and published a full, documented account of the systematic torturing of internees held under the Special Powers Act.

We said then of Tory and Labour MPs who condoned torture:

'These politicians and the whole of the Fleet Street Press are forever damned for their silence and even support of the bloody episode of British imperialism in Ireland.'

The guilty men have remained silent. The Tory government, followed by the Labour government, refused to send politicians to give evidence to the commission.

The commission reveals that the British government justified itself by saying that torture techniques used had 'important results against terrorists in many parts of the world, including Palestine, Malaya, Kenya, Cyprus, the British Cameroons, Brunei, Aden, Borneo and the Persian Gulf'.

The original complaint to the commission was made by the Lynch government in 1971, and the commission started its hearings in 1972 and finished them last year.

Contact

The findings of the report were submitted to the British and Irish governments earlier this year and it is understood in Whitehall that there has been close contact between the two governments about the contents.

A former Irish Minister for Foreign Affairs, Mr Michael O'Kennedy, said on Dublin radio yesterday that the reports, if accurate, 'fully vindicated the action of the Fianna Fail government in raising the issues at the time'.

He added that the report had been leaked at a delicate time for Anglo-Irish relations, but it was the opinion of the Opposition Party that there should be fruitful relations with the British government.

Prison

Next Tuesday Liam Cosgrave's government puts before the Dail proposals for a state of emergency which includes prison sentences of up to seven years for belonging to the IRA.

The terms of reference are identical to the Special Powers Act which the Heath government introduced into Ulster in 1971, which gave the green light for torture to begin.

Under the new Dublin legislation, the Irish Republic will quit the European Human Rights Convention. This will allow the police state powers to go into force... and the torture to commence.

Police investigated ...by the police

INVESTIGATIONS into complaints against the police in Ulster are to remain in the hands of the police, says a draft order published by the government yesterday.

The draft order follows the report of a working party on the handling of complaints against the police that independent elements could be introduced into the procedure throughout the UK.

But the new procedure in Ulster is to be broadly similar to that introduced in England and Wales two weeks ago.

The Chief Constable of Ulster will continue to govern investigations of complaints. He will then send copies of investigation reports to an 'independent board'.

Restaurant steward sacked twice

Lancaster staff walk out

LANCASTER — Five young workers at the Steak & Kebab restaurant have been on strike for the past three weeks fighting for the reinstatement of their shop steward Maggie Clappen.

The staff decided to join the T&GWU on July 17 to improve working conditions and demand written contracts of employment.

On August 2 Maggie Clappen was elected shop steward. She was sacked the same day.

A picket was put on the restaurant on August 3 and the following day, the T&GWU 'negotiated' her reinstatement.

Picketing was then called off. The staff were told by the union officials that Maggie was reinstated.

But two days later, on her return to work, the owners denied having agreed to take her back. Picketing was resumed immediately.

The number of customers has been cut by around 75 per cent.

Legal technicalities are being used to break the strike. Although there is a written agreement to go to an industrial tribunal, the interim hearing is not for another eight weeks.

Maggie Clappen told News Line that the tribunal procedures were intended to stop any industrial action being taken in support of dismissed trade unionists.

'The whole idea of going to the interim tribunal has failed,' she said.

'We are still on the picket lines and will be staying here until my re-instatement.'

An appeal for financial support has been made. Donations can be sent to: Maggie Clappen, 16 Skitton Street, Morecambe.

Cut 'fares' say NUR

THE National Union of Railwaymen is to urge an experimental 10-per-cent cut in rail fares. The plan will be put to the railways board by Sidney Weighell, NUR general secretary, when the unions meet the board on October 28.

'Present policy is rendering the nation immobile,' said Weighell at a London Press conference yesterday in referring to the drift away from the railways since the huge March fares increases.

'We must take some initiative:

to sit and do nothing is the sure road to disaster.'

Weighell said that the drift from the railways since March had been as high as 28 per cent on some services, notably the Euston (London)-Glasgow run.

'At the moment we are slowly bleeding to death and to put the fares up again is a philosophy of despair,' said Weighell.

The loss in traffic as a result of the last increases had sent the board 'reeling' and further rises could turn many thousands more from the railways.

BRIBE PRINCE'S DOLLAR APPETITE

PRINCE BERNHARD of the Netherlands had an 'insatiable appetite for money' and was paid more than $1m by the Lockheed Aircraft Company, a former executive with the firm insisted yesterday.

Speaking from Arizona, the executive, Mr Ernest Hauser, said the Prince sent a handwritten letter to Lockheed stating that if he did not get $4m 'Lockheed would never do business with the Netherlands again'.

Mr Hauser was speaking on a BBC interview, the day after the report of a Commission of Inquiry into allegations that Prince Bernhard had accepted bribes to push Lockheed sales in the Netherlands.

He said in the interview that at least $1.2m was paid to Prince Bernhard by Lockheed. Asked why, Hauser replied: 'He asked for it. He demanded it.'

Go-betweens

To the question 'Do you know for certain he accepted it?' Mr Hauser said: 'Yes, I am in no doubt.'

The former executive — now a spare parts salesman — said it was possible that some of the go-betweens in the deal may have had sticky fingers. 'But I would assume, knowing the tenacity of the Prince, that the bulk of it had to go to him.

The payments, approved by the company's president, went to its banks and from there to Switzerland, Mr Hauser added.

'Lockheed based their whole business on this type of thing,' he said. It was not difficult to bribe people. 'They asked for it and we didn't say no.'

'The time when Lockheed finally did say no was in 1974 when Prince Bernhard asked for $4m and was only offered $1m.

Mr Hauser added that the Prince's hand-written letter demanding $4m had been sent to the Dutch Commission investigators.

• Whatever wildlife was financed by the proceeds of Prince Bernhard's business activities was strictly his own. The World Wildlife Fund announced yesterday that it had not received any money at all, either from the Prince or from Lockheed.

