SECOND WRIT FOR CONTEMPT IS SERVED

A SECOND move to jail miners' president Arthur Scargill for contempt of court was made yesterday.

Papers drawn up for two Yorkshire scabs were served on the National Union of Mineworkers' leader at the union's Sheffield headquarters.

Both actions will be held in the High Court next Wednesday.

They could lead to the sequestration of the union's funds and the jailing of the entire executive.

Richard Slowe, lawyer for strike-breakers Bob Taylor and Ken Foulstone, said the new action was based on three alleged contempts. These involved:

- Remarks made by Scargill on Monday's BBC2 'Newsnight' programme — after he was served with documents relating to the first contempt move.

- Allegations against the NUM itself over a statement it issued endorsing Scargill's stand.

- Comments by Scargill on Thursday night, reported in yesterday's 'Times', in which he reaffirmed the strike as official.

On Thursday a judge adjourned the first contempt hearing to give Scargill and the union a chance to reconsider their position.

But Scargill has made it clear he will not be in court and insists that the strike remains official.

The injunctions granted by Mr Justice Nicholls barred the union and its officers from stating that the strike and pickets in Yorkshire were official and threatening to discipline scabs.

TORIES PLAN TO JAIL SCARGILL

They want to starve the miners back

Statement by the Political Committee of the Workers Revolutionary Party

THE TORY judiciary stands poised to jail miners' president Arthur Scargill next Wednesday and to seize the assets of the National Union of Mineworkers. All other elected NUM officials could also face imprisonment.

The legal decks were cleared for this onslaught on September 28 when the High Court declared the 30-week miners' strike was unlawful.

It is also the signal for an entirely new stage of police brutality against miners' picket lines. Make no mistake: the Bonapartist state will stop at nothing to PHYSI-CALLY destroy the militancy of the miners and their strike.

These are critical days. While the judiciary is ready to jail Scargill, next week's Tory Party conference in Brighton, with the aid of the police, is out to smash the miners' union and to drive unorganised starving miners back to work.

The police force, as this week's Police Federation conference underlined, is the political tool of Thatcher's Bonapartist state. Its purpose is to carry out Tory policy — the smashing of the NUM.

The world economic and political crisis of capitalism has intensified the economic plight of British capitalism and enormously aggravated the class struggle in the forefront of which is the seven-month-old miners' strike.

The deeper the crisis becomes, the more determined the Tory Bonapartist government is to inflame the class confrontation.

In the face of such Tory intransigence an all-out physical clash between the trade unions and the state is unavoidable.

For the government the most important item of expenditure is on the furtherance of the class war. Figures produced this week show it has already spent £3.5 billion in attempting to smash the miners' strike.

They are prepared to spend many billions of pounds more to finance a state of civil war.

The Tories must have this showdown with the miners if they are to smash the trade unions as a whole. It is an all-out confrontation to the end.

Either the working class smashes Tory Bonapartism and takes the power, or it is a Chilean-style police-military dictatorship as a prelude to fascism.

Emergency powers are ready to force the working-class movement into semi-legality. The dangers of the state's 'dirty tricks department' organising provocations are very real. Every class conscious worker should be on guard against such dangers.

Next week's Tory Party conference in Brighton will be, in effect, a mass rally for stepping up the class war. It will be in total contrast to the cowardly and hesitant proceedings at this week's Labour Party conference in Blackpool.

What buoyed the Tories more than anything this week was the decision by the Transport and General Workers Union leaders to withdraw their resolution supporting the NUM's defiance of the courts.

Reformism and class collaboration retard and hold back the development of the undefeated working class. The prime example is Liverpool where the 'Militant' fake left City Council is claiming a victory over the Tory government when no such victory in fact exists. It is just a post-

LLOYDS CHIEF IS 'CONCERNED'

SHARES in Lloyds Bank International slumped by 12p yesterday after publication of an internal report in which the chief executive described the return on assets as 'feeble'.

LBI is heavily committed in Latin America with loans which are increasingly non-performing.

Argentina, for example, is more than 90 days overdue on payments of about $800 million interest to banks around the world.

LBI's pre-tax profits dropped 42 per cent in the first half of this year and 85 per cent post-tax.

This was mainly due to the £36.5 million increase in the provision for bad debts.

The after-tax return on assets is just 0.05 per cent.

LBI chief executive Eric Whittle says in the memorandum that business should be increasing faster.

'It is of real concern that income has only risen by 2 per cent in sterling terms despite the 11 per cent fall in the value of sterling against the dollar,' he tells top staff.

The memo, published in yesterday's London 'Standard', says that LBI still has too many poor loans on its books.

'Credit assessment has been weak, as evidenced by the level of provisions, and must be improved.'

He says that bad debt losses in the first six months were 'unacceptably high'.

He warns that operating costs are soaring while income is static, and that cuts will have to be made.

LBI said yesterday it had tried to prevent publication of a document which had been 'improperly obtained'.

'Standard' city editor Anthony Hilton said:

'Someone in Lloyds Bank knew exactly what they were doing when they gave it to us. We did not steal it or anything like that.'

An LBI spokesman later added that the document was one of a regular series of internal briefings and for that reason its tone was 'strong and decisive'.

No movement on NACODS plan

THERE will be more talks tomorrow between the pit deputies' union NACODS and the Coal Board.

The union wants an independent arbitration body to decide pit closures.

But union president Ken Sampey said last night that there had been 'no movement at all' on the NACODS proposal by the NCB.

Both sides had a 2¼-hour meeting in London yesterday.

The union side then went into a separate room at Hobart House to discuss the situation.

Tory Energy Secretary Peter Walker has rejected any interference by an outside body in the affairs of the Coal Board.

MacGregor has apparently insisted that he would resign rather than have what he sees as the NCB's right to manage diluted.

Over 80 per cent of NACODS members have voted to strike over pit closures unless an agreement is reached with the NCB.

The full NCB met yesterday, with Ian MacGregor in the chair.

The NACODS proposals include a revision of the system for agreeing pit closures. An independent panel of adjudicators would be called in where there was a dispute.

Peter McNestry, NACODS general secretary, said the NCB yesterday made counter-proposals to the unions plans.

'We are going to study these counter-proposals and meet again on Sunday.'

He refused to be drawn on whether the deputies would strike if talks break down at the weekend.

NUM president Arthur Scargill and other miners' leaders are due to see officials of the ACAS service in London today.

It is reported that the NUM believes the pit deputies' proposals could form the basis for reopening negotiations with the Coal Board.

Tories plan to jail Scargill

ponement of the council crisis until 1985.

When it comes to mass action to prevent the jailing of 40 shipyard workers occupying a gas rig, this same 'Militant' is simply full of 'left' words.

'Left' words and paper victories are a centrist evasion for what must be the revolutionary mobilisation of the working class in the fight for jobs.

It is seen in their bleating call for a 24-hour General Strike which would not have the slightest impact on the Thatcher government. 'Militant's 24-hour strike call is nothing more than a cynical evasion of the real political tasks facing the working class.

We say that the demand for a General Strike must not be made into an empty slogan. It must not become an empty left gesture when Scargill and the miners' leaders are jailed and the NUM's funds seized.

The organisation of the indefinite General Strike against the Bonapartist government and the state is inseparable from the organisation of the struggle for power.

Immediately, all those unions who say they support the miners' strike must come out on strike with the miners.

To win the miners' strike, the working class must defeat the state. If it is strong enough to do this, it is strong enough to take the power and smash the capitalist state.

The struggle for workers' power cannot be led by trade unions, the reformist Labour Party or the class-collaborationist Stalinist Communist Party.

It can only be led by the party of the socialist revolution, the Workers Revolutionary Party.

For all those industrial and professional workers who are looking for the way forward to defeat the Tory dictatorship and establish a socialist Britain, we say:

● Join the Workers Revolutionary Party and work on behalf of the party in its industrial department, the All Trades Unions Alliance!

● Read the News Line every day and help build its circulation. Attend the College of Marxist Education and be trained as a revolutionary fighter!

● Hands off the miners' leaders and the National Union of Mineworkers!

● Organise an immediate indefinite General Strike against Thatcher's Bonapartist regime and the state!

● Organise the struggle for power for the establishment of a Workers Revolutionary Government!

Coventry miner freed from jail

LES SYKES, of Coventry colliery, was released yesterday morning from Winson Green prison — the first Warwickshire miner to be jailed.

Word went around the 1,200 prisoners very quickly that he was inside, Sykes told News Line yesterday.

Prisoners, and even prison warders, were in complete support of the miners' strike.

'It hasn't defeated me at all,' he said. 'Quite the opposite. Every night I lay there I thought — even if this were a six-month or year's sentence — it would only make me more determined.

'Yesterday I was called in for an interview with the governor. He asked me if now I intended to go back to work. I said "no way!" The only time I'll go back is when Arthur Scargill says "Get your boots on".

'He said: "Where will you go when you're released?" I said: "Straight back on the picket line".'

Price of strikebreaking

A SCAB was killed by a fall of coal from an underground storage bunker at Wolstanton colliery in north Staffordshire yesterday.

Haulage worker Jack

Whithurst, 56, had apparently been trying to clear a blockage in the bunker 1,000 metres below the surface when the accident happened.

