

Free the Cammell Laird 37

STRIKING CAR workers and miners joined shipyard men in a demonstration through Liverpool yesterday to demand the release of the 37 jailed Cammell Laird workers. The march was led by the jailed men's wives (see right) and ended with a rally which was addressed by David Basnett, general secretary of the General, Municipal Boilermakers and Allied Trade Union (See centre pages for report and more pictures).

THATCHER OUT TO CRUSH MINERS

LESS than 12 hours after she escaped assassination in the IRA bomb blast at the Grand Hotel Brighton, Prime Minister Thatcher was lining herself up completely with the scabs against the miners.

Her closing speech to the party conference took full advantage of the opportunity to try and smear the trade union and working-class movement, linking them, by implication, with the bombers. She made it clear that her intention is to destroy the National Union of Mineworkers and crucify its leaders on the altar of the rule of law.

And she said the country was witnessing the emergence of an organised revolutionary minority whose real aim was to break down law and order and destroy parliamentary government.

Without mentioning miners' union president Arthur Scargill by name, she claimed the nation was facing 'the most testing crisis of our time — the battle between the extremists and the rest'.

She also tried to wrap her Bonapartist regime in the trappings of the ballot box, and make the most of the chance to push forward her reactionary policies of privatisation, the destruction of local government and the preparation of nuclear war.

Attempt

Thatcher said the bombing of the conference hotel was 'an inhuman, indiscriminating attempt to massacre innocent, unsuspecting men and women'. She said:

'It was an attempt not only to disrupt and terminate our conference. It was an attempt to cripple Her Majesty's democratically-elected government. That is the scale of the outrage in which we have all shared, shared.'

By JOHN SPENCER, our political correspondent

'And the fact that we are gathered here, now, shocked but composed and determined, is a sign not only that this attack has failed, but that all attempts to destroy democracy by terrorism will fail.'

Referring to two blackleg miners who had addressed the conference earlier in the week, she said to applause: 'The sheer bravery of these men — and thousands like them — who have kept the mining industry alive is beyond praise.'

They should be called 'lions', not scabs, Thatcher said. And she had a special mention for 'the incomparable Mrs Irene McGibbon', the Kent scab-herder whose strike-breaking career stretches back at least ten years to BL, Cowley.

'Men and women like that are what we are proud to call "the best of British". And our police, who uphold the law with an independence and a restraint perhaps only to be found in this country, are the admiration of the world.'

Claimed

She made it plain her intention is the physical destruction of the National Union of Mineworkers. Ignoring the union's right to represent its members, she claimed: 'This is a dispute about the right to go to work of those who have been denied the right to vote.'

'Meanwhile we are faced with the present executive of the NUM. They know what they are demanding has never been granted either to miners or to workers in any other industry.'

'Why then demand it? Why ask for what they know cannot be conceded? There can be only one explanation. They didn't want a settlement, they wanted a strike.'

She went on: 'What we have seen in this country is the emergence of an organised revolutionary minority who are prepared to exploit industrial disputes but whose real aim is the breakdown of law and order and the destruction of democratic parliamentary government.'

Tactics

'We have seen the same sort of thugs and bullies at Grunwick, more recently against Eddie Shah in Stockport and now organised into flying squads around the country.'

'If their tactics are allowed to succeed, if they are not brought under the control of the law, we shall see them again at every industrial dispute organised by militant union leaders anywhere in the country.'

ACAS TALKS RESUME TODAY

TALKS on the 32-week miners' strike will resume again this afternoon at the London headquarters of the government arbitration body ACAS. Last night Ned Smith, Coal Board industrial relations officer, said management were considering fresh proposals from the NUM.

The union, he said, had found unacceptable ACAS proposals put yesterday morning to both sides.

The Coal Board had agreed to these proposals, which involved an independent arbitrator for the colliery review procedure, but on a 'strictly advisory' basis.

Asked earlier if the Coal Board were prepared to withdraw the pit closure programme of March 6, NCB chairman Ian MacGregor said that this was definitely not part of the ACAS document.

Euro Stalinists determined to oust Chater from 'Star'

THE COMMUNIST Party has called on its members to turn out in strength to vote to remove 'Morning Star' editor Tony Chater at a special general meeting of shareholders in two weeks' time.

A party statement issued this week repudiates a claim by the Chater faction that the shareholders' meeting is out of order under the rules of the People's Press Printing Society.

The statement was delivered to the 'Morning Star' for publication on Wednesday but so far it has not been printed.

BY ALEX MITCHELL

A further showdown takes place this weekend when the PPPS management committee meets. Party chairman George Bolton and 'Morning Star' diplomatic correspondent Chris Myant, the only two pro-party members of the committee, will be demanding to have hitherto secret information on the so-called 'survival plan'.

Press

The plan involves the installation of a new printing press at the end of this month and the introduction of commercial printing.

But following the visit to Moscow last month by Bolton and party general secretary Gordon McLennan there is some doubt about whether the PPPS will get the 'bonus' it received last year — payment in advance for 12 months' supply of the 'Morning Star'.

If the Chater group does not get the same favourable treatment from the Soviet bureaucracy this year there are worries about how the co-operative will cope with rising costs and the stiff terms of the leasing agreement for the new press.

The press release suppressed by the 'Morning Star' launches a bitter attack on the Chater group saying: 'The PPPS management committee majority is trying by all means to deny shareholders the opportunity to express their views.'

Notice

'It has not only rejected the requisition, but refused to accept the notice of the Special General Meeting. It has failed to print a single word of the requisitioners' statement of September 25.'

'It has even gone to the length of censoring and altering the wording of an advertisement for the Communist Party journal 'Focus', which mentioned the Special General Meeting.'

The party press release, entitled 'Use your vote to end the rift and save the Morning Star', is a reply to an unsigned statement published in the Stalinist daily last Saturday (October 6) which said the call for the extraordinary meeting was out of order.

But after top legal advice the Communist Party executive is convinced that its challenge is constitutional. Its statement says: 'The PPPS management committee asks us to call off the Special General Meeting.

'We will do so immediately if the management committee restores the previous relationship with the Communist Party. But far from doing so, every successive statement and action of the committee worsens the relationship.'

Vote

'We ask every shareholder to reply by attending the meeting and voting for the resolutions proposed by the requisitioners. The bigger the vote for them, the more pressure will be brought on the management committee and the nearer will be the day when the previous relationship with the Communist Party is restored.'

'We repeat the call of the executive committee of the Communist Party for all shareholders, and particularly all communists, to attend the Special General Meeting and vote for the resolutions we have proposed.'

'This will demonstrate their desire to end the present damaging rift between party and paper. It is the actions of the management committee which have created this rift by attempting to use the PPPS against the Communist Party which brought it into existence.'

Sacked Ribble bus drivers picketing outside Skelthorpe Street depot yesterday

Coach drivers sacked

FORTY-THREE coach drivers who have been picketing Liverpool's Skelthorpe Street coach depot were sacked at midnight on Thursday by the National Bus Company.

T&GWU branch secretary Brian Stewart, who with chairman Eddie Prenton was sacked four weeks ago when the dispute began, said yesterday: 'The Ribble bus company sent out inspectors last night to deliver dismiss-sal notices to all the 43 drivers.'

'They've accused us of not negotiating which is rubbish because we've had five meetings so far. We've also made counter proposals to the company but it refuses to recognise them.'

'They've accused us of ignoring company procedure but they haven't followed company procedure in sacking our members at midnight with no notice whatsoever.'

'They've effectively closed down Merseyside operations because we're not prepared to knuckle down to their proposals which means a £25 wage cut, reduction in services and a reduction in manning levels.'