Minister in talks with 'illegal' unions

SPANISH Trade Union Affairs Minister Enrique de La Mata held discussions with representatives of the illegal Workers Syndical Union (USC) yesterday in an effort to head off clashes with the working class in the autumn.

Last week he conferred with the Socialist General Workers Union (HGT) — also illegal.

He is expected to hold a meeting shortly with the leaders of the illegal Stalinist-led Workers' Commissions.

Reformists and Stalinists alike are hailing these discussions as 'victories' for their policy of pressurising the ruling class into introducing bourgeois democracy.

But the real background to the talks is the certainty of big working class struggles over pay and conditions. Many collective work contracts come up for renewal in the next few weeks.

The Spanish rulers are eager to enrol the reformist and Stalinist leaders as their allies in heading off the danger that the working class will not settle for 'democratic' concessions, but will demand real improvements in their standard of life and challenge the whole existence of the capitalist state in Spain.

Heading off class action

The shaky Spanish government is well aware of the dangers it faces. Prime Minister Adolfo Suarez held lengthy discussions on Thursday night with ten of his ministers. On the agenda was a scheme for Suarez to make a television broadcast next month announcing 'plans for introducing democracy'.

The Stalinists' 'peaceful road to socialism' strategy means they will certainly be insisting, along with the Socialist Party leaders, that workers make sacrifices in order to protect this new 'democracy'.

Controllers harden position

MADRID — Spanish air traffic controllers, already on a work-to-rule for a week, have hardened their positions. They are now allowing only two flights to land every 30 minutes instead of every 20. Thousands of tourists are expected to be affected, especially as it is a holiday weekend in Britain. The men hardened after government concessions on their demands for better equipment and more personnel, but ignored demands for more pay and labour bargaining rights.

Bidding for secret police work

THE BOSS of a British government-owned concern has been in Teheran recently discussing contracts worth hundreds of millions of pounds for the supply and maintenance of electronic equipment for the Shah's police and armed forces. The Iranian police are particularly interested in British spying devices for internal security.

Disclosed

The business with the Shah's police state is disclosed in this week's 'New Scientist' magazine, which quotes a British executive as saying 'surveillance is one of the big growth areas in Iran — because it's so unobtrusive'.

Reporting that the Crown Agents are concerned about an Iranian government committee which is reviewing overseas contracts, the 'New Scientist' says that Mike Cotton, chief executive of Millbank Technical Services, the Agents' 'secretive wholly-owned subsidiary' has recently been in Teheran, and that MTS has 400 staff there. The magazine says British businessmen regard building the Shah's police as good business.

Iranian police officers trained in Britain and the United States have said how much they appreciate sophisticated security and surveillance equipment, such as companies like Racal and Cable and Wireless have been providing. The over 6,000 prisons and delinquent establishments in Iran are seen as an expanding market. And the Iranian police have expressed interest in British electronic spy systems for government offices, military establishments, and neighbourhoods as well.

Contracts

'MTS is widely considered the ideal conduit for obtaining these contracts, as the British government's agent for commercial sales in Iran, negotiating directly with Iranian ministries and quasi-government offices.' British expertise and technology may be playing a part in even more sinister aspects of the Shah's regime than its surveillance.

Asked about torture recently, the Shah remarked that his police used 'more modern methods now'. His prime minister is reported to have boasted that the interrogators were trained in Britain.

BHUTTO SENDS SPY TEAM TO BRITAIN

BY CHARLES PARKINS

AN UNDERCOVER police spy operation has been launched against Pakistani workers and students in Britain by the Pakistan government.

Two senior police officers have been sent to London. The move is linked to repression in Pakistan itself, where up to a thousand young people have been arrested in recent months on suspicion of opposing the Bhutto regime.

Doctors used as cheap labour

RAWALPINDI — Pakistani doctors working in Britain are used 'simply as cheap labour' and should seek post-graduate training in other countries, the Pakistan Medical Society has said.

Dr A A Qureshi, the society's secretary general, said post-graduate training for Pakistani doctors in Britain had been virtually stopped by medical and language tests introduced for overseas doctors last year.

In a letter from Britain published Thursday by the semi-official 'Pakistan Times', Dr Qureshi said the traditional medical training links between the two countries were no longer useful and should be ended.

Dr Qureshi said his society believed Pakistani doctors should only go to Britain for training if the two governments negotiated a training programme for a specified period.

Some of those first arrested were tortured to reveal the names of others, Pakistani socialists have told News Line.

They say the Bhutto regime has become 'like Chile or Iran'. Real power is in the hands of the military and the police.

Techniques

They add that the Iranian secret police, SAVAK, itself trained by the CIA, has been passing on its techniques of political spying and torture to its Pakistani colleagues, who are equipped now with US-supplied torture equipment.

The reactionary pro-government Press in Pakistan, repeating police allegations, claims that there has been a left-wing conspiracy against the government involving Pakistanis abroad.

Majid Ahmed, machine tool factory union leader, brought to court in chains with fellow workers. One of many groups of trade unionists arrested under the Defence of Pakistan Law, charged with being a 'subversive element' and 'foreign agent'.

It talks about the 'Oxford Conspiracy', or more frequently, 'The Helicopter Conspiracy'.

This refers to the army's arrest, in February this year, of four young people who were engaged in an aerial survey of the troubled Baluchistan province as part of a government-sponsored development scheme.

The military allege that they had used their two helicopters to deliver arms to Baluchi insurgents.

The group were allegedly implicated by a top Baluchi leader who had been captured in Quetta.

Sources say he was tortured severely, with electric shocks and the use of drugs, to make him name 'conspirators'.

That the survey group may have been sympathetic to Baluchi aims of national autonomy and democratic rights is acknowledged.

Many young Pakistanis are.

That they were actively involved, to the extent of smuggling arms, is very much doubted by those who know the individuals concerned.