T&G retreat turning point in Blackpool

JOHN SPENCER, our Political Correspondent assesses the Labour Party conference

THE POLICE went into action on the opening day of the Labour Party conference last Monday.

They struck in Birkenhead, not Blackpool, but the political message was unmistakable. The arrest of workers occupying the Cammell Laird shipyard in defence of their jobs, and their imprisonment without trial for contempt of court spelt out the reality of Thatcher's Bonapartist rule.

Among the prisoners are officials of two of the country's most powerful unions — a full-time officer of the T&GWU and the regional chairman of the GMBATU boilermakers' section.

But neither David Bassett nor Moss Evans felt any need to bring the issue to the conference floor, although they were lobbied throughout the week by workers from the shipyard and local Labour Party delegates.

Bassett's only concession to this agitation was to issue a two-paragraph statement in the form of a press release four days after the event. This was issued as a result of a GMBATU executive council meeting. Evans said nothing in public at all.

Delegates concerned about the developments at Cammell Laird believe there were two reasons for the union leaders' reticence. They were reluctant to upset party leader Kinnoch and the right wing by associating Labour with so-called 'lawbreakers'.

Equally they knew that if the issue went to the floor of the conference, delegates would have supported demands for militant action.

Evans also played a central role in a manoeuvre around the more highly-charged issue of the threat to jail the president of the National Union of Mineworkers.

Hours after the first of the Cammell Laird men were jailed, Arthur Scargill was served with a writ.

And the T&GWU delegation tabled an emergency motion. It deplored the way the writ had been served inside the conference hall and wanted the party to associate itself with Scargill's contempt of the High Court.

Kinnoch called for legal advice as soon as he saw the motion. Not surprisingly he was told that the conference could be held in contempt by the judge, as could party officials.

Cover

The Labour leader immediately ran for cover. So did the trade union leaders. They found a variety of pretexts for their own cowardly refusal to join the miners in fighting the state.

All Wednesday morning the general secretaries of the major unions — Evans, Bassett, Jimmy Knapp of the NUR, Rodney Bickerstaffe of NUPE, and Terry Duffy of the AUEW engineers with others — were holding their own conference.

They were whispering together in groups at the back of the Winter Gardens conference hall, and trooping up and down the back stairs to private meetings in smoke-filled rooms.

Eventually Derek Gladwyn, right-wing chairman of the conference arrangements' committee, was wheeled out with a formula to cover-up the reactionary manoeuvre.

He told the conference that the miners' strike had already been discussed and the party had given full support to the NUM.

It would therefore be wrong for conference to re-open the issue.

Instead of putting the motion, Evans had agreed behind the scenes to make a statement concentrating on the most superficial aspect of the whole affair — the fact that a 'Daily Express' photographer recorded the serving of the writ.

As a consequence, delegates had no opportunity to express any collective view on the central question — the onslaught against the NUM and its leadership by the Bonapartist judiciary.

This was a turning point for the entire conference. It signalled the complete subservience of the Labour leadership and the right-wing bureaucracy to the capitalist state and exposed the emptiness of all their left-sounding words during Monday's debate on the coal strike.

Scargill replied directly to this cowardice and treachery on Thursday night.

He said: 'We have come too far, we have suffered too much for there to be any compromise with either the judiciary or the government. We will accept the consequences of our actions because it is more important to stand by one's class and to stand by one's members than to cave in and accept the decision either of an unelected judge, or the dictate of a government who can't even spell the word democracy.'

£8,000 Monthly Fund Action needed now!

THE Tories are doing everything possible to break the resistance of the miners. Wednesday, the NUM leadership faces jail and all its funds seized. On the picket lines, the violence of the police has increased so that many pickets are brutally hurt and hospitalised. It is all-out war and no respite.

Only the News Line has spoken out loud and clear. We say the miners must not remain alone against the Tories and the state. Now it is urgent to organise the General Strike to bring this hated government down and establish in its place a Workers Revolutionary Government.

Hospital workers rally

STRIKING Cambridge hospital workers are holding a mass rally and demonstration in the city today to build support for their fight against privatisation.

The strike at Addenbrooke's hospital, Cambridge, continued to build up momentum yesterday, as catering staff, porters and sterile supplies staff stayed out in support of domestics.

The cleaners came out on Monday against their new private employers, OCS Limited.

Then management provoked a walk-out of porters and catering staff on Thursday when they announced that porters working to rule in support of the domestics would only be given half pay.

Serve

There is no catering at all and volunteers are having to serve meals to patients.

John Madeira, a member of the health union COHSE and a shop steward in the catering section, told News Line: 'We came out not only for the domestics but also because of the management dictating to staff without going about things democratically.'

'We live in a free country and we're not prepared to take this nonsense from management. They're talking about us breaking TUC guidelines, but it isn't us who's breaking the rules, but management.'

'What do they expect us to do? We're not animals. We want to be treated like human beings.'

Offer

Porter Wally Hammond was also on the picket line. 'I am out because of the offer that the cleaners have had,' he told News Line. 'If they are going to have their hours cut and their nationally-agreed conditions scrapped, then the same thing could happen to us.'

'I feel that management action on this occasion is going too far. In the past they have accepted us working to rule but now they are saying we'll only get paid 50 per cent and this is why we have walked out.'

Today's rally and demonstration assemblies at 10.30 a.m. at Parker's Piece park.

NEW MOVE ON CAMMELL LAIRD JAILING

THE JAILING of 37 Cammell Laird shipyard workers will be challenged in Sir John Donaldson's Court of Appeal on Monday by the Official Solicitor.

This legal relic has been brought into play to try and calm widespread anger at the jailing of the men who were struggling to defend their jobs.

BY OUR OWN REPORTER

All members of the occupation committee at the Birkenhead shipyard were taken to Walton Jail this week to serve 28 days for contempt of Mr Justice Glidewell's court.

The Official Solicitor acts for defendants who cannot, or will not, look after their own legal interests.

The last time he was used in a major political-industrial struggle was when the engineers' union refused to pay massive fines imposed by Donaldson's now defunct National Industrial Relations Court.

Picketing continued at Cammell Laird's for the second day since the arrest and imprisonment of the 37. This time there was a stronger presence of Cammell Laird's workers.

Decision

The men's determination has been strengthened by the decision of their union, GMBATU, which represents 35 of the 37 class war prisoners, to call a mass demonstration in Liverpool at a date to be fixed.

GMBATU general secretary David Basnett described the action of British Shipbuilders as 'unnecessary and vindictive' and the action of the courts in jailing the trade unionists as something to be 'utterly condemned'.

A further statement was issued yesterday by No.22 district of the Confederation of Shipbuilding and Engineering Unions (CSEU) over the signature of district secretary D.S. Gough.

It deprecates the jailing of the occupation committee by the courts at the behest of British Shipbuilders and expresses on behalf of the national and local officers of the CSEU its 'deep revulsion and alarm at this development'.

Continue

The GMBATU advises that the dispute continue and the picket lines remain official and to be respected by all affiliated unions.

'The work is in dispute and should not be worked upon by any member of an affiliated union.'

'We wish to remind all that the agreed policy of the CSEU as decided at numerous delegate conferences at Newcastle — at CSEU annual conferences and at the annual conference of affiliated unions — has consistently been that compulsory redundancy should be opposed and workers who take action to resist compulsory redundancy must be supported.'

It reports on strong support from other trade unions in the major shipyards. It finally calls upon 'all members of all affiliated unions not to cross the GMBATU picket line'.

Rumoured

It is strongly rumoured that members of the Prison Officers Association (the warders) met recently to discuss whether the Cammell Laird's prisoners should or should not be in prison.

The decision was in favour of imprisonment but by a majority of only two votes.

TENANTS from Lewisham, south-east London, joined councillors in a visit to the Department of the Environment yesterday to demand more money for the borough's housing. A major part of the council's housing policy has been the demolition and rebuilding of sub-standard estates. They have now found themselves in the position of having half-completed projects which have ground to a halt through central government cuts, leaving the tenants in intolerable conditions. On other estates the council has not even been able to get permission from the DoE to start work.

Sales gimmick

TORY-controlled Wandsworth council has launched a £10,000 competition gimmick in a bid to encourage more tenants to buy their council homes.

The council has already sold off 5,000 homes from its housing stock since 1980 when the Tory government's 'right to buy' law was introduced. Of these only 2,600 were to sitting tenants.

In 1983 alone, the council profited by £16 million from home sales.

Tenants who make applications to buy before the end of this year can enter the competition in which they are asked to think up a slogan to promote the sell-off programme.

Housing crisis ahead

BRITAIN faces a serious housing shortage within the next ten years, a leading economic forecaster predicted yesterday.

James Morrell, of the Oxford Centre for Management Studies, told the annual conference of the Royal Institute of Chartered Surveyors in York: 'There is a huge potential housing problem just around the corner.'

'The present rate of housebuilding is running at under half the peak in the 1960s. An influx of young people into the workforce, coupled with a greater life expectancy for the elderly, will create a surge in demand for family homes and for sheltered housing for the elderly in the next ten years.'

Phone charges up

TELEPHONE calls are to cost more from November 1, British Telecom announced yesterday.

The charge for each dialled unit is increased from 4.4p to 4.7p.

The minimum cost of a call from a pay phone will be 10p.