Steel production up

STEEL production rose last month to its highest level since March of this year, despite the TUC's agreement with the NUM to black coal supplies to industry.

Official figures released jointly by the British Steel Corporation and the private steel industry show that weekly steel production averaged 313,300 tonnes in September.

Figures covering the nine months from January to September also show that average weekly production for the year is marginally higher than the same period in 1983.

In the first nine months of 1984, production averaged 289,700 tonnes a week, 0.3 per cent above the 288,900 tonnes a week recorded in the corresponding period of 1983, the report says.

Regional comparisons show that only two parts of the country have suffered even a small reduction in steel output — Yorkshire and Humberside, and the West Midlands.

In Scotland, covering the Ravenscraig steel plant, production has risen this year, despite the miners' strike.

Citroen car plant occupied

FROM NICOLE VERNIER IN PARIS

BETWEEN 300-400 workers occupied the Citroen plant at Nanterre on the outskirts of Paris on Wednesday night.

The workers, who are among the 1,950 sacked from four Citroen factories in the past six weeks, are demanding negotiations on their future.

The company has sent out letters offering a ten-month retraining programme without giving details, nor is there any guarantee that the training will result in anything but unemployment.

This has been the experience of the 1,905 workers sacked from the Talbot car factory in February.

Talbot and Citroen are both subsidiaries of the Peugeot plant. According to the CGT union, Peugeot is planning to close the plant at Nanterre 'in the very near future', replacing the production lines with the Axel motor, with assembly lines for the new French-Italian Fire Mille motor.

Meanwhile at Boulogne-Billancourt, a key plant in the nationalised Renault network, the CGT has threatened to call a strike and occupation, unless the company rescinds its decision to close for a week between Christmas and New Year.

The CGT fears the company's decision to close the plant would deprive workers of the right to decide when to take the fifth week of their annual paid holidays, a right won under the Mitterrand government.

Renault workers at Choisy have ensured that the plant stays open during the Christmas/New Year period, and the Renault factories at Flins, Saundeville are not closing.

Both produce the R-25 and the new model Super-5. Billancourt also produces the new model at a rate which is scheduled to reach 200 a day by the end of the year.

Georges Marchais, secretary of the Stalinist French Communist Party, has called for a national debate on the future of the industry.

Speaking at the 71st Automobile Exhibition on Thursday last week, he said: 'The democratic debate is the way to unite in action all those with a common interest in overcoming the problems of the car industry.'

He went on to say that this included car workers, manufacturers, distributors and motorists.

The Communist Party claims that the problems in the car industry, involving the destruction of 90,000 jobs — a process which is well under way — results from bad management by Peugeot and Renault.

22% claim at BL

UNION leaders yesterday lodged a £22-a-week pay-rise claim for 30,000 BL car workers.

Negotiators and management met for the first time in the current pay round at BL's management training centre near Warwick.

Apart from the 20 per cent across-the-board claim on basic pay rates, the unions are understood to be insisting on changes to the company's bonus scheme and a restructuring of grade rates.

Management at Austin Rover, the volume car subsidiary of BL, will not respond to the claim before the middle of next week. But the company offer is likely to fall well short of what the union men want.

Austin Rover is likely to offer the unions another two-year deal worth about 4 per cent per year — about £6 a week to the average production worker. The company regards the last two-year deal, which ends on November 1, as being highly successful.

The bonus scheme — with maximum weekly targets of £30 — has made Austin Rover employees the highest-paid volume car workers in the UK, say the state-owned firm.

But Austin Rover also turned in an operating profit of £300,000 for the first six months of the year.

After years of pay restraint Austin Rover workers will be looking for their reward for their part in turning round the company's fortunes.

Talks break down

THE strike of 15,000 Vauxhall car workers at Ellesmere Port, Luton and Dunstable continued yesterday after the breakdown of talks.

Union negotiators said the company had only slightly improved a 7.5 per cent offer, and they still considered the additional money to be unsatisfactory.

For the management, a spokesman denied any increase, and said the offer had instead been 'clarified'.

This 'clarification' will be put to mass meetings at the plants, probably on Monday or Tuesday, and it is almost certain that union convenors will recommend a continuation of the strike.

The offer involves only a 5 per cent increase on basic rates

The latest round of talks between the Coal Board and the NUM can resolve nothing. It remains deadlock as long as pit closures are on the agenda.

It is a fight to the bitter end. This is why it is urgent to mobilise the rest of the working class into action to defeat this government. Otherwise trade unionists face more fines, their union funds seized, arrests on a vast scale and continued violence on picket lines. Thatcher will do everything she can to break the organised strength of the working class.

Anger over DHA move

THE health union NUPE has condemned the removal of four members of the Merton and Sutton district health authority and their replacement by four others.

The authority voted in secret session on Wednesday night to privatise their domestic services and to employ Mediclean Ltd to do the work, leading to the dismissal of 200 domestics from St Helier Hospital.

The decision follows recent changes in the district health authority's composition, made as a result of a Tory 'hit-list' circulated at regional level.

The people on the authority who were replaced were: Mr M Lahiff, Mr R Haddow, Mrs E McEwan and Mr G Lambert, all of whom have voted against privatisation in the past.

They were replaced by Mr R Tiffany, a chief nursing officer at the Royal Marsden Hospital, Fulham Road and a member of the Conservative Medical Association and three others.

The authority also plans to reduce acute beds in the Merton and Sutton district from 914 at present to 499 over the next 10 years.

This would mean hospital closures. The four removed members have voted in the past against the closure of Cheam Geriatric Hospital.

Commenting on the switch, NUPE full-time official Ian Scott said: 'The decision to privatise the domestics at St Helier is a direct result of the political changes on the health authority.'

'The authority is now completely Conservative-dominated and the policy of privatisation is being pursued without concern for the standards of the service or the big increase in unemployment that will result.'

'Telegraph' walk out

NORTHERN editions of the 'Daily Telegraph' did not appear in the shops yesterday after journalists walked out on strike at the Manchester office of the newspaper.

The editions were not printed after management had earlier announced plans to sack half the editorial staff when a new printing plant at Trafford Park opens next year.

Special Branch men 'bewildered' by blast

The aftermath of the bomb blast at the Grand hotel in Brighton yesterday

THE Provisional IRA's ability to penetrate the security net around the Tory Party conference hotel left Special Branch men bewildered yesterday.

Two people were killed and 30 injured when the bomb went off shortly before 3a.m. in a fifth-floor room of the Grand Hotel. It had been detonated by a timing device.

The Provisionals claimed responsibility nine hours later in a message phoned from Dublin to a London news agency.

Among the injured were Trade and Industry Secretary Norman Tebbit, who has broken ribs and deep shock. He was trapped for four hours with his wife, who has back injuries and is said to be in a serious condition.

The Tebbits plunged several floors along with tons of masonry and rubble.

The government's Chief Whip, John Wakenham, has serious injuries to his lower legs. He was trapped for six hours.

Every room at the hotel was booked by conference delegates and visitors. Police were anxious to interview the guest who booked the fifth-floor room where the bomb was planted.

Explosives

The blast devastated an area about one room wide for about seven-storied deep. Police said about 20lb of explosives had been used, while an IRA statement claimed 100lb of gelignite was involved.

Prime Minister Thatcher was up at the time, in her suite on the first floor. The explosion wrecked her bathroom, which she had left two minutes before the blast.

Hotel manager Paul Boswell said: 'If everything had gone according to plan, it would have meant the whole lot would have gone on top of Mrs Thatcher, but it did not.'

Parts of the eight-storey, 178-room hotel were pulled down by a telescopic crane later yesterday after being pronounced unsafe.

