

Yes vote by guards IT MUST BE A STRIKE

LEADERS of the National Union of Railwaymen are confident of a massive 'yes' vote for industrial action to fight the introduction of driver-only trains.

The ballot result will be declared this afternoon and then the union's national executive will meet to decide what action to take in response to the provocative action of British Rail management.

NUR assistant general secretary Charlie Turnock said last night: 'All-out strike action by all our guards is the highest possibility.'

'But there are a lot of options below that which we can take. They may not necessarily call for immediate all-out strike action.'

However the NUR leadership is under strong pressure to call a nationwide stoppage following the sacking of guards at Glasgow, Immingham, and Margam and Llanelli in South Wales.

They were dismissed after refusing to submit to an ultimatum from BR management to accept the destruction of existing agreements and the imposition of one-man operation.

Warned

Ian Wilshaw, leader of the guards at New Street station in Birmingham, warned that any delay in calling national strike action would play into the hands of the BR chiefs and the Tory government.

'An all-out strike which will really hit them hard is the only way. No-one likes to lose money, but there is no alternative,' he told News Line last night.

'There has been talk of a ban on rest day working and a work to rule, but that could drag on for 10 years without getting us anywhere.'

'That would suit them down to the ground and would be nothing more than a backdoor method for closing down the railways.'

— say NUR members

Wilshaw, who is secretary of the local departmental committee, is confident that a majority of guards at the giant Midlands station have voted in favour of industrial action.

'Over half of the people who voted were quite proud and quite prepared to show that they were putting a cross in the "yes" box.'

He is equally adamant that the NUR must demand that the TUC congress next week mobilise the whole trade union movement behind the guards' fight to defend jobs and conditions.

'Obviously this is a political dispute sponsored by Thatcher and Sir Robert Reid (BR chairman). I sincerely hope that the TUC will decide to bring things to a head and really work on this one.'

'They did let the miners down terribly and unfortunately did nothing for the train drivers in 1982. They have to make a stand this time,' Wilshaw said.

Refused

BR management continued to inflame feelings among railwaymen at London's Kings Cross station yesterday when it refused to allow 11 suspended guards back to work.

The men reported for duty but were not allowed to run trains on the Welwyn line where they have followed NUR policy in opposing one-man operation.

Apartheid police arrest march leader

JOHANNESBURG — The police yesterday arrested Rev Allan Boesak, the anti-apartheid campaigner who was to lead today's mass march demanding the release of Nelson Mandela.

The clergyman's lawyer, Essa Moosa, said later: 'He will obviously be most disappointed that he won't be at the march. But it is impossible to call it off now.'

Thousands of troops and armed police have been put on duty in Cape Town today to prevent the marchers reaching the Pollsmoor Prison where Mandela is serving a life sentence.

His wife, Winnie Mandela, has pledged to be on the illegal march if she is able to evade the security forces while travelling from Soweto near Johannesburg to Cape Town.

Eye witnesses said Dr Boesak, 39, was picked up at a police roadblock while driving from Cape Town University.

Boesak, president of the World Alliance of Reformed Churches and a patron of the United Democratic Front (UDF), was arrested under the Internal Security Act which allows indefinite detention and solitary confinement.

Last week he called for 'South Africans in their thousands' to take part in the banned march in 'a day of solidarity that will turn the country on its head'.

He urged students, teachers, academics, clergymen and workers to join the march demanding Mandela's release which was 'an essential prerequisite to a meaningful solution in South Africa'.

The UDF said it was 'duty-bound' to mobilise for the demonstration because Mandela was one of its founding patrons.

Earlier this week racist Minister of Law and Order Louis le Grange urged the public to ignore Boesak's call saying the march was illegal and the police would take 'stern action' against it.

NIGERIA COUP OUSTS BUHARI

LAGOS — The 20-month-old military regime of President Mohammed Buhari was overthrown yesterday by rival army officers led by Major-General Ibrahim Babangida.

The new military ruler was Buhari's Chief of Army Staff and is described as a politically ambitious Moslem from the north.

Babangida was chief planner of the coup which overthrew civilian President Shehu Shagari and brought Buhari to power on New Year's Eve 1983.