They suggest that possibly the helicopter crews decided to attempt humanitarian relief.

taking food or medicines to Baluchi villages beleaguered by the Pakistani army.

Having set up its 'conspiracy', and begun to gather 'names', often of people who had been loosely involved with left-wing circles as students in the 1960s and taken no part in politics since returning to Pakistan, the government began spreading its net.

Tortured

People were tortured, among them a girl formerly at the LSE, to reveal names of 'fellow-conspirators', of Baluchi refugees, of anyone they could think of.

One Pakistani source told us:

'Many left-wing people in India and Pakistan were encouraged by the victory in Vietnam. They did not realise that the bourgeoisie in our countries also learned from it.'

Frightened

Bhutto had been frightened by it, he said.

Now the Bhutto regime is trying to spread its network of repression to Britain.

The two senior police officers who have arrived here are believed to be attached to military intelligence.

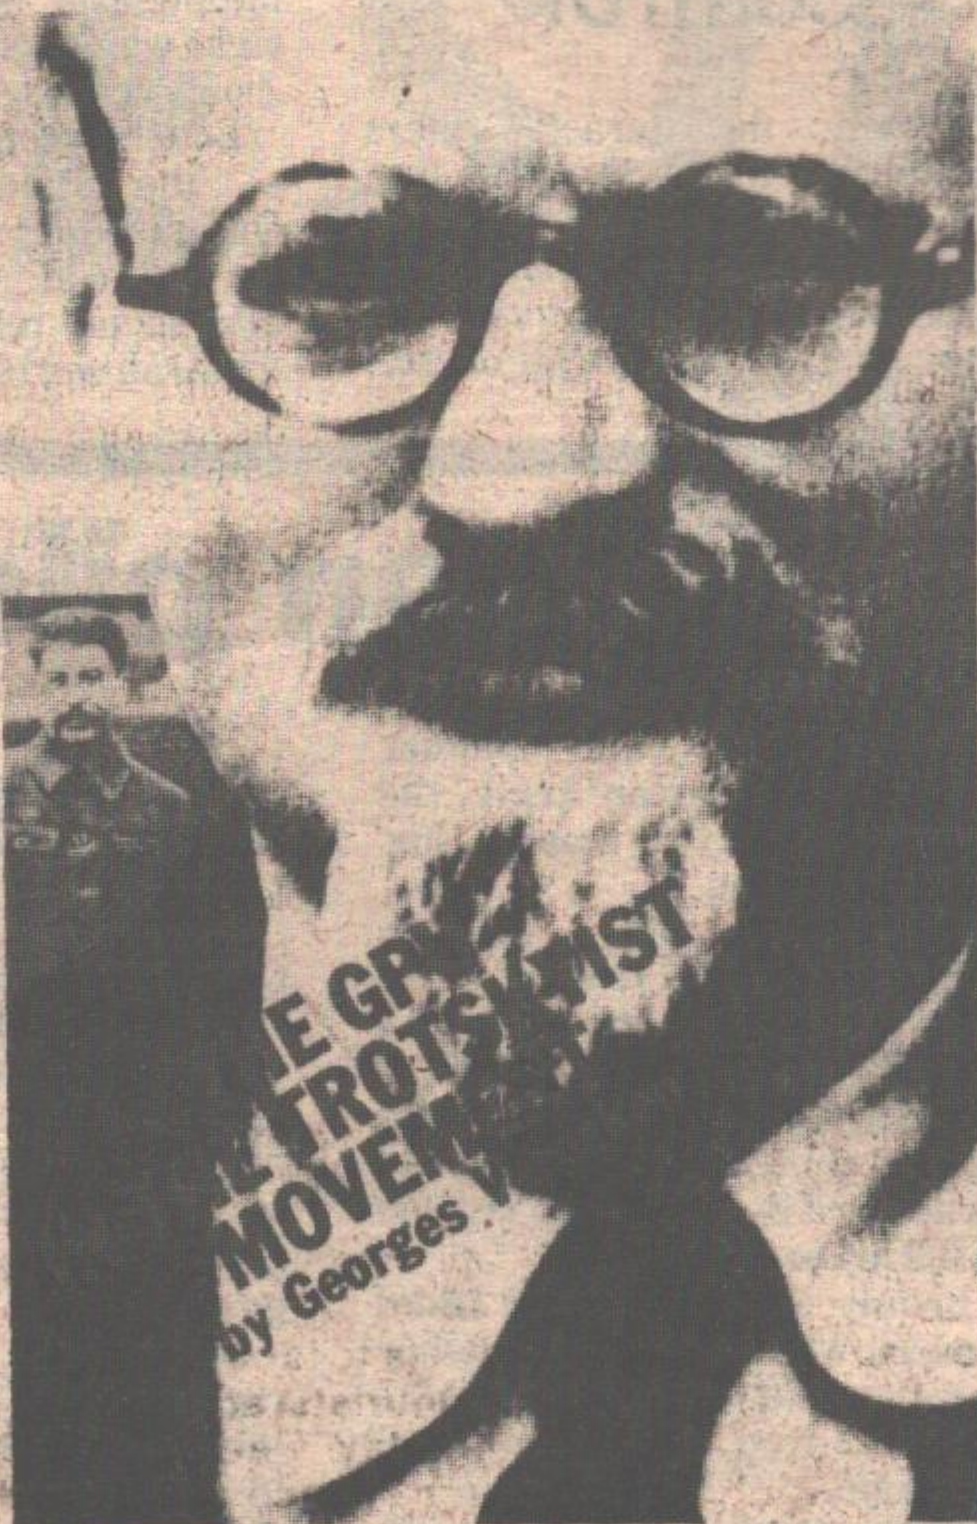

And in a move to avoid suspicion from alert Pakistanis here, the regime is believed to have replaced easily-spotted Pakistani policemen with British-hired spies.