An alert was given when the structure began moving.

BY A NEWS LINE REPORTER

The Provisional IRA's statement said: 'Thatcher will now realise that Britain cannot occupy our country, torture our prisoners and shoot our people in their own streets and get away with it.'

'Today we were unlucky, but remember, we have only to be lucky once: you will have to be lucky always. Give Ireland peace and there will be no war.'

Action

Gerry Adams, president of Sinn Fein, said: 'The IRA action in Brighton was an inevitable result of the British occupation of the Six Counties.'

'Those who directed, sanctioned and defended the attack on the "General Belgrano" or the attack on demonstrators in West Belfast or anywhere, will find little succour in the moralistic rhetoric they are adopting now.'

The Chief Constable of Sussex, Roger Birch, said the explosion meant 'somewhere along the line something has gone wrong'.

Inquiry

He felt the police had taken 'all reasonable precautions'.

Birch announced an inquiry into conference security arrangements by Sussex police would be carried out by the Chief Constable of Hampshire, John Hoddinott.

'Our security arrangements leading up and during the conference were even more stringent than usual,' Birch said.

Labour leader Neil Kinnock sent a message to Thatcher expressing his 'outrage' over this 'terrible atrocity'.

Train crash probe

INVESTIGATIONS yesterday continued into the cause of a rush-hour train crash that killed three people and left 18 injured.

British Rail said it was a mystery how the Euston-Bletchley commuter train, packed with 500 passengers, collided with a freight train outside Wembley Central station in north west London.

John Oxley, London Suburban Services manager for BR's Midland region, said the accident happened because 'both trains tried to occupy the same piece of line'.

Experts were yesterday examining overhead and trackside signalling as well as checking the passenger train driver's car for possible faults.

Meanwhile BR named the three who died as P.J. Symonds, of Aylesbury, Bucks; William Goodson, of Leighton Buzzard, and Douglas Cater, of Oxhey.

The first two passenger carriages, where the dead and most seriously injured were believed to have been, overturned in the crash. Both carriages were upright by breakdown crews working through Thursday night with lifting gear.

The crash site, south of Wembley Central station, was closed all yesterday to enable salvage crew to step up their work. It was not due to be cleared till this morning. The track, linking Euston to the West Midlands, is the busiest Inter-City route in the country.

WEATHER

SCOTLAND, northern Ireland, Wales and western districts of England will be cloudy with rain or drizzle at times. Clearer showery weather will later spread into north-west Scotland. England, except western districts, will be mostly dry with sunny intervals. It will be warm or rather warm over England and Wales, in Scotland and northern Ireland temperatures will be near normal.

ORGANISE A GENERAL STRIKE

Midlands week of action ends with demo

FIVE HUNDRED miners and their wives marched through Keresley village, near Coventry, on Wednesday as the climax to a week of action organised by the West Midlands TUC.

They intended to picket the scabs leaving Coventry colliery at the end of the day shift. But at the gate a phalanx of police prevented the march from joining the regular six-man NUM picket.

BY A NEWS LINE REPORTER

The march, headed by the banner of the West Midlands area NUM, was joined by delegates from Massey Ferguson, Rolls Royce and Coventry and Nuneaton Trades Councils.

A very vocal contingent from the Coventry branches of the Workers Revolutionary Party and Young Socialists kept up a continuous chant of 'Miners must not fight alone! Organise the General Strike!' and 'Release all jailed trade unionists — General Strike now!' — slogans which drew applause from villagers at several points on the march.

After the march a rally was held outside the Parillion Community Centre, where the miners' wives organise one of the three soup kitchens in the area. Speakers were introduced by Councillor Rosemary Buckley of Nuneaton Trades Council.

Ken Tyrrell, AUEW convenor at Massey Ferguson, called for an end to the Tory attempt to isolate the miners by organising General Strike action. 'From November 1, we will all have Silver Birches. It is time we were all called out,' he said.

Tommy Hartop, AUEW convenor at Rolls Royce, described the Tory anti-union legislation as 'a scabs' charter.

'We shall defy the law, he promised.

Nevin Bell, from the Coventry colliery strike committee, paid tribute to the determination of the strikers and their families. He called on NACODs leadership not to sit on the fence: 'They've had their mandate, so let's have them out', he concluded.

Attacked

Cath Chaplin of the Keresley wives' support group attacked the 'Daily Express' for a recent article portraying Keresley as a 'village of fear'.

'Children are our future. So how can their drawings and pictures be offensive, when all they are doing is telling the truth.

'I was naive when this strike began. I believed in the police and in free speech. Now I know what's happening.'

Dick Jones of Rolls Royce TASS spoke of increasing support for the miners, but added: 'I could not pledge that my members would take industrial action in support.'

Colin Ward, chairman of the strike committee, concluded the rally by calling for a General Strike.

INCREASE IN W.GERMAN COAL IMPORTS

EXPORT of coal from West Germany to Britain has risen sharply over the past six months.

From the Ruhr area alone, the transport of coal by rail has risen by two million tonnes from last year, of which 500,000 tonnes are being sent to Britain, says a recent report by the Essen Chamber of Trade and Commerce.

The dramatic increase in coal exports has taken place despite a decline in the number of miners and the hours being worked.

In the Kammer district 15,175 miners were working in June 1983. By June 1984 the number of miners had dropped by more than 2,000 to 13,057.

The total turnover of coal rose by 15.9 per cent and exports rose by 103 per cent.

Cold danger for kids

IF THE miners' strike goes on into the winter, there is a risk of children having to be taken into care to protect them from the risk of hypothermia, the Tories were warned yesterday.

Jack Layden, chairman of the Association of Metropolitan Authorities, told the government:

'No-one, who like myself, lives and represents communities at the heart of this dispute, can be unmoved by the plight of the people, and particularly the children, caught up in this marathon confrontation.'

He added: 'As leader of the Rotherham Metropolitan District Council, I see their needs being reflected in the demands made on our statutory services, the services we are obliged by law to provide to people in need.

'I fear that as the winter goes on these demands will increase. In particular, I fear that there is a danger that a number of children may have to be taken into care to protect them from the risk of hypothermia as family power supplies are cut off for non-payment of bills.

'We have no choice but to spend this money. Yet the government's controls over our spending are such that we face grant penalties for meeting these obligations.'

TO BACK THE MINERS

STRIKER SAVAGELY BEATEN

BY OUR OWN REPORTER

TREVOR WOMERSLEY, a young striker from Hatfield Main, yesterday became the latest victim of state violence against miners when he was viciously batoned to the ground by riot police outside Brodsworth colliery in South Yorkshire. (See picture, bottom right).

He was among scores of miners who were chased by police on horseback and riot squads across a ploughed field opposite the colliery entrance.

The majority managed to scramble over a fence into adjoining allotments to avoid truncheon-swinging police — but Trevor never made it. He was repeatedly beaten over the head until his legs gave way and he slumped to the ground.

Not content with that, a group of policemen proceeded to club him about the head and body while simultaneously screaming at him to get to his feet.

When News Line's photographer attempted to take a picture of Womersley, a policeman jumped in his way.

Womersley, his face now covered with blood, was only saved from further punishment by other miners.

Seeing the young picket lying face down on the ground, they drove the police away by showering them with stones.

They then carried Womersley across the field to an ambulance so that he could be taken to hospital for treatment.

The violent clashes began soon after police horses were provocatively sent in to clear the approach road to the pit where three scabs are currently breaking the strike.

Angered by the police tactics, large numbers of strikers refused to join the main body of pickets and went into the field.

Several police cavalry charges, backed up by riot squads on foot and vans driven at high speed, failed to shift them.