Crisps theft jailing anger

RELATIVES and friends of a teenage boy are angry and appalled that he should be sentenced to three years in custody for stealing two boxes of crisps.

Edward Tyrell, aged 17, was involved in a scuffle with Sir Trevor Jones, the leader of the Liberals on the City Council, when the offence took place.

There were shouts from the public gallery at Liverpool Crown Court on Thursday as the sentence was delivered.

'It's disgusting. Three years for a box of crisps. This is political,' shouted one man.

Tyrell admitted stealing two boxes of crisps worth £5.78 after using force on Jones.

The scuffle broke out when Jones tried to stop some youths taking the boxes of crisps from the back of his van.

The court heard that Tyrell told police: 'We didn't think he would try to stop us. But he came on strong for an old man.'

In a statement Tyrell said he and other youths threw stones at Jones as he unloaded his van outside his chandler's business. They looked inside the van and saw the crisps.

He said: 'I know Sir Trevor Jones from the telly. I called him a fascist because, in my opinion, he is one.'

He added: 'A scuffle broke out. Trevor came towards me. I nearly had a heart attack. I didn't expect him to fight back.'

Tyrell grabbed two boxes but only managed to get one over a nearby wall. He said: 'It all went badly wrong. Trevor Jones took off and I didn't think he would have.'

Another youth, Brian Carney, 17, who denied the same charge, was cleared by the jury.

Carney said he was watching television at the time of the incident.

THE British Museum is 'gravely under-funded' and needs more money to maintain the standards which visitors expect, a trustees' reports says. There have been some 'spectacular' missed buying opportunities over the last three years.

Deportation plan

THE Home Office is threatening to deport a young Wandsworth mother to Ghana. Georgina Buckman who was born in Ghana has lived in England for the past nine years.

She said she would have no means of supporting herself in Ghana and would be forced to leave her two school children who were born in Britain in the care of Wandsworth council.

A campaign against the deportation is supported by Battersea Labour MP Alf Dubbs and local councillors.

The campaign committee is holding a public meeting on Monday at the Court House Community Centre, Garrett Lane, Wandsworth at 7.45 p.m.

REPORTS FROM JOHN SPENCER AND BEN

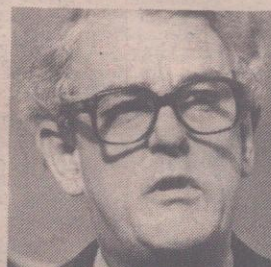

'Belgrano' needs a full public inquiry

THE Labour Party yesterday backed a call for a public inquiry into the sinking of the 'Belgrano' during the war with Argentina. Tam Dalyell, MP, who was given a rousing welcome as he came to the rostrum, said the inquiry was needed because 'ministers and the Prime Minister have told identifiable lies, and we have to call them to account'.

Dalyell called on a future Labour government to release the 'Crown Jewels', the document drawn up by Whitehall on the instruction of Defence Secretary Michael Heseltine and detailing all the messages surrounding the sinking of the 'Belgrano'.

But this demand, and a call for an early debate in parliament on the 'Belgrano' affair before the trial opens against civil servant Clive Ponting for leaking documents about the incident, were ignored by executive speaker Roy Hattersley.

Hattersley defended the war, saying: 'I have always believed that the annexation of the Falklands by the Argentine junta had to be resisted. But our proper response to that act of aggression does not mean that Fortress Falklands can be sustained forever.

But other delegates were highly critical of the conduct of the war, if not of the war itself. Dick

EILEEN MacDONALD

Jones, Chelsea, said the Labour Party had a duty 'to expose the malevolence of the 'Belgrano' sinking.

Referring to revelations that nuclear weapons were in the war zone, he said that the 'Belgrano' incident proved that Prime Minister Thatcher was not fit to control nuclear weapons. 'I don't think Margaret Thatcher is fit to control a pen knife,' he said.

Jim Slater, general secretary of the NUS seamen's union, said it was essential that the Labour Party got to the bottom of the scandal over the 'Belgrano'. He said he wanted to know who authorised the nuclear submarine 'Conqueror' to return to the scene of the 'Belgrano' sinking when its escort ships were trying to rescue survivors.

Eileen MacDonald, Livingstone, said the war and the 'Belgrano' sinking proved that the Tory government could not be trusted with nuclear weapons.

Block vote used to keep troops in Ulster

LABOUR PARTY leaders yesterday came under attack for their support of the imperialist occupation of the north of Ireland by British troops.

But while the conference rejected the executive's support for the non-jury Diplock courts, the union block vote overwhelmingly defeated a call for the withdrawal of British troops.

Martin Guinan, Blackburn, said the record of the Labour Party in the north of Ireland was one of shame. He asked why the Labour Party should take the part of the 'machine of oppression', and stated: 'We are the imperialists when we play the role of imperialism'.

He said the struggle of the miners in Britain was opening the eyes of the British people to the role of British troops in the north of Ireland.

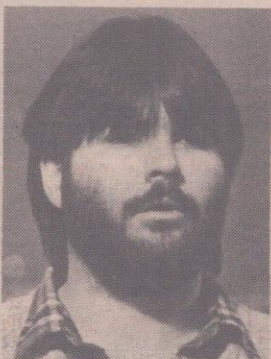

'Perhaps we will never again equate the violence of the oppressed to the violence of the oppressor,' he said. 'Perhaps we will realise that a nation that enslaves another will never itself be free.'

Andy Bruce, Basingstoke, said the presence of British troops in the north of Ireland was a fundamental part of the problems there.

'There will continue to be bloodshed so long as the British army is there propping up the cause of the problem — the division of Ireland. The troops should get out now and let the Irish determine their own lives,' he said.

ANDY BRUCE

Moving the resolution demanding an end to the non-jury Diplock courts, Hugh Atkinson, Croydon, warned that the methods of intimidation, torture and harassment being practised in the north of Ireland were being brought to Britain in the form of the Police Bill.

And he warned that it was only a matter of time before plastic bullets were used against British workers.

Celia Tredget, Hackney, told delegates of the humiliating strip search practised every day on the women prisoners in Armagh jail.

David Barber, Witney, said the Labour Party must learn to be ashamed of what it had done in the north of Ireland. He urged the conference to support the withdrawal of British troops 'and take a bold step to bring a just settlement in Ireland that much closer'.

Ian Massey, Eastbourne, said the role of the British government in the north of Ireland served to continue divisions between Catholic and Protestant workers when both sections of the community had shown their desire to fight the Thatcher government through their joint support of the miners and the health workers' dispute in 1982.

But Sheffield MP Martin Flannery came to the aid of the executive when he claimed that Republican leader Gerry Adams had told him there should be no withdrawal of troops until the RUC was disarmed. Flannery used this argument to oppose the withdrawal of troops from Ireland.

Speaking for the executive, Alex Kitson, T&GWU deputy general secretary, said the leadership only supported the 'gradual withdrawal from particular areas' of British troops.

And he added: 'We also believe that until security can be left safely in the hands of local forces — and that those forces have the support of both communities — then the troops will have to stay.'

RUDDER ON THE LABOUR PARTY CONFERENCE'S FINAL DAY

DEFEND GCHQ UNIONS

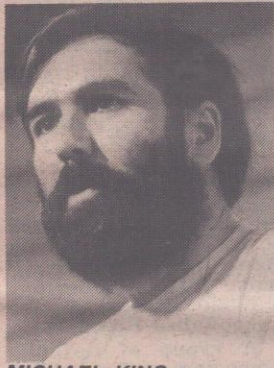

PETER EVANS

Only way to defend all rights

LABOUR Party delegates yesterday unanimously backed motions supporting GCHQ civil servants and opposing the Tory attacks on civil rights.

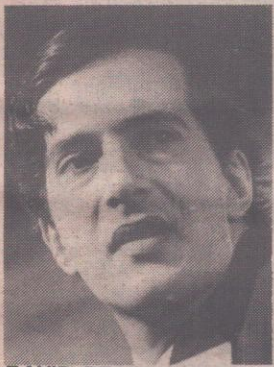

Peter Evans, Norwich North, demanded that the Labour Party reinstate full trade union rights for the Cheltenham workers, and added that any 'cut-down rights' planned by the Labour leaders must be rejected.

MICHAEL KING

Michael King, a civil servant from Cheltenham, said the conference must commit itself to reversing the attack on GCHQ workers. 'You must give those fighting over there,' he said, pointing to a delegation of trade unionists from GCHQ in the conference gallery, 'your wholehearted support'.

Moving the motion defending civil rights, lawyer David Bean said the miners' strike had revealed the extent of the attacks on basic rights under the Thatcher government.

DAVID BEAN

A national police force had been created which was totally unaccountable and there had been political interference in the courts. The Labour Party must sound the alarm and rally the communities in defence of their rights, he said.

Tony Miller, Bury St Edmunds, said complacency about the attacks on civil rights in Britain was attributable to the failure of the Labour Party in the past to address itself to the violation of rights in South Africa and the north of Ireland.

Marsha Singh, Bradford, said the issue of civil rights was particularly important for the black community who were daily being harassed and victimised under the Tories' racist immigration laws.

Bryan Stanley, general secretary of the telephone engineers' union POEU, said there was now definite evidence of widespread use of phone-tapping during the miners' strike. He demanded a public inquiry and challenged the government to prove that it had not illegally tapped the phones of the miners.