The GPU in the Trotskyist movement

Secretary of the Belgian Trotskyists in those years and party to the movements internal struggles, Vereeken documents the sinister role played by the provocateur Marc 'Etienne' Zborowski and traces the bloody chain of events which led to the assassination of Leon Trotsky in Mexico in 1940. His book is a powerful indictment of the crimes of Stalinism, and of the conspiracy of silence which has covered up this history in the intervening years.

Zionists back Syrian slaughter in Lebanon

SPECIAL REPORT

TEL AVIV — The Syrian-right-wing offensive to liquidate the Palestine Liberation Organisation in Lebanon has been given political backing by Israel.

The latest results of this anti-PLO consensus is an announcement by Israeli Defence Minister Shimon Peres that Druze Arabs in Israel will be allowed to meet their relatives in Syria in the demilitarised area of the Golan Heights.

Blockade

The decision of the Assad regime in Syria to allow the meeting is the first real step toward relations between the two sides since the October 1973 Yom Kippur war.

Another aspect of the tacit agreement between Damascus and Israel is the intervention by Israeli naval vessels against ships carrying vital arms and ammunition to the besieged PLO forces in Lebanon.

Several ships have been arrested by the Israeli Defence Forces and taken into Israeli ports.

A television programme described the policy as a 'blockade' of the Lebanon coast. The government admit they are keeping a 'close watch' on 'hostile elements'.

When pressed they say the alert is due to fears of PLO sea raids on their territory. But as one observer pointed out, such operations are hardly likely with the PLO fighting for its life in the Moslem-held areas of Lebanon.

The action by the navy has already embarrassed the Soviet Union bureaucracy. They support the Assad regime in Damascus and supply arms to the Syrian forces.

Exposed

Any open commitment of Israel forces against the PLO further exposes the Soviet leadership's excuse that it is necessary to maintain their backing for the Syrian government to keep it in the 'progressive camp'.

The mention of 'blockade' led to a Soviet protest to US Secretary of State, Henry Kissinger, who told the Israeli government to curb their coastal activities. Peres promptly issued a firm denial that any 'blockade' was being mounted by the armed forces.

The government is somewhat divided over their next step in their Lebanese initiative. Mapam, the 'left-wing' of the ruling Labour Alignment, would like to see more encouragement of the Palestinian 'moderates' of the West Bank.

These are the newly-elected mayors and councillors of the occupied territory who have accepted that the PLO aim of a unified, democratic Palestinian state over all Israeli territory is a long-term goal.

The 'moderates' would settle for a West Bank state with full autonomy from Israel and Jordan.

Mapam leaders believe that the fighting in Lebanon has weakened the PLO and will lead to the West Bank 'moderates' assuming more importance in the movement.

One Mapam leader said: 'Peres is paying too little attention to this development. I believe that the defeats of the PLO in the Lebanon can yield good results for Israel and a peace settlement. One possibility is that we may get a Palestinian, but non-PLO, delegation to the Geneva convention.'

Control

Ideally, the Israeli rulers would like to see the PLO lose all political and military independence in Lebanon, and a settlement to the civil war leaving Syria in overall control of the area.

The second best would be a partition establishing two statelets — Moslem and Christian — with both too weak to resist domination from Damascus.

These kind of considerations lie behind the propaganda campaign launched by the Israeli government over the 'open gates' policy on the Israeli-Lebanese border.

Visits

Small numbers of Moslems from southern Lebanon are being allowed into Israel to work. Others are coming over the border for medical help.

The Israeli Defence Force say they are preparing a 'summer visits' programme for Israeli and Lebanese Arabs and examination booths, post offices and currency exchange offices have been set up at the border posts.

The Israeli government spokesmen say the 'open gates' policy is inspired by humanitarian considerations.

They claim it shows that Israel is not interested in expansion and wants peace with Arab countries.

But a more serious concern behind the much-publicised border crossings is an Israeli government bid for security without annexation.

Peres told Labour Party members this week that the aim of the government was to 'weave a network' of villages in Lebanon.

It is all part of the unity of interests at this stage on the Middle-East battle between the right-wing Assad regime and the Zionist rulers of Israel.

Both have one common enemy — the Palestine Liberation Organisation with its demands for national self-determination and social reforms throughout the Arab world.

Fierce fighting continues

Rival radio stations reported heavy clashes in the main battle zones of the Lebanese capital as well as in the northern port of Tripoli, a left-wing stronghold surrounded by right-wing forces and Syrian troops.

Shortly before noon, several heavy-calibre shells crashed into Beirut's commercial district, reduced to ruins by months of combat.

Left-wing fighters in the area reported a number of prolonged engagements with rightists in the adjacent port area.

In the populous leftist-held suburb of Shiyah, residents said part of the district had come under mortar attack early today.

The radio station of Gemayel's Falangist party said today Lebanon's right-wing leaders would meet again next Wednesday after studying the League plan for the 55th attempted cease-fire.

Syrian pilot defects

BAGHDAD — Yet another officer of the Syrian Army, the third in under two months, has defected to Iraq.

In June 1976, Captain Mahmoud Yassin, took off in his MiG fighter, from a Syrian airfield, and headed for Iraq.

In Baghdad, he explained that he had not trained as a pilot to be ordered by the Syrian regime to kill his brother Arabs.

In July, Captain Ahmad Abdul Qader Al-Termanini, another Syrian pilot, brought his MiG fighter to Iraq. His reasons were the same.

More recently, on July 30,

Captain Engineer Azzam Nizar Dallo, of the Arab Syrian Army, who had been on an assignment in the United Arab Emirates, decided that he could not return to Syria while the present Syrian regime remained in power.

In all three cases the Syrian regime's role in Lebanon was the prime mover in the decision by these three Arab officers to defect.

DERBY — Storemen at Monday, rejected a management committee, T&GWU yesterday.