As the scab bus sped into the pit yard, the police lines came under a sustained barrage of missiles.

Furious

Pickets also charged at the wall of riot police in a furious reaction to the treatment of Womersley and other strikers who were dragged out of hedges and severely beaten.

When the strikers retreated further up the road the police charged in to make arrests with only limited success.

However, after most of the pickets had dispersed, a squad of policemen did move in to break up a small group of local strikers standing peacefully at the gates of their own pit.

They were jostled, man-handled and one of them was punched by a policeman.

When he retaliated he was immediately arrested.

On the orders of a senior officer he was then hauled backwards the 150 yards to the pit, with his arm forced painfully up his back.

CONGRESS MEETS TO PLOT POLL STRATEGY

BY A FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT

NEW DELHI — Curfews remained in force on two towns hit by Hindu-Muslim clashes but in Punjab state police released 114 Sikhs charged with sedition yesterday.

Senior officials of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's ruling Congress (I) Party were in the second day of a four-day conference to map out a strategy for general elections expected to be held about the end of the year.

Chauvinist

While the ruling party plotted a Hindu-chauvinist campaign to capitalise on the latest civil upheavals, indefinite curfews remained in force in the largely Muslim textile town of Maunath Bhanjan, northern Uttar Pradesh state, and Malegaon, western Maharashtra state.

Police carried out house-to-house searches allegedly for weapons in Maunath Bhanjan, while in Malegaon, the curfew was reimposed after a brief relaxation on Thursday.

A government spokesman said 119 people had been arrested so far in Maunath Bhanjan to 'thwart renewed violence'. Nearly 100 people have been detained in Malegaon, including a leader of the right-wing Hindu Bharatiya Janata Party, according to available official figures.

At least 12 people have been killed and more than 200 injured in a surge of religious violence across the sub-continent in the past nine days during major festivals celebrated by both Hindus and Muslims.

Government officials said they expected more trouble later this month during Diwali, the Hindu festival of lights.

The 114 Sikhs released in the holy city of Amritsar, Punjab, were among 299 people arrested on October 1, when troops re-entered the Golden Temple to quell an anti-government demonstration during the handing over of the temple to Sikh religious authorities late last month.

Attempts by New Delhi to quell or appease seething Sikh hatreds over the military repression, have led to thousands of arrests, kangaroo courts, and the storming of the temple on June 6.

Colourful

On Wednesday, thousands of Sikhs marched in a colourful procession down a 2.5-mile (4-kilometre) route in Amritsar on the eve of the anniversary of the birth of Guru (teacher) Ram Das, who founded the city in the 16th century.

About 3,000 armed police and troops lined the route, with army snipers on rooftops as Sikhs showered flower petals on a palanquin carrying their holy book, the Grant Sahib.

In the Federal capital, Congress (I) secretary-general Chandulal Chandrakar said the party leaders were discussing the likely effect on voters of the government's recent actions in Punjab and the sacking in August of the Chief Minister of Andhra Pradesh, N.T. Rama Rao.

More than 1,000 people were killed when the troops stormed into the Golden temple and the sacking of Rao led to a General Strike and a wave of civilian protest that stretched across the sub-continent.

Chandrakar said the party was also discussing the possibility that opposition parties would form a national coalition front to fight the election.

Mrs Gandhi is particularly worried by the threat of a national opposition front that would blow apart any hope of the Congress (I) being re-elected.

Her interference in Jammu-Kashmir in July, by engineering a Legislative Assembly coup against Chief Minister Farouq Abdullah was a result of fears that his National Conference Party was organising such an opposition.

Eruption

Mrs Gandhi's repression in the Punjab, the Jammu-Kashmir and Andhra Pradesh crises, in addition to the latest eruption of nationwide rebellions pose a serious threat to her designs to cling to office.

Her 'war on the horizon' threat this week is a chauvinistic propaganda war she has launched to exacerbate the communal strife in a desperate attempt to split both the communities and the opposition parties.

Pakistan warns India

WASHINGTON — Pakistan is taking seriously reports that India may be planning pre-emptive strikes against its nuclear facilities, according to Foreign Minister Yaqub Khan.

Commenting on reports on US television, he said: 'We regard it as a serious threat.'

'In the unfortunate event of this taking place, we will have no option but to retaliate and this would, of course, mean a conflict that neither side really desires.'

Khan said Pakistan's relations with both India and the Soviet Union had deteriorated during the past few months.

The worsening of relations with India followed allegations by New Delhi that Pakistan was helping to foment Sikh unrest in the Punjab, he said.

Kohl shelves freeze

STUTTGART — The Kohl government has backed off from its threat last autumn to impose a wage freeze on public service employees and has offered them a 2.8 per cent rise for 1985.

The rise, however, is far short of union demands for a 5 per cent increase, plus a shorter working week.

Union leaders representing 2.7 million workers in the public sector have called for ten more days' annual holiday.

It is the equivalent of the 38.5 hour working week won by IG Metall engineering and Druck und Papier print workers after a defiant strike campaign in the summer.

Interior Minister Friedrich Zimmermann said the government rejected a shorter working week for the public service workers.

Monika Wolf-Mathies, leader of the main transportation and traffic union (OeTV), replied to questions later that the wage freeze 'taboo' had been broken.

She pledged at a recent conference that the union would not give up its fight for a shorter working week.

Deng pushes U.S. for Taiwan deal

Chinese leader DENG XIAOPING

PEKING — China was prepared to use force if necessary to reunite Taiwan, Deng Xiaoping told a visiting Japanese delegation yesterday.

Deng told the delegation Washington had pushed Peking to renounce force in its reunification drive but China had refused.

China's 'consistent policy' was to achieve peaceful reunification with the Nationalist-ruled island but 'problems' could arise in the event of some change in Taiwan's present political structure.

The leader of the Peking Stalinist bureaucracy did not elaborate what changes he meant when he spoke to the Komei (Clean government) Party delegation.

on Reagan's support for the reactionary island regime.

Deng repeated an offer he has previously made to Washington; that a 'peaceful reuniting' of Taiwan with the mainland stood a chance of a better deal than Hong Kong.

Return

The Chinese bureaucracy and the British Tory government reached an agreement last month on the return of the colony, with a guarantee that it would remain a capitalist enclave for another 50 years.

'Depravity' ruling

ROME — A parliamentary committee has ruled that one of Italy's secret services, which negotiated with organised crime bosses for the release of a kidnapped politician, had committed 'very serious depravity and deviation'.

It said a small group of generals and senior officials in the Information and Military Secret Service (Sismi) 'hijacked' the operation to rescue Christian Democrat Ciriaco De Mita from urban guerrillas in 1981 to win personal prestige.

In a report on its inquiry into the controversial and still partly unclarified kidnapping, the parliamentary committee for Information and Security Services said: 'Acts of extremely serious depravity and deviation were committed. They involved Sismi in particular.'

Ciriolo was kidnapped by the left-wing urban guerrilla group Red Brigades on April 27, 1981.

After first announcing they had condemned him to death for corruption, the Red Brigades set Ciriolo free on July 24 and said later they had received a ransom of more than $1 million.

Grenada trial

ST GEORGE'S — Nineteen former Grenadian officials will go on trial next Tuesday in connection with last year's killing of Prime Minister Maurice Bishop.

They are accused of murdering Bishop and seven others during a coup by members of his New Jewel Movement on October 19.

They were detained by US forces after the invasion ordered by President Reagan under the pretext of rescuing American medical students from an alleged menace posed by the New Jewel Movement government.

Among those accused are former Deputy Prime Minister Bernard Coard, his wife Phyllis, ex-army commander Hudson Austin and former Cabinet Minister Selwyn Strachan.