BY A FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT

Announcing the bloodless coup, Brigadier Joshua Dogoniaro accused the ousted Buhari of concentrating power in the hands of a select few on the ruling Military Council.

Members of the Buhari clique abused their authority and regarded anyone who offered advice as disloyal, Dogoniaro added.

The change of uniforms at the top went almost unnoticed in the working class. Life went on as normal in Lagos although a temporary curfew has been imposed.

Since Buhari's coup against the corrupt civilian administration of Shehu Shagari, the economic crisis in Nigeria has gone from bad to worse.

Unemployment is soaring, inflation is growing daily, there are shortages of food and consumer goods in the shops and the country is falling rapidly behind in its debt repayments to Western banks.

The slump in the world price of oil and OPEC production cutbacks has pushed Nigeria deeper into debt and reduced its foreign reserves to virtually nothing.

The scarcity of cash has led to sharp cutbacks in the import of spare parts creating chaotic shortages in the shops. At the same time it has stimulated the activities of the blackmarket and state corruption.

Buhari's government angered the trade unions by cancelling dozens of huge projects, some of them partly constructed, and dismissing thousands of workers in state ministries.

The crisis in the cities has been compounded by government neglect of farming, causing agricultural output to slump and the food import bill to rise.

Buhari's regime became deeply unpopular following a series of sweeping attacks on political and civil rights.

£100,000 Emergency Fund

WE MUST issue an urgent warning today. The total received in yesterday's post fell below £200. The amount received was £183.98.

Now is the time to step up the campaign for our Emergency Fund, and not to slack off.

On the eve of the TUC Congress in Blackpool, the Thatcher regime is stepping up its provocation against the working class. Railworkers have recognised the need to take action to defend jobs and trade unionism on British Rail, while the whole trade union movement faces the prospect of one-day strike action in defence of trade unionism at Cheltenham GCHQ.

As the March to Release Jailed Miners is proving on its route from Cottonwood to Blackpool, workers are recognising the urgent need for the organisation of the General Strike against the Thatcher dictatorship.

The driving force for the fast approaching General Strike confrontation is the world economic and political crisis. In South Africa, the rand and gold mining shares are falling as the black youth and workers continue their defiant struggle against the imperialist bulwark of apartheid slavery.

And the struggle in South Africa is merely the sharpest edge of the growing international resistance of the world working class to the burdens of capitalist slump and the policies of the International Monetary Fund.

Our Emergency Fund is vital to the building of the revolutionary leadership for great struggles ahead. Never before has there been such a need, nor such opportunities for the development of the News Line, Marxist education, and the building of the Young Socialists and Workers Revolutionary Party.

Do not slow up your work for the Emergency Fund. Raise these vital issues with News Line readers, fellow trade unionists, youth and their middle class allies.

Our thanks go to: Skelmersdale £7.50, Stoke-on-Trent £7.00, Kirkby £10, Burnley £10, Bristol North £27.24, Bracknell £9.84, Reading £26, Exeter £1.40, Bristol South £13, Oxford £4, Lowestoft £5, Southall £3, Highbury £20, Charlton £40.

This brings our overall total to: £61,060.08

Solidarity with Nicaragua

TED KNIGHT

MANAGUA — Lambeth Council leader Ted Knight has expressed solidarity with Nicaragua in its fight against US imperialism.

He is visiting Nicaragua as part of celebrations marking the twinning of Lambeth and the city of Bluefields on Nicaragua's Atlantic coast.

'We are not here on a holiday in the sun,' Knight told reporters in Managua.

'We are here to find out the difficulties faced by the people of Bluefields and how we can assist.

High Court move on NGA

THE NGA print union has been served with a High Court injunction on behalf of 'Mirror' owner Robert Maxwell.

Union officials at the Thomson Withy Grove print works in Manchester were ordered late on Monday night to work normally. The firm, which Maxwell is soon to buy, prints the 'Mirror' northern editions under contract.

However, copies of the 'Mirror' failed to appear yesterday, while plans to produce editions of the 'Sporting Life' also collapsed last night.