Barry Norwin, Hornchurch, Sue Knowles, Solihull, and Kim Burridge, Kingston, successfully moved a motion demanding the right of reply in the national press to any lies printed about the trade union and labour movement.

Break ties with South Africa

CONFERENCE voted overwhelmingly in favour of breaking off diplomatic relations with South Africa, a move the national executive had sought to avoid.

The vote came despite a plea by right-wing MP Gwyneth Dunwoody, who said the British Embassy should be kept open as 'an outpost, a listening post and a means of putting pressure'.

One of the speakers in the debate, Niall Sookoo from Lewisham, demanded the resignation of a Labour MP who he claimed had business links with South Africa.

Appeal

But despite an appeal from chairman Eric Heffer, he refused to name the MP concerned.

Barbara Switzer of AUEW/TASS accused the Thatcher government of aligning Britain with the South African regime.

Joe Torney, seconding, complained about the sale of South African goods in Co-Op stores. 'Rid the Co-Op shelves of this pestilence,' he urged.

Larry Smith, for the T&GWU, pointed out that Britain is South Africa's closest trading partner. He described the regime's constitutional changes as 'a house of cards — an empty confidence trick'.

Unanimous bile against Iranians

AYATOLLAH KHOMEINY of Iran was blamed at the Labour Party conference yesterday for everything from sheep-slaughter in Wimbledon to the threat of global nuclear war.

The violent abuse of the Iranian revolution was launched by Leeds delegate Maisie Eade, who moved a resolution condemning the Iranian government and supporting the counter-revolutionary National Council of Resistance headed by Massoud Rajavi.

She blamed Iran for prolonging the war and referred in respectful tones to the willingness of the Iraqi dictator Saddam Hussein to talk peace.

But her efforts were overshadowed by Sid Tierney of USDAW, who replied on behalf of the NEC. Tierney's prejudices against Islam were quite shamelessly paraded.

'Khomeiny is supposed to be a religious leader, but I ask you in the name of what god could such savagery be contemplated?' he said.

He added: 'A nuclear bomb dropped in the name of Allah or any other god would be no less devastating.'

Bill Deal of the Fire Brigades Unions, seconding the motion, seemed confused about the details of the situation. At one point he accused the Shah of refusing to come to the conference table.

Popatlal Jariwala from Feltham said both Iran and Iraq had oppressive and autocratic regimes, while Barry Kay from Dagenham said neither allowed any human rights.

George Robertson, MP for Hamilton, who is the Labour foreign affairs spokesman, accused the Tory government of hypocrisy for delivering to Iran vessels ordered during the Shah's regime.

BOTHA'S BANDITS RAISE DEMANDS

BY A FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT

THE SOUTH African regime is boasting of being the 'peacemaker' of southern Africa for having arranged the ceasefire between the Mozambique government and the counter-revolutionary Mozambique Resistance Movement (MNR).

The ceasefire is more like a declaration of surrender by President Samora Machel's government.

It places the fortunes of the Mozambique revolution in the hands of Pretoria and the hirelings of the MNR.

MNR spokesman Jorge Correia said in Lisbon yesterday: 'Renamo believes peace is possible, but we will never accept a ceasefire unless we obtain a pledge of change in the political system and the formation of a government of national reconciliation.'

If no political agreement was reached, the MNR would take the battle into Mozambique's main cities and provoke the total collapse of Machel's government, he added.

Gloating

Johannesburg radio has been gloating over this week's ceasefire announced by President P.W. Botha and his Foreign Minister Pik Botha after a week of secret talks in Pretoria.

The broadcast said: 'With South Africa having paved the way for peace between the Mozambican government and the resistance movement, Renamo, allegations that South Africa is a destabilising force on the sub-continent have been once again disproved.'

Rather as the dominant regional power, it has been at the forefront of moves to bring conciliation, peace and stability to the whole of southern Africa, regardless of the political differences of its component states.'

What this cynical propaganda leaves out is the fact that Pretoria started the MNR eight years ago to wage war on the Mozambique revolution.

Pretoria's hypocritical claims have been given credibility, however, by Major-General Jacinto Veloso, Mozambique's Economic Affairs Minister and chief negotiator at the ceasefire talks.

Signed

On returning to Maputo, Veloso told reporters that the agreement represented the 'full implementation' of the Nkomati accords signed between Mozambique and South Africa last March.

Veloso said: 'We worked intensively with the government of South Africa in order to find ways of ending violence and establish peace and tranquility in our country.'

He praised Pik Botha saying that he had

'actively committed himself to the search for solutions aimed at rapidly ending the acts of violence in Mozambique. This is a positive point which we view favourably'.

He made the extraordinary claim that one of the victories in the ceasefire agreement was that the MNR rebels 'recognise the legitimate authority of our state and government'.

But MNR spokesmen in Pretoria and Lisbon have indicated that even Machel's presidency is not safe. Correia said yesterday recognition of Machel was merely accepting reality. But this would last only until general elections were held.

The MNR intends to use the forum of the ceasefire commission which meets next week to press their political demands for the establishment of a power-sharing government.

One senior MNR leader said his organisation was capable of continuing the war indefinitely if its demands were not accepted by Machel.

When P.W. Botha and Machel signed the Nkomati agreement on March 16 it was supposed to end the supply of arms to the MNR and wind up the eight-year civil war.

But while Machel faithfully kicked out the African National Congress (ANC), the Pretoria regime, entirely predictably, continue to give arms and logistical support to the counter-revolutionaries who now control more of Mozambique than the official armed forces.

Rizzoli empire falls

MILAN — A consortium supported by Italy's industrial and financial elite is poised to acquire the country's most prestigious newspaper, the 'Corriere della Sera'.

The paper has been under court-appointed management since 1982, when the Rizzoli publishing house, which controls it, nearly went bankrupt.

Antonio Pizzi, one of the magistrates responsible for finding a buyer for the Rizzoli empire, said its former owners, Angelo Rizzoli, had accepted an offer from the consortium to buy out his remaining 40-per-cent stake.

The consortium, headed by a finance company owned by Fiat, the Pirelli tyre company and a state-owned merchant bank, has offered to pay some 130 billion lire ($70 million) to buy up and recapitalise Rizzoli.

A group of Catholic financiers and a holding company owned by Montedison, Italy's biggest chemical firm, are also involved.

Offers to buy the 'Corriere' have also been made by two other rival groups of businessmen, one of them believed to be sponsored by Prime Minister Bettino Craxi's Socialist Party.

Founded over a century ago, the 'Corriere's' plunge into trouble is blamed on Rizzoli's association with the now-defunct Italian bank Banco Ambrosiano.

REYKJAVIK — Iceland's right-wing government was in the grip of a general strike yesterday as more than 17,000 civil servants stayed away from work in protest against soaring taxes and low wages.

Fatah makes call for unity

ARAFAT

BEIRUT — Yassir Arafat's Fatah movement has called on the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine to abide by the Aden-Algiers agreements between the two organisations.

The Aden and Algiers summits resulted in a common programme of action between Fatah, George Habash's PFLP, the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine, the Palestine Liberation Front and the Palestine Communist Party.

But under pressure from the Syrian regime and the Soviet bureaucracy, some PFLP leaders have begun making political attacks on Fatah and the PLO chairman.

A Fatah Central Committee spokesman said that the PFLP statements which emanate from Damascus can only be interpreted as 'an attempt by the PFLP to dissociate itself from the Aden-Algiers agreements in order to satisfy non-Palestinian desires'.

Plans

He added: 'This contradicts the efforts to preserve the vitality and efficiency of Palestinian national unity and the PLO's legitimate institutions in a period which is full of hostile plans that are emerging both from Richard Murphy's trips and from other secret and semi-secret contacts concerning developments in the region.'

'We hope that the PFLP will stop such statements, bravely announce its commitments to the Aden-Algiers agreements and act accordingly so that the Fatah Central Committee will not take measures that would be necessitated by the continuation of such statements.'

Fatah Central Committee member Mahmoud Abbas (Abu Mazin) said the statement 'came in reply to occasional unfriendly statements by some PFLP officials'.

He told the Kuwait news agency KUNA: 'Often from time to time we were taken by surprise by statements made by some PFLP officials or by articles carried by "Al-Hadaf", its organ, containing much abuse against Fatah and brother Yassir Arafat.'

'And this has happened despite the differences in viewpoints between us and the PFLP on more than one issue, we did not allow ourselves even once to resort to abusing the officials and the standpoint of the Popular Front.'

U.S. BANK FAILURE THREATENED CRASH

WASHINGTON — The unaided collapse of Continental Illinois National Bank would have weakened the US banking system and many companies would have collapsed, a federal official said yesterday.

'The ramifications would have been catastrophic,' Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) chairman William Isaac said.

Isaac strongly disagreed with House of Representatives banking committee chairman Fernand St Germain that the federal regulators had used absurd figures and were over-pessimistic in rescuing the bank.

The FDIC's intervention led to a panic takeover by the government — the first nationalisation in US history — in a complete departure from President Reagan's much-vaunted 'theories' of a 'free economy'.

'There could have been widespread instability throughout the banking system. There would be corporate bankruptcies throughout the land,' Isaac said.