Bullets

Government officials say at least 100 people died in the coup, when soldiers sprayed bullets at a crowd which had freed Bishop from house arrest.

Grenada is preparing for general elections on December 3, under US supervision.

FRENCH GROWTH NOSEDIVES

FRENCH economic growth fell sharply in the second quarter this year, providing proof of the devastating effects of President Mitterrand's slump programme of sackings and industry closures.

The French gross domestic product (GDP) fell by 0.4 per cent in the three months between April and June, according to official figures published this week.

The GDP, the widest measure of the economy's performance, has taken a nosedive following an 0.9 per cent rise in the previous quarter.

Inflation and unemployment will skyrocket despite Prime Minister Laurent Fabius's predictions. He said GDP was set to grow 1.3 per cent this year and by 2 per cent next year.

The Mitterrand-Fabius

Cabinet aim of curbing 'excessive' public spending to reverse deflationary approaches and curb the inflationary spiral is a smokescreen for savage cuts in the steel, coal and carmaking industries, where thousands of workers have been earmarked for the sack.

Flood

The government is facing a flood of imports in the US dollar which is undermining foreign confidence in the French economy, and the after-effects of a damaging devaluation of the French franc early last year.

That devaluation was

the second in less than two years. The soaring dollar has effectively devalued the franc many times over.

The blows dealt to the earning power of French workers has led to a sharp fall in domestic consumption in a market that is flooded with commodities.

Mitterrand's staunch commitment to the International Monetary Fund's stipulations for cuts in public spending, privatisation of state-owned industries and general cuts in social services has sent the economy plunging into crisis.

The austerity programme of last year and the tight budgetary policy have combined with steeply-rising unemployment to weigh down on the spending power of companies as well as the working class.

Dropped

Private consumption dropped 0.4 per cent in the second quarter, reversing a 0.3 per cent rise in the first three months, largely because spending power fell 0.4 per cent for the third successive quarter.

Finance Minister Pierre Bergevoy, while keeping a tight rein on state spending, has promised income tax cuts purportedly to encourage greater investment and consumer spending in the latter part of next year.

But the Organisation of Economic Co-Operation and Development (OECD) warned in its August report on the French economy that 'in the short run the present policy of stringency seems the only possible course'.

In promising tax cuts, Bergevoy is only promising concessions to the middle class and big business in order to deflect mounting extreme right-wing opposition.

It means no change in the Socialist Party government's attacks on living standards and on the working class.

Riot alert in Bayonne

BAYONNE — More than 1,000 riot police and security men were on alert in the French Basque country in south-west France as President Mitterrand continued the second day of his three-day tour yesterday.

An array of groups, including French Basque nationalists, trade unions and regional businessmen, planned demonstrations during the visit to Bayonne, the ancient capital of the Basque region.

Tension has run high in the region bordering Spain since Mitterrand extradited three Spanish Basque militants to Madrid to stand trial on murder charges two weeks ago.

The French Basque community has condemned the trip as a provocation. A small bomb exploded at nearby Biarritz airport on Wednesday night, damaging a navigation pylon but there has been no other such incident since.

Mitterrand said in an interview with a regional newspaper that he would continue his crackdown on Basque 'extremists', warning that political exiles must respect French laws and renounce 'violence'.

Mitterrand arrived in Bayonne after meeting civic officials at Pau, in the foothills of the Pyrenees and touring installations of the Elf-Aquitaine oil company.

Appeal

He made a call for 'closer co-operation with the right-wing opposition' in an appeal presumably to the Gaullist opposition to support his anti-working class austerity programme.

Making an analogy with rugby football, he said:

'It is up to us all now to attend shoulder-to-shoulder so as to halt this bickering quickly and to become again good workers for the France of the future.'

Aborigines denied land rights

WEST Australian Aboriginal leaders have condemned the abolition of their right to a say in how their traditional lands are mined and explored.

The state Labour government of Premier Brian Burke last month rejected a Cabinet-commissioned inquiry's recommendations and legislated unfettered access to Aboriginal lands by the powerful mining lobby.

Rob Riley, chairman of the National Aboriginal Council, accused the Burke government and the Federal Labour government of Prime Minister Bob Hawke of striking a deal to 'ensure the Labour Party's political survival'.

The chairman of the state Labour Party's Aboriginal Affairs Committee, Ivan Yarran, has threatened to resign in protest against the Burke government's attitude to the community.

Australian Aborigines, who make up about 1.5 per cent of the population, own about 8 per cent of the land but mostly in barren areas of South Australia and the Northern Territory.

From ROBERT VOYSEY in Perth

Burke's decision demonstrates a callous disregard, with racist overtones.

It rides roughshod over the Seaman Inquiry's warning that Aboriginal society could disintegrate if they were not granted veto rights and is a servile concession to mining interests and a blow to a long fight by Aborigines for land rights.

The mining lobby predictably has welcomed Burke's acceptance of the industry's 'basic concern'.

Mine owners said the industry's role as the country's 'major revenue earner' would have been jeopardised if they had not been assured of 'reasonable access to land'.

The Hawke government, which theoretically has overriding powers on Aboriginal affairs, has refused to comment on the scandalous trampling of Aboriginal rights in Western Australia.

On paper, federal law stipulates that anyone wanting to explore or mine Aboriginal land must obtain the consent of the traditional owners and compensate them adequately. In practice, this law is a fraud.

Riley said it was 'disappointing' that the state government had ignored the inquiry commendations urging veto rights for the Aboriginal community.

Burke, in a cynical gesture, has condescended to set up a tribunal to arbitrate on Aboriginal 'land claims', which means the state government will consider such claims only where they apply to barren, remote and inhospitable lands.

Gunmen kill five in Bekaa

BEIRUT — Five people were killed by gunmen who entered a village in Israeli-occupied south Lebanon in the western Bekaa Valley yesterday.

The Shi'ite Muslim militia Amal said the victims were villagers gunned down in the marketplace by Israeli-backed militiamen.

Beirut police, quoting police telegrams from the south, said unidentified gunmen entered the village of Libbaya and shot dead five people.

Libbaya is four miles (seven kilometres) from the Shi'ite village of Sohmar, where members of the Israeli-sponsored 'South Lebanon army' (SLA), last month massacred 13 people and wounded dozens after ordering them to gather in a village square.

Militiamen of the SLA, paid, trained and armed by Israel, carried out the September 20 massacre after an attack on an SLA patrol near Sohmar in which four militiamen died.

Israeli military authorities banned Beirut-based reporters from the south after the massacre and Beirut police said they were unable to identify the attackers in the latest killings.

An Amal spokesman at the Beirut home of Cabinet minister and Amal leader Nabih Berri said the killings were carried out by members of the SLA, headed by retired Lebanese Brigadier Antoine Lahd.

'At noon we received information from the area saying an armed group from the Lahd militia entered the village of Libbaya early this morning and asked several people to gather in the market and started shooting, killing five people and wounding several others,' the spokesman said.

Arafat critical of the EEC

BRUSSELS — Yassir Arafat, Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO) leader has accused the Common Market of neglecting the Palestine cause despite its special interest in the region.

In an interview with the Belgian news agency Belga and the Belgian newspapers 'Le Soir' and 'De Standard' published yesterday, Arafat said that even Israel's continued military presence in Lebanon had not changed the European attitude towards the Palestinians.

'Four years after the declaration of the Venice summit the 10 member states are still at odds over an initiative in favour of the Palestinians,' he said.

At that 1980 summit, leaders of the EEC member states said it was time to recognise the existence of all states in the region and their rights to security, including Israel.