Despite the intensification of the dispute, NGA general secretary Tony Dubbins was involved in talks yesterday with NUJ general secretary Harry Conroy in preparation for a possible meeting with Maxwell.

Maxwell has so far sacked 858 NGA members at Mirror Group Newspapers in London, where both the southern editions of the 'Mirror' and the 'Sporting Life' are printed.

There has not been a

Manchester print run of Mirror Group Newspapers since last Thursday when NGA men at the plant refused to do extra work because of the shut-down in London.

Meanwhile, Maxwell apparently intends to go ahead with plans to transfer setting and printing of the 'Sporting Life' to the Oyez printing plant

Court action against NUM dropped

TWO blackleg miners yesterday dropped the court action which led to the sequestration of the NUM — but a High Court judge has refused to consider lifting receivership until October.

Manton miners Bob Taylor and Ken Foulstone dropped the case yesterday after receiving an assurance by the NUM that it would not take disciplinary action against them.

But NUM president Arthur Scargill reacted angrily when he heard that actions to discharge the sequestrators and official Receiver will not be heard for at least a month.

He said in Durham: 'It is ironic that there is no case against the NUM and yet we still have an order of sequestration against the union on the basis of an action brought in 1984. That action was today discharged.'

'This action and the subsequent appointment of a Receiver has cost union members over £1 million.

'If there is any justice left in Britain's courts, the order of sequestration should immediately be removed and the Receiver should also be discharged.'

The two Yorkshire blacklegs yesterday won the approval of Mr Justice Scott in the London High Court for an agreement under which both men abandon their actions against the Yorkshire area NUM and the national union.

Rulings

The actions had resulted in rulings that the strike in Yorkshire was unlawful. In contempt actions which followed, the union was fined £200,000, and sequestrators ordered to seize NUM assets.

A subsequent action, brought by a group of miners including Colin Clarke of the National Working Miners Committee, resulted in the appointment of a Receiver to run the union's affairs.

In court yesterday, Tim Kerr, counsel for the NUM, told the judge that the object of the agreement with the two Yorkshire miners was to dispose of their actions in their entirety.

Strike at Tyne Tees television

NEWS programmes were blacked out again yesterday on Tyne Tees Television when staff took strike action to oppose the loss of one in three jobs.

Over 300 members of the Broadcasting and Entertainment Trades Alliance took one-day strike action over plans by the company to make more than 100 people redundant.

Journalists at the station honoured BETA picket lines.

'Rainbow Warrior' sinking — the British connection

LABOUR foreign affairs spokesman George Foulkes has called on Tory ministers to rebut charges that MI6 — the British secret service — had a hand in the sinking of the Greenpeace ship 'Rainbow Warrior'.

In reaction to allegations circulating in France, Foulkes said suggestions of wider involvement of the 'intelligence old pals' network rang true.

'I am asking that the Foreign Secretary should carry out an immediate investigation to ascertain whether or not there was any British involvement and make a statement,' Foulkes said.

'The security services in Western Europe work together and it could well be the case that there was some assistance from Britain.'

Like millions of others, Foulkes said he was 'unconvinced' by the official French report on the affair.

In his letter to Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe, Foulkes said: 'This could, of course, be a diversionary tactic by French intelligence, but in view of the known regular co-operation between western European countries on intelligence matters in some unfortunate escapades in the past, it does regrettably have a ring of truth.'

Labour's environment spokesman Dr David Clark called on Thatcher for a reassurance that British intelligence was not involved.

Dr Clark questioned Thatcher in parliament at the time of the sinking and she agreed to offer the government's assistance to the New Zealand authorities in their investigation.

He said yesterday: 'In retrospect I am concerned at the grudging response of the Prime Minister which has left me with some suspicion that Britain was in some way involved in the sinking.'

'This was reinforced when I heard Mr Tricot on television state that this was not impossible.'

Labour MP for Kingston upon Hull John Prescott said that Britain should have its own inquiry into the sinking.

Scots guards insist on Labour's support

THE controlling Labour group on Strathclyde regional council has distanced itself from British Rail's mass sackings of guards. But the guards say it is not enough.