Told

He was reiterating what federal banking officials told the House of Representatives banking committee last month.

Then it was said that many of the 179 US banks with deposits in Continental would have crashed if the government had not stepped in to avert a national and possibly worldwide financial crisis.

BY A FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT

This was the main reason they put together a $4.5 billion package to save Continental earlier this year, they said.

But committee chairman Fernand St Germain said an analysis by committee staff of FDIC figures concluded that no more than six small banks might have closed if Continental had failed.

St Germain, opening further hearings on the bank's affairs on Thursday, said figures used by federal regulators were 'absurd'.

'At most — and this stretches a pessimistic scenario pretty far — maybe a half dozen institutions would have been on the edge of a failure line,' he said.

Committee staff members said the six banks that might have failed had total assets of $385 million and would have suffered losses of $18 million.

This was in contrast with claims by the federal agencies that 66 or more banks might have failed following a Continental collapse with losses of more than $1 billion.

Catastrophic

Issacs said in an earlier statement to the committee: 'Closing the bank and paying off insured depositors could have had catastrophic consequences for other banks and the entire economy.'

The Continental Illinois crash, in fact, posed a serious threat to the West European banking system in particular and all the dependent economies of the semi-colonial world.

It was not a trading bank in the normal sense of the word but a corporate giant that dealt in speculative monopoly finance capital — multi-billion dollar trusts and cash transactions that ran into more than $8.5 billion in overnight financing daily.

Under the rules which Continental operated its London subsidiary, a crash would have put the onus on the British Tory government of raising the cash to meet Continental's commitments in Britain.

The collapse of the British gold bullion dealer Johnson Matthey and its subsequent takeover by the Bank of England this week is the tip of the iceberg of the state of the world capitalist banking system.

Argentina, Peru loans write-off

WASHINGTON — US bank regulators are 'downgrading' the credit-rating of Argentine and Peruvian loans this month.

They said yesterday only such a high-level political decision was likely to avert such a move, since conditions called for loans to both countries to be declared 'sub-standard'.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation's announcement is another shock to Wall Street finance speculators, alarmed this week by fears over the stability of the American banking system.

Those fears were sparked by First Chicago and Security Pacific of Los Angeles making 'loss-loan provisions' this week: an euphemism for writing off 'non-performing' loans.

FDIC officials have ordered the banks to make these so-called provisions to guarantee they will have the money to substitute for an impending default.

The Federal Reserve (Central Bank) and other regulatory agencies are meeting this month as the Inter-Agency Country Exposure Review Committee to vet international credit ratings.

It is a crisis meeting to plan responses in the unavoidable event of a major default.

At issue are about $8 billion of Argentina's $45.5 billion foreign debt and a big slice of the $13 billion in international loans Peru owes US banks.

Jittery

Peru has ceased to carry out economic reforms agreed with the International Monetary Fund in April and US bankers have become jittery over the fact the loans are teetering on the edge of default.

Argentina is more than 90 days overdue (the officially accepted period) on payments of about $800 million interest and has 'rolled over' (told the banks it will pay later) a $750-million bridging loan from September to January.

Communist Party save Andreotti

ROME — The opposition Stalinist Communist Party saved Italian Foreign Minister Giulio Andreotti from a censure vote in parliament yesterday.

The vote had demanded Andreotti's resignation over alleged ties with jailed Sicilian financier Michele Sindona.

A motion put by two small leftist parties, the Radicals and Proletarian Democracy, charged that Andreotti had protected the bankrupt financier in the 1960s and 1970s.

It was defeated by 199 votes to 101 in the Chamber of Deputies, when 154 Stalinist deputies, who called the motion a propaganda move, abstained.

Andreotti, a right-wing Christian Democrat, who has been Italy's prime minister five times, was not present.

Parliamentary commentators said the figures in the secret ballot showed that about 50 deputies from parties of the ruling coalition had voted for the motion.

The left-wing daily 'La Repubblica' called this an 'unequivocal message' for Andreotti.

Sindona rose to power in the late 1960s but banks he owned in Italy and the United States crashed with huge debts in 1974.

He was jailed for 25 years in New York in 1980 for fraud and conspiracy

Austerity measures 'not enough'

LUXEMBOURG — EEC commission officials have rejected as insufficient austerity drives by the Spanish and Portuguese Socialist Party governments to gain entry into the trading bloc by January 1986.

Wracked by insoluble cash problems among the present 10 members, the EEC demands on the two non-member economies are tantamount to an ultimatum that Madrid and Lisbon impose a back-breaking slump for the benefit of the bankrupted bloc.

EEC officials have told Spanish Foreign Minister

Fernando Moran and Portuguese Finance Minister Ernani Lopes their entry could be delayed if they did not meet their Draconian demands.

Some of the demands are:

● That Portugal increase its annual quota of imported sugar from the EEC. Portugal, which at present imports about 300,000 tonnes, agreed on Wednesday to raise its quota by 70,000 tonnes a year for seven years.

● That Spain 'control' its olive oil production. Moran was told that the cost of more than $594 million in EEC subsidies to the industry was excessive and that Spain must further cut production as a condition of entry.

● That Spain slash industrial tariffs to permit increased access of EEC commodities. The demand is that Madrid cut down its average 25 per cent tariff rates to the equivalent of the EEC's 10 per cent average.

Lopes's lame response after the meeting on Wednesday was: 'Portugal is prepared to continue its part of the agreement to negotiate but the community has not kept its part.'

'The community must make an effort and Portugal is in a position to insist on it.'

IMF triggers chaos

KUALA LUMPUR — The Malaysian ringgit fluctuated erratically against the dollar yesterday as rumours of an imminent devaluation swept the currency markets.

Commercial bankers were divided on the possibility of a devaluation and there was no comment from Bank Negara (Central Bank).

Traders said the Central Bank appeared to have intervened to support the ringgit, which closed at 2.40 to the dollar.

The market was affected by rumours that the government was under pressure from the International Monetary Fund to review the ringgit's value before the national budget due in two weeks.

Bid to speed up spending Bill

WASHINGTON — A $500 billion spending bill was approved late on Thursday after 500,000 workers were sent home after being told to 'secure their desks and prepare for shutdown'.

Senate Republican leader Howard Baker had threatened not to extend an emergency spending Bill for expenses from the start of the financial year on October 1.

It was a ploy to force

Congress to move the Bill on terms demanded by the Republican-controlled Senate.

The Democrats-controlled House of Representatives had demanded that all aid to counter-revolutionary forces against Nicaragua be stopped.

Republicans have also prohibited the use of the 1985 US contribution to the United Nations for an 8 per cent salary rise for UN employees.

Stalinism and the capitalist state

THE Labour Party leaders are not the only bureaucratic apparatus covering up for the capitalist state's attack on the miners and the whole working class.

When an editorial in the 'Morning Star' begins with the words 'Marxists have always maintained...' you know that an appalling act of Stalinist treachery is about to be committed.

Yesterday's editorial — under the headline 'Police and courts exposed for what they are' — was no exception.

It began: 'Marxists have always maintained that the institutions of the capitalist state are not neutral and above class, but on the contrary serve the interests of the capitalists.' ('Morning Star', October 5, 1984).

Stalinism is a conscious counter-revolutionary force in the workers' movement, and is a sworn enemy of the principles of Marxism.

The objective of the editorial was not to show how to fight the capitalist state, but instead to justify collaboration with its instruments of oppression like the national riot police force.

It took the form of swinging in behind the reformist Labour Party and its leaders, whose first loyalty throughout their reformist history has been to the capitalist state.

Neil Kinnock's attacks on the 'violence' of miners' pickets, the editorial claimed, was... 'capitulation to media propaganda' and added: 'No Labour leader can stand above the class struggle.'

Kinnock, of course, does not stand 'above' any struggle. He is 100 per cent for the capitalist state, and the miners' strike has exposed Kinnock as the reformist ally of Thatcher's Bonapartist regime.

The acceptance by the 'Morning Star' of the capitalist state was made absolutely clear when the editorial urged: 'The decisions of the labour movement for greater grass roots control of the police must be fought for as crucial for democratic advance on the road to socialism in Britain.'

Pleas for 'police accountability' is the reactionary Stalinist policy of peaceful co-existence in practice.

To say the police are not accountable is a lie. They are fully accountable — to the Bonapartist capitalist state and to the ruling class, whose private ownership of property the police uphold in the most violent fashion.

The 'Morning Star' Stalinists accept this relationship unconditionally. That is why the same editorial castigates Police Federation chairman Leslie Curtis for 'exceeding the LEGITIMATE role which a police chief has to play' (our emphasis).

In his classic work 'State and Revolution', Lenin writes: 'To confine Marxism to the theory of the class struggle means curtailing Marxism, distorting it, reducing it to something acceptable to the bourgeoisie.'

'Only he is a Marxist who extends the recognition of the class struggle to the recognition of the dictatorship of the proletariat.'

The Stalinists of the British Communist Party are entirely acceptable to the bourgeoisie precisely because they accept the capitalist state machine's rule over the working class.

The capitalist state as an instrument of class rule can never be an instrument of working class rule. Those who say otherwise, betray the working class.

The Thatcherite Bonapartist dictatorship is driving millions down the road of social revolution in which the destruction of the capitalist state and its replacement by a workers' state will be posed.