The proposed talks were for recognition of victimised shop representative.

But management also said recognition and made no offer.

Stan Simpson told News Line, 'Management put to us that they were prepared to withdraw the letter against my credentials but they said they would go through the procedure to take them off me.'

Bukovsky protest at PEN conference

ONE aspect of the recent PEN writers' conference in London that went unreported in the capitalist Press was the protest raised over the imprisonment of Soviet dissident Vladimir Bukovsky.

David Markham, one of the leading campaigners on behalf of Bukovsky in this country, demanded at a PEN Press conference that there should be a full-scale international investigation into the treatment of Bukovsky and other Soviet political prisoners.

Bukovsky supporters objected to the presence at the PEN conference of three Russian writers as observers, while no freedom is permitted to writers in the Soviet Union who oppose the Stalinist regime.

When the embarrassed PEN president, Stephen Spender, pleaded that an 'East-West dialogue' should be kept open, David Markham replied that this same excuse was used by western psychiatrists to maintain their links with doctors in the Soviet Union who used their professional position to torture the regime's opponents.

Maire Drumm freed

Maire Drumm

BELFAST — Mrs Maire Drumm, vice president of Provisional Sinn Féin, was released from custody when she appeared at Belfast Magistrates Court yesterday.

Mrs Drumm was in the court accused of taking part in an illegal march in the Falls Road which commemorated the fifth anniversary of internment.

Prosecuting counsel said that after consultation with the Director of Public Prosecutions it had been decided that there was insufficient evidence for them to continue with the charge.

Similar charges against seven other people arising out of the same march will be withdrawn when they appear in court next Tuesday.

Mrs Drumm had been in custody for nearly three weeks.

Perspectives discussion

The draft resolution on perspectives is open for discussion before the party's second annual conference

'The role of this government has been proven anti-socialist'

VAL SIMONS, 29, is a housewife with four children from Skelmersdale, Lancs.

I joined the Workers Revolutionary Party earlier this year, because to me the role of this Labour government has been proven anti-socialist.

It has brought the forcing down of living standards, public expenditure cuts, and wholesale anti working class laws.

Squatting

One of those is the squatting law which working-class people think concerns the occupation of houses.

But what the ruling class has in mind are factories that are occupied by workers in order to protect their standard of living and basic democratic rights.

Another attack which comes to mind is the pornography bill which will not mean 'The Sun' page 3, but will mean literature by Marx, Lenin and Trotsky.

This government with the full blessing of the trade union bureaucracy is tying the working class hand and foot at the mercy of the international bankers.

In Skelmersdale there is a strong contingent of Stalinists who say we must not bring the Labour government down and are playing the Tories game, for even without a majority, while they carry out Tory policies they can remain in office.

This includes the so called lefts.

On the last vote concerning public expenditure cuts which takes in housing education and health, Foot abstains and Benn does not even attend.

The great 'local left' Heffer pleads for the life of Costas Georgiou (alias Callan) paid in American dollars by the CIA to murder working-class men, women and children.

Immigration

When the Hawley report on immigration was leaked to Powell what was being posed was the scrapping of parliament and rule by Privy Council through the army and police.

The ruling class in an effort to divert the bankruptness of world capitalism from themselves will try to create massive splits in the working class, in the form of racial wars religious wars (Northern Ireland) industrial wars, workers against the unemployed and lots more which the ruling class have yet to unearth.

It is only the Workers Revolutionary Party with the whole essence based on dialectical materialism, that will abstract and analyse the ruling-class treachery.

Workers must read the News Line. Build a mass revolutionary party to maintain the development of mankind.

Forward to world revolution and socialism.

Struggle for power the only future

Roy McCullough, a London bricklayer and UCATT shop steward joined the Workers Revolutionary Party a year ago after a brief spell in the Communist Party.

I live in Finsbury Park in a two room furnished flat with my wife and ten-month-old son. For the last ten years I have worked in the building trade.

Like thousands of other tradesmen I took a four-year apprenticeship. Look at that for a contradiction. As a bricklayer I have worked in the trade since I was 18 but I still haven't a decent house to live in.

Four out of every five people will not be rehoused on today's figures, while there are over 200,000 building workers unemployed. Even the trade union leaders say that one in every two building workers will be unemployed in the near future.

In this situation, what is the role of this Labour government? As it says in the perspectives document the Labour government is in the hands of the international bankers and multinational companies.

Accept

During the discussion over the £6 pay limit, the trade union leaders said if we were to accept this it would stave off unemployment. We know now what they meant by that!

Now they have told us to accept 4½ per cent, which means just £2.50 to me, still trying to spread the illusion that the Labour government can be moved to the left.

This is complete betrayal of the Labour and trade union movement.

The leadership in UCATT is reformist to the core. Like in all the other unions the leadership collaborates with the bankers in this.

Reformism made some gains in the boom of the 1960s but now we are in a world-wide slump of capitalism and, as Trotsky said in 'Where is Britain Going?' they have become the policemen of the working class.

These bureaucrats will destroy the labour and union movement if the trade unions are not transformed into the instruments of the revolutionary movement of the working class.

This requires the building of the revolutionary party.

We need a party that does not capitulate or compromise with the ruling class. Which is a party of principle. Which fights for the independent strength of the working class and has faith in the strength of that class.

Just let's look at these trade union leaders we have.

In UCATT, although the annual conference voted against the 4½-per-cent pay limit, George Smith of the executive stood up and said he would not accept the vote because that would have meant a challenge to the Labour government.

There are forces who want to fight in the building industry, but they are blindly led by the International Socialists and the Communist Party who keep them tied round the level of 'being militant'.

For instance we have an overtime ban in London, but it is breaking up. Instead of uniting the workers it is splitting them.

I have heard that stewards on the Barbican site have resigned because they couldn't get any support from the lads on the site.