This implied the recognition of the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people they added.

Cairo demands aid

CAIRO — Egypt had asked the US Agency for International Development (USAID) for more money next year to help it service its huge military debt, Egyptian Planning Minister Kamal Ahmed Ganzouri said yesterday.

After a meeting with USAID administrator Peter McPherson, in Cairo on a five-day visit, Ganzouri said:

'We're asking for an additional grant for 1985 to be in a better position to pay our military debt.'

The US Congress has already approved $815 million in USAID grants to Egypt next year, the largest USAID programme for any country.

Brighton bomb aids Tory Bonapartism

THE WORKERS Revolutionary Party declares its total political opposition to the terror bombing of the Tory Party leadership in the Grand Hotel, Brighton, and we condemn the Provisional IRA which has claimed responsibility for it.

Our opposition is derived from the fact that acts of individual terror only strengthen reaction, the Tory ruling class and its state. Conversely, they cause political confusion and divisions in the ranks of the working class.

As a Marxist party, the Workers Revolutionary Party has every confidence in the historical fact that the working class is the force to politically defeat the Tories. That requires the scientific development of Marxism in the working class in building a revolutionary leadership to lead the struggle for workers' power.

But not the petty bourgeois republicans. They career from one political misadventure to the next. One month they are worshipping the ballot box, the next they are detonating bombs at Harrods, and the month after they are issuing public apologies.

In its centuries-old occupation of Ireland, British imperialism has put to death probably hundreds of thousands of Irish men, women and children. Only four years ago the Thatcher government sent 13 brave H-Block hunger strikers to their death.

With this in mind, do the authors of yesterday's stupid outrage seriously think that it will change the government's mind or bring about Ireland's freedom? It does nothing for the struggle for a united Ireland and, worse still, it plays directly into the hands of Thatcher's Bonapartist dictatorship.

Whether they like it or not, the IRA has once again objectively served the interests of the British state. They have not damaged it, they have created the conditions for Thatcher and her ultra-reactionary friends to escalate the creation of a police-military dictatorship over the working class.

It happens just as the British working class is discovering what it is like to live under Ulster-style conditions. In the course of the seven-month miners' strike the Thatcher government has brought Ulster to Britain and created for the first time the conditions for a united struggle by both British and Irish workers to defeat British imperialism.

But at the precise moment when the establishment of this unity in common struggle against the common enemy becomes so critical, the IRA returns to the bomb after an absence of ten months.

For the Thatcher regime, the bomb attack could not have come at a more convenient time. The economy is on the rocks and sinking fast, the £250 million failure of Johnson Matthey bank is threatening the liquidity of the rest of the British banks, the miners' strike is pushing into its 31st week and the 'Belgrano' scandal is refusing to go away.

But all this was brushed aside yesterday afternoon when Thatcher spoke at the Tory conference and played her favourite role as Boadicea-Wellington-Churchill rolled into one.

The ruling class and the Tory press has now swung into a carefully-synchronised campaign of hysteria. Its cynical purpose is to milk this bomb incident for everything it is worth.

We give this sincere political warning to the working class: Be vigilant, be on guard. Bonapartism breeds provocations.

There are secret departments of the capitalist state that will be ready to take the calling card of the IRA and engage in further outrages to get the Chile-type regime which they want so badly.

JOB'S NOT JAIL

BY SIMON VEVERS

BEARING a bright red and white banner demanding: 'Jobs, not jail', wives of jailed Cammell Laird shipyard workers yesterday led a 1,000-strong demonstration through Liverpool to demand their release from prison.

Behind them came delegations of striking car workers, miners, and shipyard men — all of them insisting on united action to free the 37 class war prisoners incarcerated in Walton jail.

They cheered Mary Mooney, whose husband Mick, is in prison, when she told a rally at the city's Pier Head: 'They are locked up for 23 hours a day, but their only crime has been to fight for their jobs.'

'The Tory government has been talking all week about people's democratic rights.'

'Well, what happened to democracy when they threw those men in jail?'

She urged workers to take action to free the men and also to throw scabs, who had crossed official picket lines, out of the union.

Jailed

The demonstration and rally was organised by the General and Municipal Boilermakers and Allied Trade Union after the 37 workers were jailed for defying a high court order to end their occupation of a rig at the yard.

During the march through the city centre, a vocal contingent from the Workers Revolutionary Party and Young Socialists chanted: 'Organise a General Strike, Free the 37!'

At the rally, GMBATU

Mary Mooney, whose husband Mick is in Walton jail, speaking at the rally general secretary David Basnett said the union would 'continue to put its resources behind getting the 37 out of Walton prison.'

But, like other trade union leaders on the platform, he was heckled when he ignored calls from the audience at the rally for all-out action by trade unionists to free the jailed workers.

He called instead for a mass meeting of workers at the yard who are crossing official picket lines to demand that they come out on strike.

Basnett said: 'There was no reason whatsoever for British Shipbuilders to seek enforced redundancies at Cammell Laird. They had sufficient volunteers.

'They sought them so they could sack trade unionists from Cammell Laird and destroy trade union organisation in the yard.'

'Laws in this country are being turned against trade unionists,' added Basnett, who called for 'the fight back to begin against these laws'.

He concluded by urging Merseyside trade unionists 'to join in the escalating campaign to get the Laird's 37 out'.

David Gough, district secretary of the Confederation of Shipbuilding and Engineering Unions (CSEU), denounced the men masquerading as trade unionists who had stabbed the Cam-mell Laird's workers in the back by scabbing.

He said: 'Those 37 lads in jail are the only people acting in accordance with the agreed policy of the CSEU.'

'Our support for workers taking industrial action to defend jobs has not changed.'

Gough added: 'This Tory government has no intention nor ever had any intention, of putting work into Cammell Laird.'

The Tories planned to destroy trade union organisation in the yard as a prelude to selling it off at a knock-down price to a private entrepreneur.

GMBATU national chairman Dick Pickering told the rally that he had visited the 37 in jail, and that they were not even considering a judge's order that they purge their contempt and apologise for their defiance of Tory class laws.

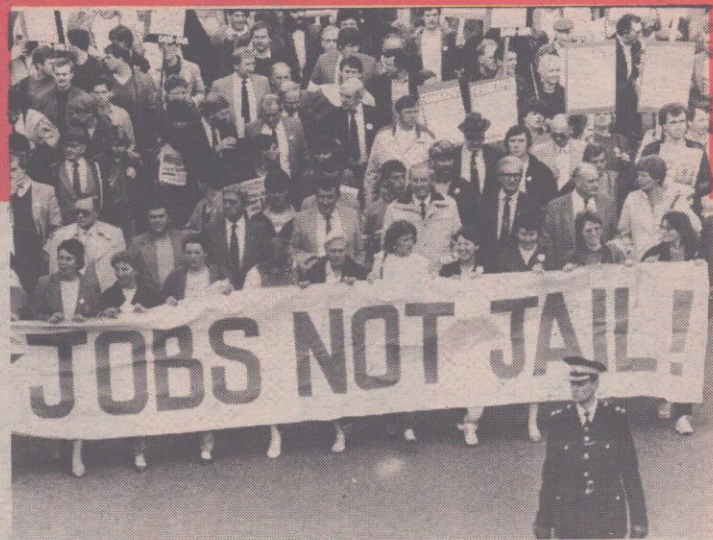

Garston Labour MP, Eddie Loyden, warned: 'All the words will mean nothing unless the mobilisation of the trade union and labour movement takes place as it did to free the five dockers in Pentonville in 1972.'