The standing army, police and the capitalist judiciary must be abolished and a workers' state built on the basis of Community Council-Soviet organisations of the working class.

That is the essence of Leninism and the historic traditions of the Russian Revolution, which have long ago been repudiated by counter-revolutionary Stalinism. Today in Britain these traditions are represented only by the Workers Revolutionary Party.

Cavalry charge at Kiveton

A MINER from Kellingley colliery suffered a broken leg yesterday when police cavalry-charged into 4,000 pickets massed outside Kiveton Park colliery near Sheffield.

Joseph O'Donnell was knocked to the ground and injured when a lone police horseman broke ranks and continued galloping up the road through the darkness after pickets howling: 'Kill the bastards!'

According to Chris Cooper, a young striker from the same north Yorkshire pit, O'Donnell was 'bowed over into a hedge when the horse came through. The rest of us managed to scramble out of the way'.

Wincing with pain, the injured picket was forced to lie in the road while his fellow strikers demanded that an ambulance be allowed through the ranks of riot police on the bridge outside the colliery.

O'Donnell's injury got only a fleeting reference in local news bulletins. They were dominated by an incident at Rossington, where a specially-fortified ambulance was pelted with missiles after being mistaken for a police vehicle.

Needless to say, senior police officers at Kiveton Park, who included South Yorkshire assistant chief constable Tony Clements and chief superintendent John Nesbit, refused to let an ambulance through to collect O'Donnell.

To applause from other pickets, he was finally wheeled away on a stretcher to an ambulance beyond the police lines and then on to hospital.

Several more miners were hurt during the charge down Hard Lane which followed the provocative deployment of riot police.

Earlier, as pickets peacefully made their way down the road to join the line, they were forced to run a gauntlet of police who pushed, shoved and taunted them.

approaching the picket line.

Before any missiles were thrown, police horses were ordered to drive into the crowd — almost causing some pickets to fall down steep banking into a stream.

● AT Rossington pickets built a barricade in the early hours as they stepped up their attempts to stop five scabs going into the pit near Doncaster.

When two police vans arrived, they were met with a hail of bricks and other debris as they tried to drive the pickets out of the area.

Reinforcements in 47 vans poured into the village within minutes and soon every street leading towards the colliery was sealed off by special riot squads in numberless black boilersuits.

Safety men walk out

RESCUE teams have walked out throughout the Yorkshire coalfield to demonstrate their opposition to the scabs.

The key safety workers, who are members of the NUM, took strike action from Monday after meeting each of the four panels in the Yorkshire area.

Granville Richardson, NUM branch president at Silverwood colliery, told News Line: 'The rescue brigadesmen decided to come out because of the scabs. They said they would take some industrial action on their own account.'

The strike by rescuemen means that anyone — whether they be scabs or NCB management — will be taking risks in going underground.

The rescue team is on permanent standby in case of accidents or explosions.

Enforce

Now only officers remain to enforce safety regulations, which are normally carried out by a five-man team.

Meanwhile the NUM Yorkshire area council is expected to be asked at its next meeting to back moves to end scabbing by members of the colliery managers' association, BACM.

The Doncaster NUM panel is expected to propose that all BACM members, even those doing safety work, should be picketed out. This is a reaction to the way colliery managers have been visiting miners at their homes to try and browbeat them into breaking the strike.

Doncaster panel chairman Ian Ferguson said: 'We have always agreed to BACM doing essential safety work, but it seems they are now setting themselves up as a scab recruitment agency.'

Admitted

The Coal Board has admitted that not an ounce of coal is being produced in the Yorkshire area where it claims 64 men have crossed picket lines out of a total of 55,000 on strike.

Only at Kiveton Park, where 11 scabs are going in, has any underground work been undertaken. This has been restricted to small bits of maintenance work which have been carried out under the supervision of NCB management.

Power stocks running out

POWER station stocks of coal could run out by the end of the year because of the miners' strike — even without further supportive action from other unions — 'Labour Research' magazine states in its October issue.

The use of oil since the strike has shot up by four times at great expense, the article says, but there are limits to the degree by which coal can be replaced by oil.

In 1983 total UK oil consumption in power stations for April, May and June was 2 million tonnes (in terms of their energy equivalent in coal). This year the equivalent figure for those months, the only statistics so far available, is 8.21 million tonnes.

The article points out that the vast bulk of the plant available to generating boards is coal-fired.

The figure for the energy requirements of the electricity supply industry met from non-coal sources (i.e. oil, nuclear and hydro electricity) has remained fairly constant over the three months.

In April it was 0.9 million tonnes, in May 1.08 million tonnes and in June 0.99 million tonnes (all figures on a weekly basis).

'It seems reasonable to assume that this figure of about 1 million tonnes a week is close to the maximum which the boards can hope to obtain from these non-coal sources,' says the article.

Stated

'They have already stated that they are operating the main oil-fired stations flat out (Grain and Littlebrook; Fawley; Pembroke and Inverkip)

As the weather gets colder the demand for fuel will increase although the supply of non-coal fuel looks fixed at about 1 million tonnes a week. By the end of the year the electricity supply industry will need to be burning 1.35 million tonnes of coal a week to meet demand, the article predicts.

Other industries also need coal, in particular steel, as well as domestic consumers.

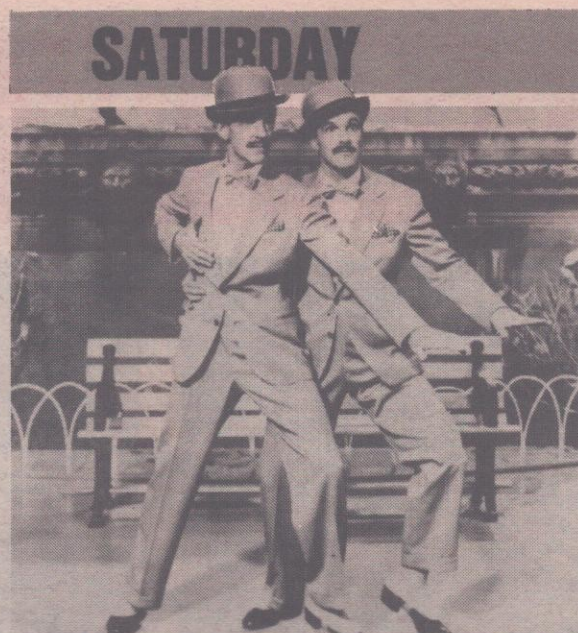

The article warns that power stations will be unable to get enough coal within a few weeks.

'Without reductions in output, along the lines of the three-day week, coal stocks will be below the critical figure of 6 million tonnes necessary to operate the system effectively by some time in late November and are set to run out altogether by the end of the year.'

This process could be much faster if the TUC were to implement the statement of support passed at last month's Congress in Brighton.

'However, even without this support, or other action, for example by the supervisory union NACODS, the NUM's strategy of starving the power stations of coal looks set to succeed by Christmas.'

111	NORTHERN TRICK (C-D)	F Boutin (FR)	388	C Asmussen	(20)

PROBABLE SP: 9-2 Rainbow Quest, 7-1 Northern Trick and Sadler's Wells, 10-1 Sagace, 11-1 Time Charter, 14-1 All Along, Sun Princess and Strawberry Road, 16-1 Cariellor and Princess Pati, 25-1 others.

1983: All Along 4 9 1 W R Swinburn P L Biancone 26 ran

Sadlers Wells for 'Arc' victory

TEENOSO'S late defection from tomorrow's Trusthouse Forte Prix Of L'Arc De Triomphe was a major blow for home-based punters.

Now, Piggott is aboard Rainbow Quest, and bookmaker reaction was to install Jeremy Tree's three-year-old as the 9-2 favourite to become the first English success in 11 years.

Trying to tip the winner of the event is always a problem, and now that Teenoso is a non-starter, what are the real chances of an English triumph?

Rainbow Quest and Piggott look a formidable combination, but will underfoot conditions be as suitable as they would have been for Teenoso?

Sun Princess and Time Charter will both have their supporters. Certainly Sun Princess, second to All Along last year, will love the ground, but Dick Hearn's filly has still to show her true form this year.

Time Charter is now back to her best according to trainer Henry Candy and if that is true, she will be hard to keep out of a place.

Pat Eddery, who had hoped to ride Rainbow Quest, has been claimed by his stable to partner Robert Sangster's Sadlers Wells (4.25).

Vincent O'Brien was last successful in the 'Arc' with Alleged in 1978, but must have a tremendous chance of winning the race again with Sadlers Wells.

As always, it looks an open race, but O'Brien's shrewd waiting tactics could well pay off in style.

● FRANKIE DURR, successful with Sagamore in last year's Cambridgeshire, can follow up through Gouverno (3.00) in today's NEWMARKET Cavalry Charge.

A total of 35 go to post for this traditionally tricky handicap, so finding the winner is almost impossible. But Gouverno seems to have most of the right credentials.

History is against Gouverno — only three five-year-olds have won since the war — but he is selected to come home ahead of vastly-improved Lucky North and top weight Torwar.

In contrast to the Cambridgeshire, only four go to post for the Group Two Jockey Club Cup, but an equally fascinating contest is in prospect.