This is not the fault of the workforce, but is the fault of the bureaucracy which is not giving any real solutions and refuses to challenge the real role of this rump government.

This overtime ban is yet another betrayal to stave off the strength of the working class. The historical role of the working class is to take state power through the socialist revolution.

Without this there is no future for the working class.

BEN GURIRAB is Chief UN representative of the South West Africa People's Organisation (SWAPO) in New York. In this interview, exclusive to the News Line, he speaks about the ten-year-old Liberation struggle in Namibia against the South African oppressors.

TEN YEARS OF ARMED STRUGGLE

Ben Gurirab

THIS is an election year in the US and, therefore, there is a lot of talk about the United States rethinking its policies vis a vis Africa in general.

But this is just talk on the part of the two capitalist parties here who are supposed to be opposing each other to get votes.

People ought to be clear about that.

We have accepted our struggle as a protracted struggle.

It will continue, but we are confident that we have organised ourselves in such a way that we will be able to meet all of the demands that we confront.

Recently I was back in Africa, re-called by my party to participate in the preparations for the meeting that we convened on July 28.

Terror

We called the meeting to review the political and military situation that southern Africa has undergone now. We specifically took note of the current developments inside Namibia.

We took note of the continued repression. We took note of the continued efforts on the part of South Africa to militarise Namibia in a big way, to build up the military and police machinery.

We also took note of the continued organisation of Namibia, the creation of so-called 'bantustans'.

We took note of, on the other hand, the resistance of our people.

In spite of the terror, in spite of repression, our people inside the country, demonstrated the determination not to compromise on the basic issue, which is the liberation and genuine national independence of Namibia.

We also reviewed the general political situation in southern Africa as a whole.

The enemies of the liberation struggle there, have embarked upon what they have borrowed from Israel. These are so-called hot missiles and these are raids into the territories, into the independent African countries.

We examined and analysed the dangers entailed in that — when Zambia was invaded by South Africa not too long ago.

Invasion

Recently, we read about Ian Smith's Rhodesian forces invading Mozambique. We know that this will continue.

We know the implications of that. It will crystallise and expose the nature of those regimes.

We also see prospects in that. It politicises the masses not only within the liberation forces, but throughout Africa.

We will continue to intensify the struggle at the immediate level. We have also put in a position of responsibility tested cadres who are capable of articulating on an international level the Namibian case.

I see the developments in South Africa itself as symptoms of something that is just starting.

We have said all along that it's a powder keg, pregnant with so many vulnerabilities which are good for the revolution.

We have said that the mere fact that we do not hear on a daily basis these kind of uprisings, demonstrations, strikes, and so forth — that does not mean that people there have succumbed to oppression, to exploitation.

Organisation has always been going on there; there were underground preparations made. These are simply symptoms of something big that is going to come.

It's a very promising situation for the liberation movements in southern Africa and I'm confident that our comrades there would seize the opportunity to launch that long-awaited onslaught on the system.

SWAPO guerrillas salting game caught in the bush

I think it exposes the inherent contradictions in the apartheid capitalism of Vorster. It exposes the 'unrepresentativeness' of that system.

Here is a system where the overwhelming majority of the people are denied basic rights.

They are used merely as labour units, whether it is in the cities or on those so-called 'bantustans'. They have been reduced to labour units serving the interests of the capitalists in South Africa and the imperialists.

Protests

It started a few months ago. Every day you read about protests by students, slowly the workers, also joining in, but it is also interesting, within the context of South Africa, that white students and coloureds have joined in this protest.

So when you add that to what is happening in Zimbabwe and what is happening in Namibia, you have really a volatile situation that spells danger (which is good) for the reactionaries there.

We were always referring to Sharpeville as the watershed in the resistance struggle in southern Africa.

What is happening today in South Africa has made Sharpeville look very, very small indeed. And it is not the end of the whole story, it is still unfolding.

Whereas in the past, people resorted simply to demonstrations, these demonstrations at this point in time will change in quality.

It will be open revolt and people are not going to carry sticks, they might carry AK-47's. I think we have entered that phase. And so I think there will be continued resistance to South Africa.

I have always been critical of our comrades in the industrialised countries in North America and in Western Europe, how prepared they are, how committed they are to completely identify with the liberation struggle in the Third World.

There are opportunities for the workers in the industrialised countries to come out in a big way in support of the liberation efforts.

Now, in North America, in Western Europe, you again see the contradictions.

These countries are going through crises: inflation, fiscal problems, economic problems.

This is the hour where the workers are called upon by history to register their solidarity, their support for the liberation forces.

It is the same capitalists, it is the same imperialists that are exploiting, degrading the workers here, that have multi-national corporations in Namibia, in Zimbabwe, that are exploiting our masses there.

Now, there is need for, not only to express, the support and solidarity politically. This is necessary.

Strikes

But I think in a concrete way, there is need for the workers from these countries to demonstrate through strikes — I don't need to describe the course of action to them — but to take concrete actions that would enable the liberation forces to complete the struggles, to score victories, also enable the workers here to benefit from their labour.

Nowadays people talk so much about socialism, yet they behave differently.

I would answer your question whether socialism is the alternative to what we have now.

I would say yes, but I would also say what is most important is that we have colonialism that is supported and abetted by imperialism.

We also have racial supremacy expressed in the government policy of apartheid.

We have a deliberate legal system that discriminates against people on the basis of colour.

All the resources from Namibia, starting from land, to all the means of production, distribution, and exchange are owned and controlled by foreigners, starting with South Africa and the western capitalist countries. This does not in any way benefit the Namibian people.

System

The system we will adopt after liberation in Namibia must be a system that would be classless, nonexploitative, and built on genuine principles of socialism, by which I mean that the labour of the Namibian workers and peasants must be expended to exploit the resources of Namibia, to build Namibia for Namibians, and to exchange the products of that labour with others.

Yes, I see socialism as the answer to man's problems.