Rally

The wives of the jailed 37 had to leave the rally early in order to visit their husbands in jail. Earlier, leader of the three-month occupation Billy Albertina, his three brothers, Francis, John and James and their uncle Eddie were released on parole for a few hours to attend their mother's funeral.

Despite an earlier assurance from the prison authorities that they would be allowed out until 7p.m. the five were ordered to be back in their cells by 3p.m.

A large crowd of friends and relatives gathered outside the home of Doreen Albertina in Hopwood Street to pay their respects before the funeral cortege left for St Andrews' church in Scotland Road.

'Jobs not jail!' was the chant taken up by the Cammell Laird wives

Judge upholds bail conditions

THE Bonapartist judiciary yesterday struck out at the miners for the second time this week.

In a judgement the terms of which bore a marked resemblance to statements by Tory ministers, the High Court upheld Draconian bail conditions imposed on pickets.

The ruling came two days after another judge had fined the NUM £200,000 and president Arthur Scargill £1,000 for repeating that the strike was official.

Yesterday Lord Lane, the Lord Chief Justice, said Nottinghamshire magistrates had been right to conclude that such conditions were necessary.

Pickets arrested on Nottinghamshire picket lines are restricted under bail conditions to picketing their own pits

Dismissed

He dismissed an application by nine Yorkshire miners for their bail conditions to be quashed.

All nine have been ordered not to picket or demonstrate anywhere except at their own pits.

Up to the end of July some 2,000 miners had appeared before Mansfield magistrates and the special conditions were imposed in over 90 per cent of the cases.

The reasoning behind the judgement was hardly unexpected, with Lane declaring:

'Where large numbers of pickets assemble — as they have been doing in the East Midlands coalfield — with the intention of trying to prevent working miners from going to work by threats of violence and the force of numbers, there is no doubt that each picketing miner who is proved to be party to such intimidation or bullying is guilty at least of an offence under the Public Order Act.'

Leaving aside the fact that none of the nine had been convicted of anything, the judge added:

'Against that background, the magistrates were right to conclude that, if no conditions were imposed, offences would be committed by these defendants while on bail.'

Dismissing the applications, he said: 'One of the first requirements of any civilised society is that bullying should not succeed — that mere physical strength of numbers should not be permitted to coerce the weaker or the fewer in number.'

Lane was critical of the more blatant procedures in the magistrates' courts, such as the practice of putting into the dock miners who had been arrested on different occasions and at different places, as had occurred in the present case.

He also thought it did the magistrates 'no credit' if their clerk continued to affix standard conditions to bail forms even while applications were being made for unconditional bail.

Hearing

Lane's ruling was supported by Mr Justice Stuart-Smith and Mr Justice Leggatt.

During the High Court hearing, John MacDonald, QC, for the nine, had argued that the conditions were imposed in contravention of the 1976 Bail Act.

He had said the magistrates had not given proper consideration to the individual circumstances of each miner but wrongly applied a blanket policy to arrested miners.

MacDonald said they were not 'wild men of the picket lines' and the policy went to the heart of civil liberties.

But Lane retorted: 'By the time these defendants appeared in court, it must have been clear to everyone, and the magistrates in particular, that any suggestion of peaceful picketing was a colourable pretence and that it was a question of picketing by intimidation or threat.'

Winning Post

ASCOT REVENGE FOR DOULAB

DOULAB (3.35) can gain revenge on Prince Sabo for his short-head defeat in the Flying Childers Stakes when the pair renew rivalry in the Cornwallis Stakes at ASCOT today.

Tom Jones's Gimcrack winner, placed in all six starts, was catching Prince Sabo fast at the finish at Doncaster, and although they have no further to go this time, the stiff Ascot track should enable him to reverse the form.

The other Group Three race on Ascot's final flat card of the season is the Princess Royal Stakes, in which Girl Friday (2.30) will be hard to beat, provided she doesn't need the race, her first since she finished second to Sandy Island in the Lancashire Oaks three months ago.

By far the hardest race for punters is the Bovis Handicap, in which most of the field are not without some sort of chance.

Our preference is for Boeizinge (3.00) who, although only 2lbs better off with last year's winning dead-heater Young Inca for a two-length defeat over course and distance last month, is the type to appreciate today's easier surface.

Three very competitive handicaps form the main part of the YORK card. However, winners may not be as hard to come by as it would first appear.

Melaura Belle (3.00) looks to have been given an excellent chance in the Coral Bookmakers Sprint Trophy Handicap. This filly found her form last autumn and looked to be coming to hand again when a fine third to the smart pair Double Schwartz and Gatus recently. Judged on that effort, she should be carrying more weight than she has been allotted here.

Able Albert is another favoured by the weights and he came right back to his best when winning the Ayr Gold Cup last month.

LATE-NIGHT LENDL STILL WINS THROUGH

IVAN LENDL ... Thrashed Peter Fleming for a semi-final place

IVAN LENDL of Czechoslovakia had only four hours sleep but was still fresh enough to overwhelm American Peter Fleming 6-4, 6-2 in the quarter-finals of the Australian Indoor Tennis Championships in Sydney last night.

'I played a round of golf, sat up and watched the World Series baseball and then a movie until 5a.m.,' said Lendl, explaining his unorthodox preparation for the match.

Lendl now meets Eliot Teltscher in the semi-finals. Both players are in outstanding form, Teltscher having won the Brisbane Classic last week and reached the last four in Sydney by crushing Australian Brad Drewett, 6-3, 6-0.

● SECOND-seeded Carling Bassett of Canada and fourth-seeded American Pam Casale won in straight sets on Thursday to reach the quarter-finals of the $150,000 tournament at Tarpon Springs, Florida.

Bassett eliminated American Jenny Klitch and Casale defeated Andrea Leand of the US 6-2, 6-0.

Top-seeded Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia beat American Micheala Washington in a second round match, 6-2, 6-1.

● TOP SEED Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia was beaten by Sweden's Stefan Edberg in the quarter-finals of the $150,000 Basle Grand Prix in Switzerland yesterday.

Earlier Edberg's compatriot Joakim Nystrom, seeded third, beat another Czech, Pavel Slozil, 6-3, 6-4.

Edberg, seeded sixth, won 7-6, 6-4 in a closely-fought match which featured plenty of exciting exchanges. The two Swedes meet in today's first semi-final.

● RAIN washed out play in the Japanese Open in Tokyo yesterday for the second consecutive day. Officials said the tournament's finals had been moved to Monday from Sunday.

● THE INTERNATIONAL Tennis Federation (ITF) said yesterday that it would rule on Tuesday in the US-Swedish dispute over dates for the Davis Cup and asked Sweden in the meantime to try and find a venue and dates acceptable to both teams.

Polished Pakistan beat India

PAKISTAN produced a polished, all-round performance to outplay World Cup cricket holders India and win the first one-day international by 46 runs in Quetta yesterday.

Facing a modest target of 200, India faltered after an early flourish from opener Surinder Khanna and were bowled out for 153 in 37.1 overs.

The architects of Pakistan's victory were skipper Zaheer Abbas and debutant all-rounders Manzoor Elahi and Naveed Anjum.

ZAHEER ABBAS

Zaheer scored a sparkling 55 on a difficult pitch, while Manzoor (36) and Naveed (30) weighed in with valuable knocks which took Pakistan to 199 for seven in 40 overs.

When India replied, pace-man Tahir Naqqash removed openers Ravi Shastri and Khanna and then Naveed and Manzoor wrapped up the match with their medium pacers, picking up two wickets each as the Indian batsmen surrendered without much of a fight.

India will be looking for a sharp improvement during the rest of the tour which includes three Tests and two more one-day internationals.

clash today

UNITED CHALLENGE

BRYAN ROBSON . . . Passed fit to face West Ham yesterday afternoon

A YEAR AGO, almost to the day, Manchester United went top of the First Division following a 3-0 victory over West Brom at Old Trafford.