Gildoran, a shock failure in the Doncaster Cup, has the chance to redeem his tarnished reputation and turn the tables on Wagoner but the one they have to beat is Carlingford Castle (2.20). He will be well suited by the two-mile trip and is expected to give Lester Piggott his sixth success in this race.

Foolish Touch (3.05) landed quite a gamble when hacking up in a Yarmouth seller on his racecourse debut, and can follow up in the Buggins Farm Nursery at HAYDOCK.

Joli Wasei (2.35) ran particularly well when going down by less than two lengths to subsequently disqualified Sassagrass at Redcar a week ago, and can secure the Brooke Bond Oxo Amateur Riders Championship.

Two former champions clash next month

LIVERPOOL CHASE

HAT-TRICK

LIVERPOOL, chasing a fifth European Champions' crown, have a chance to record a hat-trick of victories over Portuguese giants Benfica when they meet for the third time in the competition in next month's second round.

No matter what happens over the two-legged tie, it will certainly mean that only one previous winner of the competition will enter the quarter-final stages — an unprecedented happening in the history of the Champions' Cup.

Last season the League Champions managed to put just one goal past Benfica in the first leg of their quarter-final at Anfield, but then took the stage in Lisbon and served up one of their many excellent away performances last season by beating Benfica 4-1.

Beaten

Indeed, the past two occasions Liverpool have beaten Benfica in the competition they have gone on to win it.

Bordeaux, currently top of the French League, and Michel Platini's Juventus, have difficult second-round matches against Dinamo Bucharest of Rumania and Grasshopper Zurich respectively in the same competition.

BY OUR SOCCER CORRESPONDENT

Both of these sides, along with possibly Dinamo Berlin, first-round winners against Aberdeen, should prove the main obstacles to Liverpool retaining the trophy.

Bordeaux showed their resilience in the face of tremendous pressure when they went to Athletic Bilbao in midweek with a slim one-goal lead after a 3-2 result in France and held the Spanish champions to a goalless draw.

Liverpool's Merseyside neighbours Everton face Inter Bratislava of Czechoslovakia in the Cup Winners' Cup and the FA Cup holders will have to show a big improvement on their solitary goal victory over the Irish part-timers of University College Dublin if they are to advance much further.

Wrexham should solve some of their financial worries following their second-round clash with last year's beaten Champions' Cup side Roma in the same competition.

Wrexham, currently 19th in Division Four, were rewarded with this plum tie after their magnificent last-round defeat of Oporto.

Glasgow Celtic have a difficult tie against Rapid Vienna in the same competition.

A well-polished side, Rapid have almost as much European experience as the Glasgow team, while the Winners' Cup still has sides like Dinamo Moscow and Bayern Moscow left in it.

Face

Tottenham, holders of the UEFA Cup, face the Belgians of Bruges in the second round and that gives the north London side a chance to gain some revenge for English football.

Bruges put out Nottingham Forest on Wednesday night with the only goal of the two legs coming very late in the game.

Ironically, Tottenham defeated another Belgian side, Anderlecht, in last season's final and it was that slick outfit who had accounted for Forest in the semi-finals.

Manchester United travel to Holland to take on PSV Eindhoven in their second tie and should move comfortably into the last 16 of the competition.

Dutch football is nowhere near as successful as it was say five years ago and a victory for the Eindhoven club would be a major shock indeed.

Plum

Glasgow Rangers have one of the plum ties of the round.

They will face the Italians of Inter Milan, who now boast Liam Brady and Karl Heinz Rummenigge amongst their galaxy of stars.

Queen's Park Rangers have to travel to Belgrade to take on Partizan, a tie that should test the west London club to the limits.

Standard Liege face Cologne, last year's finalists Anderlecht take on Fiorentina and Hamburg face the Bulgarians from CSKA Sofia in a tournament that is still, possibly, the toughest to win.

LIAM BRADY will captain Inter Milan in Glasgow

Lloyd leads American Wightman Cup team

CHRIS EVERT-LLOYD will lead the US Wightman Cup team against Britain in London next month.

Kathy Jordan, Barbara Potter, Sharon Walsh and amateur Gretchen Rush complete the squad, announced in New York yesterday.

Lloyd missed last year's match after 11 successive appearances. She has won all her 22 singles clashes.

Jordan plays for the third time, while Walsh and Potter, who are expected to play doubles, have each appeared in the event once. Rush is named for the first time.

The US lead the series 45-10 — Britain last won in London back in 1979.

WEST GERMANY'S Bettina Bunge upset fourth-seeded American Zina Garrison with a 6-4, 3-6, 6-3 victory on Thursday night in the third round of a $150,000 event at Manhattan Beach, California.

Top-seed Lloyd dropped the first set against 15-year-old Melissa Gurney but came back to win 4-6, 6-4, 6-0.

In earlier matches, third-seed Wendy Turnbull of Australia earned a quarter-final berth along with Lloyd and Bunge by defeating the West German Eva Pfaff, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3.

They were joined by her compatriot Sylvia Hanika, who beat the American Camille Benjamin 6-5, 7-5.

TOP-SEEDED American Eliot Teltscher overcame a nagging back injury to beat big-serving compatriot Ben Testerman 6-3, 6-2 in the quarter-finals of the Brisbane indoor classic last night.

In the semi-finals today, Teltscher will face giant compatriot Chip Hooper, who showed he had recovered from a chest infection which bothered him on Thursday by defeating Australian John Frawley 7-6, 6-4.

Seventh-seeded American Mark Dickson beat giant-killing compatriot Todd Nelson 6-4, 2-6, 6-2 just a day after Nelson had eliminated second-seeded countryman Brad Gilbert.

Unseeded Francisco Gonzalez of Paraguay ousted American Mike Leach 4-6, 6-4, 6-3 in the other quarter-final.

AFTER a wait of 14 years John Feaver, the 32-year-old British No.8, beat Buster Mottram for the first time at the Refuge Assurance £84,000 National championships at Telford yesterday afternoon.

Feaver, the Wimbledon-based Dorset player, spent two hours eight minutes in reaching the semi-finals with a 4-6, 7-5, CHRIS EVERT LLOYD 7-5 victory and then gave himself an outstanding chance of going all the way to take the title and the £7,500 first prize.

KARL HEINZ RUMMENIGGE ... Another handful for Rangers

Hughes blows his chance

SNOOKER

RANK outsider Eugene Hughes threw away his chance to take a shock first-session lead over world champion Steve Davis in their Jameson Whiskey tournament semi-final in Newcastle yesterday.

Davis, chasing his third Jameson title in four years, looked out of touch despite moving into a 5-2 lead at the main interval in the best-of-17 frames match.

Irishman Hughes drew first blood when he won a tactical first frame 67-23 in 37 minutes, but was unable to take advantage of a string of rare mistakes by the world No.1.

Davis froze him out to move 5-1 ahead before Hughes won the final frame of the session 68-37, becoming the first man to take more than one frame off Davis in the tournament to date.

The fact did not register with match referee

John Williams, however, who accidentally called out: 'Frame to Steve Davis'.

It could all have been so different for Hughes. He left a red hanging over the bottom right-hand pocket in frame four to end a break of 38 and Davis swept in to punish the mistake with a break of 66.

Hughes slipped up again in frame five when, after pulling back to 56-48 behind, he missed the pink, to surrender the frame.

Wales' no to SA

WALES will not tour South Africa next summer.

Speculation about a resumption of rugby fixtures with the Springboks had grown, following last June's special meeting of the Welsh Rugby Union clubs when 368 delegates voted 306-62 to maintain playing links with South Africa.

But the Welsh Rugby Union secretary, Ray Williams, ended such speculation in Cardiff yesterday.

He said that following a meeting of the general committee they have decided that Wales would not tour South Africa in 1985.

Wales have an open invitation from the South African board, but Williams said: 'Our international touring programme is already congested and it is a situation many believe needs rationalising, rather than becoming an increasing commitment.'

On the international schedule, Wales are pencilled in for a tour of South Africa in 1991.

Football League Preview

UNITED LOSE ROBSON

Moran takes over as captain

BRYAN ROBSON . . . Ruled out for the next two matches yesterday

KEVIN MORAN . . . Takes over as United's captain

MANCHESTER UNITED will be without captain Bryan Robson when they meet Aston Villa — who include new signing Didier Six — at Villa Park this afternoon.

Robson aggravated a hamstring strain in the UEFA Cup tie in Hungary this week and has also been ruled out of next week's Milk Cup game at Burnley. His absence means that Arnold Muhren has another chance to prove that he is worth a regular first team place.

The Dutchman was expected to drop out because Gordon Strachan has recovered from an ankle injury and returns to the side.

United manager Ron Atkinson said: 'It's going to be a test without Robson, who always seems to do well at Villa, but we have a first-class replacement in Muhren.'

The United captaincy goes for the first time to Republic of Ireland central defender Kevin Moran.

Debut

Six will become the first Frenchman to play in the Football League when he makes his debut for Villa. The 30-year-old winger, who has 52 caps, is preferred to Mark Walters.

Steve McMahon returns to Villa's midfield after injury, but there is no room for central defender Steve Foster though he has recovered from influenza.

SOUTHAMPTON striker Joe Jordan can look forward to a potentially bone-jarring confrontation with Tottenham's Graham Roberts if he recovers from a knee injury in time for the match at the Dell.