Councillor Charles Gray, deputy Labour leader, said concern had been expressed to BR over the dismissals. The National Union of Railwaymen's call for full reinstatement of the men was supported by the Labour group, said Gray.

Until this statement, BR bosses in Scotland had claimed the total support of Strathclyde region in its attempt to steamroller Glasgow Central guards into breaking NUR ranks and accept driver-only trains.

Indeed, Strathclyde's transport committee chairman Malcolm Waugh himself issued a statement at the start of the dispute — virtually heaping all blame on the NUR for the threat to services.

But, with the Central station guards starting this week to receive P45s confirming their dismissals already publicly announced, pressure has been growing amongst Labour councillors to disassociate the region from BR's tactics.

August Fund needs
all your support

ONLY four days left and we are now extremely anxious. Our August total stands at £2,007.11 which is dangerously low. Time has almost run out and we need a huge effort immediately, with your donations flooding in, to reach our £8,000 target in time.

It is certainly needed now as a major class confrontation builds up on a world scale. The decision of the African workers to demonstrate for the release of Nelson Mandela, in spite of the march being declared illegal, shows the growing defiance of the mass movement against imperialism.

A world revolutionary situation is opening up and in a period such as this, the News Line is decisive.

Please give our paper all your support. Don't hold back for a moment. Raise every amount you possibly can and post it immediately to:

Sharp drop in exports

TORY hopes of a £3 billion trade surplus this year took a further dive yesterday with the release of the monthly trade figures.

Despite an increase of £160 million over the June figures, July's current account surplus of £444 million has failed to lift figures as high as was predicted.

After seven months of figures, the total surplus stands at a mere £1,187, little over a third of the projected target.

Sources in the Department of Trade and Industry are also worried about the falling export levels. Exports dropped £205 million to £6,324 million.

Much of this fall was made up with a drop in oil revenue, though ministers are known to be worried about a continuing downward trend in manufactured exports.

Strike vote at Dunlop

OVER 7,000 workers at plants formerly owned by the Dunlop rubber company are to ballot next week over strike action in protest at the scrapping of redundancy agreements.

The Dunlop factories are now owned by the BTR industrial group, which has said it will not recognise the Dunlop redundancy agreements after the beginning of October.

Tactics

Leaders of the main union involved, the GMBATU general workers' union, have accused the BTR management of 'bully-boy tactics'.

They fear that the scrapping of the redundancy agreement will be followed by a spate of job losses in the old Dunlop plants.

BTR only last week announced the loss of nearly 150 jobs in and around its Cramlington hose factory in Northumberland.

HEALTH WORKERS REJECT PAY 'INSULT'

BY CHRIS CORRIGAN

GLASGOW — Workers at a major hospital yesterday voted to throw out the government's 4.7-per-cent national pay offer — described as 'not worth a pound of mince'.

The vote by Victoria Infirmary members of the Transport and General Workers Union Glasgow health branch was almost unanimous despite the news that the employers' side say the offer is 'final'.

Hugh Haran, T&GWU senior shop steward at the Victoria, told yesterday's special meeting that after deductions the take-home value of the offer was only £1.77 a week. 'It is an insult,' said Haran.

The overwhelming majority for rejecting the offer and to call for a national ballot on a programme of industrial action is particularly significant because it is the first T&GWU branch decision on the offer since it was put to joint-union national negotiators earlier this month.

'NHS workers would need an increase of £27 a week to make up the ground lost in the past three years due to inflation and us falling behind average earnings,' Haran told yesterday's meeting.

'After deducting national insurance, superannuation and tax, the offer means just £1.77 a week. They are saying you are only worth a pound of mince in your wage packet.

'Considering the service we give to the community we are worth a lot more than that.'

He went on: 'The only way Mrs Thatcher can push her monetarist theories is by driving down wages. She has certainly succeeded in the public sector.

'It is a disgusting offer and we should advise our national officers to ballot the membership on industrial action. When you are voting, remember there are married people with children working in the NHS and it is impossible to survive on wage levels like this.'

Haran said some members were asking what kind of action would be organised by the unions.