United would have remained in second place but for the drubbing West Ham, today's visitors to Old Trafford, received at the hands of Liverpool at Upton Park. How fortunes change in the space of a year in the world of football.

Despite an injury list of mammoth proportions this season, West Ham have rarely been outside the top-six, whilst United, after a mediocre start of four draws on the trot, have at last stepped up their claims as possible successors to Liverpool's crown.

And there was good news in the northern city last night when it was revealed that their skipper Bryan Robson had passed a fitness test and will be able to play this afternoon.

Inclusion

Ironically, the news of Robson's inclusion in United's team was greeted with an air that bordered on relief by West Ham boss John Lyall.

'I would have been almost as upset as the home fans if he had been missing as well as Frank Stapleton and Arnold Muhren,' Lyall said.

'We always like playing against players of outstanding ability. A point at Old Trafford is worth three at most grounds, but I personally don't look for that sort of help or short cut to a good result.

'You play your best eleven and you're disappointed when the opposition can't do the same,' Lyall added.

'There is no player in Europe more effective going forward from midfield than Robson. He's in the Platini class. I like to think he represents the sort of challenge my players want to face to prove their own worth.'

Robson himself made the final decision on his fitness. 'He did everything in the Friday training that the rest did and there seemed to be no problem,' said manager Ron Atkinson. 'I let him decide and he said he would play.'

CYRILLE REGIS

Mark Hughes leads the United attack and, with Stapleton troubled by a back injury, Norman Whiteside is substitute.

A clash with reserve goalkeeper Jeff Wealds in training left Kevin Moran with a knee injury. He should be fit, however, to take his place this afternoon.

Fifth-placed West Ham keep the eleven who beat Bristol City 6-1 in midweek as they seek only their second win at Old Trafford in 20 years.

Geoff Pike, a survivor of the 1976 success, plays his 250th League game for the club refusing to see a jinx on the fixture.

'It's more sensible for us to look back to our 0-0 draw there last year at a time when we were going really strong for the title,' Pike said yesterday.

Visit

■ ARSENAL, the current League leaders, are unchanged for their visit to Leicester City where they were beaten 3-0 last season.

A new resilience in his side has galvanised the Gunners' hopes of a League Championship title this season according to manager Don Howe and they could go some way this afternoon to avenging that setback last season.

■ AFTER a rash of injury worries earlier in the week, fourth-placed Sheffield Wednesday were able to announce an unchanged side for the visit to Luton.

Manager Howard Wilkinson had no less than seven first team players on the treatment table at Hillsborough since Tuesday, but now all of them have come through fitness tests.

Luton have had their own problems, but their young centre-half Paul Elliott trained yesterday and is expected to take his place in defence today.

■ WEST BROMWICH Albion, who took a point at Anfield last Saturday, face second-placed Nottingham Forest at the Hawthorns this afternoon.

Manager Johnny Giles yesterday completed the transfer of Carl Valentine from Vancouver Whitecaps for £60,000, but he is unable to play against Forest because the registration forms won't have been lodged with the Football League in time.

Forest are unchanged following their 3-0 midweek Milk Cup victory over Portsmouth.

■ FORMER West Brom central striker Cyrille Regis makes his debut for Coventry against Newcastle at Highfield Road.

Regis links up with a former England teammate of his, Peter Barnes, who joined the Sky Blues last weekend.

Pat Heard returns for Newcastle after missing the Milk Cup clash on Wednesday because he was cup-tied.

Damaged

■ EVERTON'S Kevin Richardson, who damaged a toe in the Milk Cup victory over Sheffield United is ruled out of the team to face Aston Villa at Goodison Park.

Former Liverpool defender Alan Harper is his replacement, making his first full appearance this season.

Villa will have the French international Didier Six in their line-up once again after his impressive debut in the club's 3-0 victory over Manchester United last weekend.

SCOTSCENE

Celtic look to Mo for goals

HOMESICK Mo Johnston is assured a hero's welcome at Parkhead today. Celtic fans, still deeply resentful towards the departed Charlie Nicholas, have been yearning for a new idol — and Johnston got the part.

There was no questioning the striker's own obvious delight when attending his first Parkhead training session.

'It's absolute magic,' he said, smiling broadly.

'I'll tell you how much I wanted to play for Celtic. I bought a lovely new house in the Watford area, but now I'll have to sell it, without spending even one night in it, and I don't even care.'

Johnston goes straight into Celtic's Premier League team at home to Hibs this afternoon.

Arrival

Beneath the euphoria of his arrival, however, there will be no little pressure on the ex-Partick Thistle player.

This is clearly intentional on the part of Celtic boss David Hay, who said on local radio yesterday:

'I'm sure Mo will go out and score goals like he did at Watford. He has got this star quality.'

● Comparative gloom, meanwhile, clouds the Rangers team as it travels to take on St Mirren today. The Ibrox side's loss of form has clearly got manager Jock Wallace puzzled, judging by his admission that no amount of 'shouting and bawling' will do any good.

The last week has been a bad one for Rangers, with loss of both points to Hearts and humiliatingly scraping only a draw in the midweek Skol Cup game against lowly Meadowbank.

Difficult

Regaining some zip will prove difficult against St Mirren who have not been beaten by Rangers either at home or away since ex-Ranger Alex Miller took over at the Paisley club.

● Aberdeen know they must beat Dundee at Dens Park to be sure of keeping ahead of Celtic at the top of the Premier League.

CROOKS STEALS THE POINTS

TOTTENHAM went back to the top of the First Division last night with a 1-0 victory over League Champions Liverpool at White Hart Lane.

The scoreline, however, never reflected Spurs' domination of the game as Mike Hazard again turned in a magnificent midfield performance.

The goal that separated the teams at the end of the night came after 37 minutes from a corner kick earned by Garth Crooks off Allan Hansen.

John Chiedozie crossed, Graham Roberts rose above the Liverpool defence and his goalward effort was neatly flicked past the despairing Bruce Grobbelaar by Crooks.

It was no more than Spurs deserved after continual pressure. Crooks should have scored after 13 minutes when Hazard released a perfect pass into his teammate's path.

So while Tottenham stole an eight-point lead in the table on the European Champions, Liverpool's recent problems were compounded by another performance that lacked any kind of authority in midfield and a striker capable of cashing in on the odd chance created during the 90 minutes.

Indeed, the only player in the creative department on the pitch proved to be Hazard who, although he faded a little as the game ran its course, was never far from the action throughout.

Jan Molby, Liverpool's Danish international signed during the close season, once again failed to come to grips with the faster pace at which the game is played this side of the Channel, while Steve Nicol, Ronnie Whelan and John Wark laboured in vain to wrest Tottenham's total domination in midfield.

There was more bad news for the Champions after the final whistle when it was learned that Paul Walsh, who was injured in the 57th minute and replaced by Garry Gillespie, tore ligaments and may be out for a fortnight.

Liverpool could have grabbed an undeserved equaliser in the final seconds of the game when, from a throw-in taken by Molby, Wark's instinctive shot at goal was well saved by Ray Clemence.

The game lost a lot of its impetus after the interval as Liverpool's negative tactics took some of the heat out of Tottenham's creativity and Hazard began to have less of an influence on matters.

Joe Fagan would now appear to have a multitude of problems to discuss at Anfield when the players report back for training next week.

Spurs, on the other hand, will regard last night's victory as another successful chapter in their bid to bring the League Championship back to north London after a 24-year absence and augurs well for their Milk Cup chances later this month.