Rugged

Jordan, who like Roberts is one of football's most rugged competitors, will have a late fitness test along with defender Mark Dennis, who has a leg injury.

Kevin Bond, who was ineligible for the UEFA Cup tie in Hamburg this week, is likely to return to the defence at the expense of Mark Whitlock.

EVERTON winger Terry Curran, sent off at Watford last week, misses the game at Arsenal because of a hamstring strain.

With Kevin Sheedy still troubled by an ankle ligament problem, there is a recall for Kevin Richardson.

Full back John Bailey also has a hamstring strain so Pat Ven Den Hauwe, signed from Birmingham for £100,000 last month, makes his Everton debut.

ANOTHER debutant is former England winger Peter Barnes, who moved from Leeds to Coventry this week and plays in the bottom-of-the-table match at Watford.

Watford, still looking for their first win of the season, give a late fitness test to captain Wilf Roston, who has been suffering from a virus complaint.

IAN STEWART'S outstanding performance in Queen's Park Rangers' UEFA Cup against Reykjavik was not enough to keep him in the side for the home game against Luton.

He drops down to make

BY MATTHEW NUGENT

SIMON STAINROD

way for Gary Micklewhite. Simon Stainrod also returns at the expense of Jeremy Charles.

LEICESTER striker Alan Smith, who missed two games with an ankle injury, returns at West Ham, who give a late fitness test to young Alan Dickens.

ALAN HUDSON misses Stoke's match at Nottingham Forest because he is still recovering from influenza, while West Bromwich defender Ally Robertson is doubtful for the visit to Liverpool.

AUSTRALIA, coolly led by captain Kim Hughes, turned in a professional performance here yesterday to clinch the one-day cricket series against India by winning the fourth match by seven wickets.

The victory in the 46-overs game gave Australia a winning 2-0 lead in the five-match series after they won the opening fixture by 48 runs and the next two games were abandoned due to rain.

Australia made 210 for three in 44 overs in reply to India's 206 for six in the central Indian city of Indore today.

Hughes, who came to India promising a new era in Australian cricket, showed his growing stature when he kept his head during several crisis moments yesterday.

After winning the toss for the fourth consecutive time, he put India in on an easy-paced pitch. But their makeshift openers, all-rounders Roger Binny and Ravi Shastri, justified captain Sunil Gavaskar's gamble in promoting them by sharing a century stand.

However, Hughes's own gamble came off when he used occasional off spinner Kepler Wessels, essentially an opening batsman, for 10 overs in which he took one for 29.

Wessels and fast bowler Geoff Lawson, who was named man of the match for his three for 25 from 10 overs, pinned back the Indians after their good start.

India were 160 for six with six overs left but ended with a flourish as Kirti Azad and Sharma Madan Lal plundered 46 in an unfinished stand. Azad's 39 not out included four sixes, with the last 12 balls producing 37 runs.

Australia started slowly and were 89 for two with openers Graeme Wood and Wessels back in the pavilion when Hughes joined his vice-captain Allan Border, who was also bogged down.

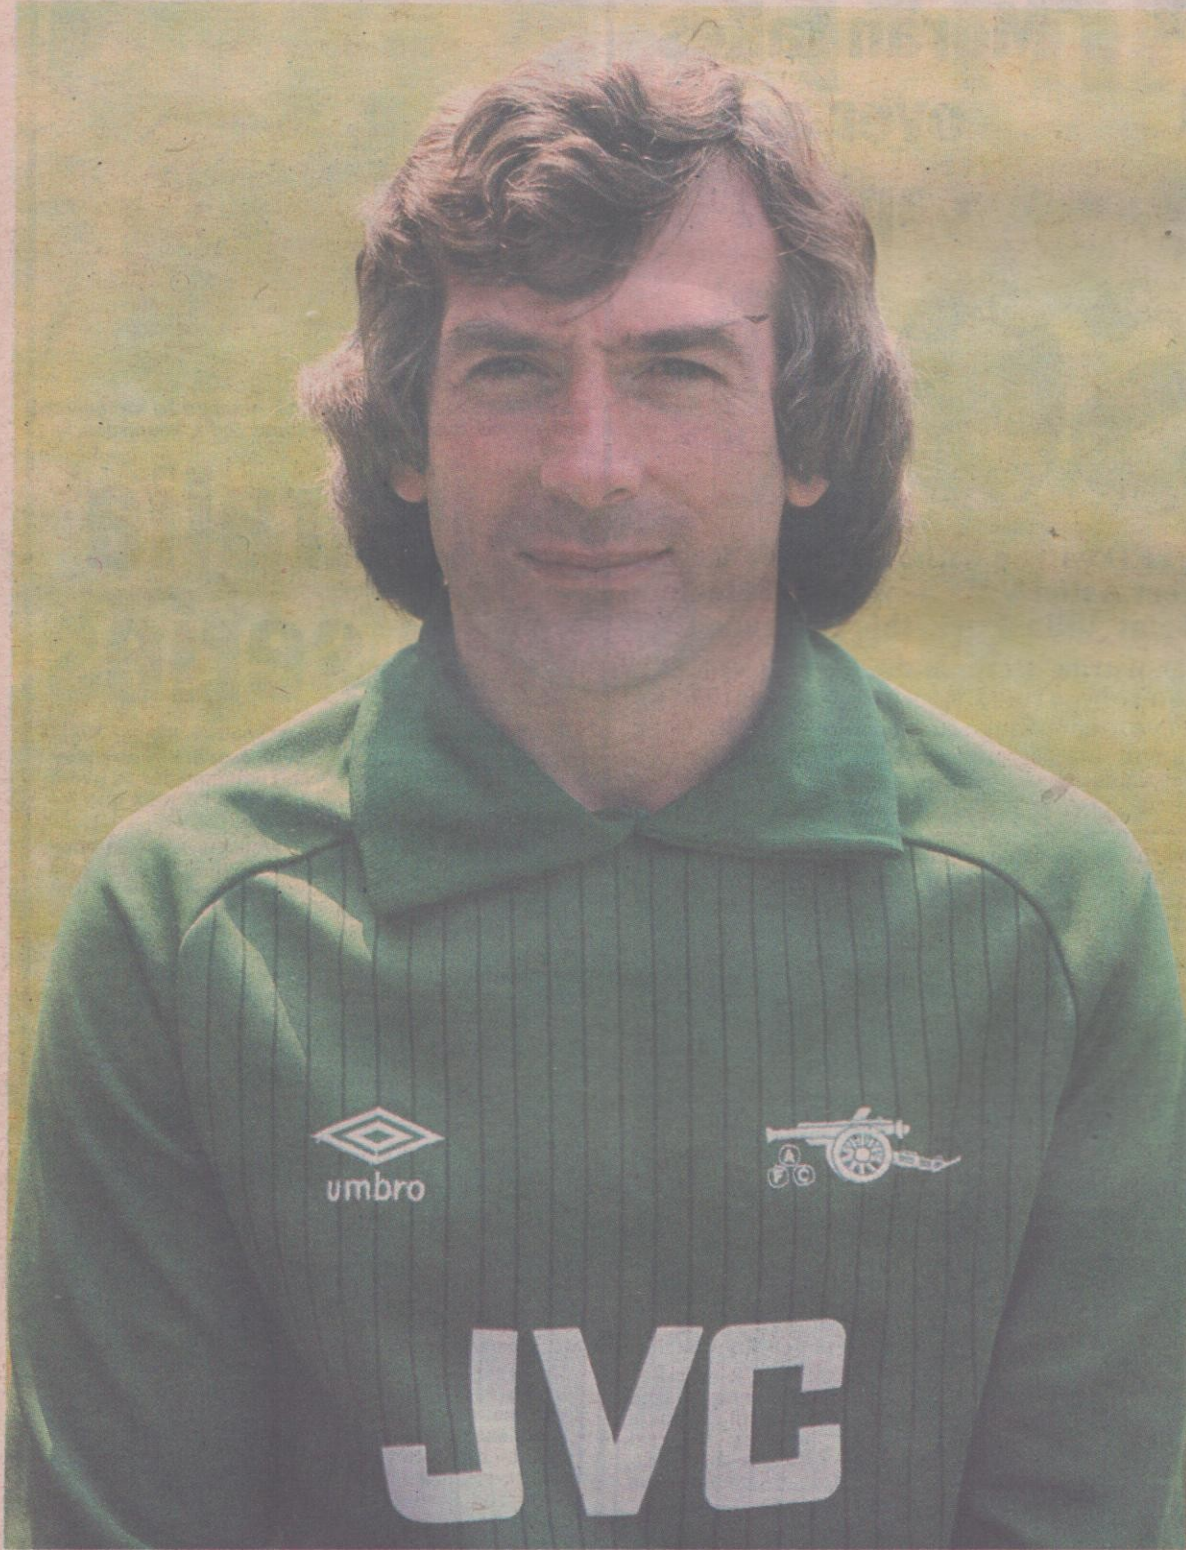

But Hughes lifted the tempo with many quick singles and shared a 73-run partnership with Border in 10 overs to put Australia in sight of victory.

Border, top scorer with 62, and Graham Yallop, who made an unbeaten 32, saw Australia home with two overs to spare.