It is one thing to say that socialism is the answer. But I've also said socialism is being preached and something else being practiced.

I hope that we will not experience those contradictions. I cannot foresee after liberation in Namibia the Namibian people embarking upon a capitalist road of development.

NIEBO FOR WATERFORD CRYSTAL been backed for next month's final classic, the St Leger, ought to manage a success over Tierra Fuego and Roses For The Star in the March Stake (4.15), to hold his high position in the ante-post betting on the Doncaster classic.

Bruce Raymond could be the jockey to follow at Newcastle's holiday meeting. He should start by landing a double for his main stable — Michael Jarvis — with Red Seed (Sandgate Stakes, 1.45) and London God (Newgate Stakes 2.15), then he can follow up by winning the Gallowgate Selling Stakes (3.45) on Chilli Willi, and finally the Westgate Stakes (4.45) on Realms Of Gold.

At Newmarket's Saturday meeting, Edward Hide appears to hold a fine chance of landing a double on Etienne Gerard, in the Fitzroy House Stakes (2.00).

LEICESTERSHIRE kept up the fight to keep their title by beating Kent by seven wickets to move into second place behind Middlesex who could only draw.

Ray Illingworth's side are just 17 points behind Middlesex with two matches to play. John Edrich knocked Northants' chances by leading Surrey to easy seven-wicket victory at Grace Road.

Kent were finished off in 150 minutes as Leicestershire quickly saw off the 145 runs needed for victory.

As dark clouds threatened, they made a brisk start with Briers and Steele putting up the 50 in just 16 overs.

When Briers fell lbw to Johnson for a bright 29, Steele joined Balderstone to see them home for 17 valuable points.

Arch-destroyer of Northants' hopes was Edrich. He put them into bat on the first day, then followed up his first innings score of 69 with an unbeaten 80 yesterday.

Surrey started their second innings with 157 to win and they reached a total of 160 for three off the ninth ball after lunch.

Leics (1)	18	9	2	7	47	62	199
Northants (8)	18	8	3	7	48	70	198

1975 positions in brackets

Edrich made his 80 in 155 minutes and hit ten fours having shared an opening stand of 48 with Butcher.

Younis helped to put on 69 for the third wicket, and finally Roope made four successive boundary shots including the winning hit off Yardley.

Northants were without Bishen Bedi who had injured an ankle and their attack never looked like averting a Surrey win.

Chasing 327 to win, Lancashire soon had Middlesex's bowlers toiling for the crucial breakthrough.

Andy Kennedy and Farook Engineer saw their first wicket stand reach 111 at lunch in just two hours.

Fred Titmus felt his hopes rise when Engineer fell for 96, bowled driving Featherstone.

Though further wickets fell after an interruption for rain, Middlesex could not make the final push for victory which would have clinched the championship.

Africa may boycott Commonwealth Games

AFRICAN countries will definitely boycott the Commonwealth Games in Canada in 1978 unless the New Zealand government changes its policy on sporting links with South Africa.

This warning was given in London, by John-Claude Ganga, secretary general of the Supreme Council for Sport in Africa.

Ganga said that complete isolation of South Africa by sportsmen and sportswomen throughout the world was the only way to change the policy on sport inside South Africa itself.

He said that the London-based South African non-racial Olympic Committee (SANROC) would fight any sporting activities in which South Africa took part, and would continue its fight to see that South Africa was expelled from all international sporting federations.

It would also try to isolate individual South African sportsmen, including those who played county cricket in Britain.

Defending the African boycott of the Montreal Olympic Games, Ganga said past experience of international sporting authorities showed that the only way to obtain any results was by force.

Ganga added: 'If the New Zealand government does not change its policy on its relation with South Africa in sport, no African country which is a member of the Commonwealth will take part in the Edmonton Games in 1978.'

He urged the government to refuse to give visas to South African teams wanting to visit Britain.

He also called on New Zealand to 'close the door' to South Africans who wanted to visit New Zealand.

A declaration that New Zealand did not support contact with South Africa would not be enough to satisfy SANROC. 'It is action we want. The time for talking is finished,' Ganga said.

Castleford hungry for success

ATTACK-CONSCIOUS Castleford are hungry for success after several lean years since their great cup triumphs and they hope to advance to the semi-finals of the Esso Yorkshire Cup this weekend by beating their old rivals Leeds.

Castleford coach Malcolm Reilly feels a new era is opening up for his famous club and they have the quality now to overcome Leeds this weekend.

Leeds, who have dropped and transfer-listed last season's Captain Keith Hepworth in favour of new signing Peter Banner from Featherstone, only just beat Bradford Northern in the first round whereas Castleford had an impressive win at Hull Kingston Rovers.

In the Forshaw's Lancashire Cup the top match features Salford at Warrington and the visitors will be strengthened by the return from holiday of Great Britain scrum half Steve Nash.

The former Featherstone international, who has kept fit this summer by helping with building alterations at The Willows and also by playing soccer, is probably one of the most exciting players in the game today.

Wayne Daniel will frighten English batsmen again next summer, this time for Middlesex

OUT AND

IN

THE EXCITING young West Indies pace bowler Wayne Daniel will play for Middlesex next year at the expense of another member of the touring party, Larry Gomes.

Gomes, the Trinidadian all-rounder, joined Middlesex in 1972. He played in two Tests this summer without much success.

A century against Gloucestershire this week took him to 1,322 runs on the tour.

New regulations allow county sides to play two overseas-born players per match and Middlesex have decided on Daniel and Rhodesian-born Norman Featherstone.

Daniel played in four Tests against England and has taken 50 wickets on the tour. The 20-year-old Barbadian was spotted in 1974 on a tour by the West Indies Young Cricketers.

Despite run-up problems, Daniel could develop into one of the best fast bowlers in the world.

Alan Ward has got the chop from Derbyshire, only four weeks after playing for England

ALAN WARD, back in the England Test team last month, was told by Derbyshire yesterday that he is no longer needed at the club.

This shock announcement came from Derbyshire secretary David Harrison who said that Ward, 29, was not being offered re-engagement terms.

He would only say that the decision was in the best interests of the club, who are languishing at the foot of the county table, and the player.

Ward has had a chequered career. He made his debut in 1966 and was capped in 1969, when he made the first of five appearances for England.

Three years ago he was involved in a sensational incident when he was sent off the field by his captain Brian Bolus for refusing to bowl against Yorkshire.

This season Ward has taken 36 wickets at an average of just under 22.

GREIG BACK FOR GAME TWO

TONY GREIG should be fit to lead England in the second Prudential Trophy International at Lord's today. He missed the opening game of the three match series with a badly bruised index finger of his right hand.

But he said yesterday: 'It's not too bad, and is coming along nicely. I'm pretty optimistic about playing.

The England selectors intend to play the other two members of the 14-strong squad who missed the six wickets defeat at Scarborough, Derek Randall and Robin Jackman.

Jackman's medium fast bowling might seem ideal for the fluent West Indies stroke-makers, but he has learnt much about containment, especially through bowling on the placid Oval pitch. But however England juggle their slender resources the brilliant West Indies seem sure to collect another £1,500 from this game and wrap up the series.

DERBY LOOK FOR REVENGE

HEARTS, Aberdeen, Celtic and Rangers are almost certain to be the Premier League qualifiers for the last eight of the Scottish League Cup.

With two matches to go, Hearts have a three point lead over Partick Thistle, in section one, Aberdeen are four points ahead of Ayr United in section two, Celtic are one point up on Dundee United in section three, and Rangers, the Cup holders, have a two point advantage over Hibs in section four.

As a result most of today's matches are purely academic and it is not surprising that in spite of the continued heat wave, attendances so far have been disappointing.

One of the best matches of the day could be at Motherwell, where Hearts need just one point to clinch section one. Motherwell, one of the sides from whom so much was expected, have still to win a game.

This could be their day to make a start.

Two Ms share a joke

FORMER England internationals Rodney Marsh and Bobby Moore share a joke during training at Craven Cottage yesterday. Moore is back in the Fulham side at Charlton while Marsh, like George Best, waits for Football League clearance.

ROUND-UP
by PAUL
FELDMAN

AS LIVERPOOL prepare for their third successive win against injury-hit Birmingham at St Andrews, the match-of-the-day is Derby's confrontation with Manchester United at the Baseball Ground.

Derby are looking for revenge over Manchester United for their FA Cup semi-final defeat last season 2-0.

Charlie George is back to help them. Sent off in the first game of the season, he has served his one-match ban.

Dave Mackay has brought Jeff Bourne into the attack after a summer in American football. With Bruce Rioch returning to his usual position in midfield, England star Colin Todd returns to the middle of the defence.

Full-back David Nish, one of the most cultured defenders in the game, will play if he can overcome his knee injury.

Manchester United, brimming with confidence after their mid-week win at Coventry, will be unchanged.

Tommy Docherty's boys seem back in their mood of last season which captured the imagination of millions of fans.

Derby are difficult to beat at home, but United could have the edge this time, though they took only one point off Derby last year.

Liverpool, the only First Division side with a 100-per-cent record, are unchanged again, although manager Bob Paisley brings in young striker David Fairclough in place of Under-23 mid-fielder Jimmy Case.

Birmingham, who drew their opening games against Manchester United and Leeds, will be without their £100,000 summer signing Gary Jones.

The former Everton winger has strained knee ligaments so Peter Withe, just recovered from a cartilage operation, is drafted into attack.

Howard Kendall, out of the mid-week game because of a groin injury, may return to the mid-field.

Under-23 winger Peter Barnes is recalled by Manchester City manager Tony Book for the home game with Stoke.

Barnes makes his first full appearance of the season because Brian Kidd is out with knee ligament damage.

Stoke boss Tony Waddington is taking no chances, and names a squad of 14 for the trip, including striker Ian Moores and full-back John Marsh, who returned from American football this week.

Queen's Park Rangers, taking time to find the form that made them challengers for the League title last season, may have to wait a little longer for their first points as England captain Gerry Francis and central defender Dave Webb are both out of the game at Ipswich.

Francis is still troubled by a back injury and Webb has ankle problems.

Allan Hunter, who missed Ipswich's two opening games with a leg injury, could be back in defence, although manager Bobby Robson leaves the final decision until just before the game.

Bobby McDonald, the 21 years old mid-field player signed by Coventry from Aston Villa this week, is drafted straight into the squad to face Leeds, at Highfield Road.

Billy Bremner, omitted at Birmingham on Tuesday, is in the Leeds party. There will be a late fitness test on Joe Jordan, the Scottish World Cup striker who missed the two opening games because of a knee injury, but his return may be further delayed.

Norwich manager John Bond, displeased by the 3-1 mid-week defeat at the hands of Arsenal, is ready to try youngsters Ian Davies and Doug Evans, at West Bromwich.

Mel Machin and Colin Sullivan are dropped and also out is Roger Gibbons.

GOLF

ANOTHER superb round of 69 put Martin Foster two strokes clear of the field after the second round of the Carrolls Irish Open Golf Championship at Portmarnock, yesterday.

The tall, powerful, 24-year-old Yorkshireman showed a clean pair of heels to his international rivals with his six-under-par total of 138.

His nearest challenger is Scotland's Brian Barnes, who also scored 69 for a total of 140, with the formidable Americans, Billy Casper (141) and Ben Crenshaw (142) strategically placed third and fourth.

Casper shot a 71 today and Crenshaw 69. Even though he gave a much improved performance, title favourite Gary Player, of South Africa, enjoyed little luck and slumped eight shots behind the leader.