He said a decision on this was not going to be taken immediately, but he pointed out: 'It must not be the type of campaign we ran in 1982. It was an absolute disaster.'

The details of the 'final' offer are an increase in basic rates of pay for domestics, kitchen assistants, etc., of £3.55 a week to £73.58. For the porters' grade, the offer is for an increase from the present rate of £71.73 a week, to £75.28.

Star line-up for festival

THE Greater London Council yesterday announced a star-studded line up for their first London Festival of Black Music to be held in the Wembley Arena on September 27 and 28.

The festival will present a mix of top British and international black music stars.

Friday's jazz funk bill will feature Stanley Clarke and George Duke, who will play together as well as in separate sets, with Ronnie Laws, Hugh Masakela and Junior.

Saturday's bill will be headed by Chaka Khan and will also feature D.Train, Third World, Weather Girls and LW5. Further acts will be added later.

GLC leader Ken Livingstone said yesterday: 'This promises to be one of the most exciting line-ups ever presented in London.' He said he was particularly proud that artists of such high calibre from the USA would be there sharing the stage with some of London's established and up-and-coming artists.

Shot boy's mum warned police

THE mother of a five-year-old Birmingham boy shot dead by police in bed has insisted that she warned them that he was there before an officer went into his room.

Jacqueline Shorthouse's statement to the 'Daily Mail' reinforces the campaign for a public inquiry which is being demanded by the family and residents in the Kings Norton area following the killing of her son.

'When they came into the flat I said to the police "John's in bed asleep". But all they told me to do was to get dressed.'

'If they had not ignored that that could have saved my son's life. I will always feel very bitter about that.'

John Shorthouse junior was shot 10 minutes after his father had been arrested and driven away from the house.

Mrs Shorthouse revealed that she was initially told by a woman police officer that her son had been shot in the leg by accident.

'I only found out what really happened when I got to Selly Oak Hospital, where I was taken with the two other kids. The doctor came in and said: "Have they told you what's happened?"'

'I said all I knew was the baby had been shot in the leg. But he then told me John had been shot in the chest and they couldn't save him. I went hysterical... I couldn't believe it.'

'The extraordinary thing was they still had not told my husband. It was up to me to tell him, which I did at some time between 5 and 7 p.m.'

'I said to the police "Why haven't you told my husband about this?" They said: "For a number of reasons".'

The killing of John Shorthouse is only the latest outrage committed by the West Midlands police.

They faced a furious backlash after the shooting of 16-year-old Gail Kinchin in 1980 and a series of armed raids on the homes of totally innocent people.

In 1983 Dennis Elcock, a pensioner, and his wife Rosa were raided by armed detectives at their home in Dudley. Police claimed their car had been used in a series of robberies in North Wales.

Their son Colin, who took the matter up with the police, was awarded a measly £534 compensation.

Executed — after 17 years in Indonesian jail

BY A FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT

THE Indonesian military dictatorship last month executed three veteran Indonesian Communist Party (PKI) leaders in secret at an undisclosed location in East Java.

TAPOL, the British Campaign for the Defence of Political Prisoners and Human Rights in Indonesia, disclosed the executions in a statement this week.

The organisation said the three leaders, Djoko Untung, 64, Gatot Lestario, 60, and Rustomo, 65, had been in jail for 17 years and were given a summary trial and sentences, without access to legal representation.

They were successively executed on July 1, 2 and 3. TAPOL said their execution followed that of another long-term PKI prisoner, Mohammad Munir, on May 15.

It said: 'Munir's execution led to widespread protests, particularly in Holland, where political parties called for the suspension of economic aid to Indonesia.'

'These calls were renewed following an unconfirmed report (in mid-August) about Rustomo's execution.'

Lestario, Rustomo and Untung were held in prison on the island of Madura, north of Surabaya, and the government had put pressure on their families not to disclose news of their executions.

Tapol said inquiries by the Dutch government through its embassy in Jakarta also met with no response from the Indonesian authorities.

The organisation says there are 45 political prisoners under sentence of death in Indonesia.

'Forty-one were accused of subversion in connection with the events in 1965 which brought General Suharto to power,' it said.

'Nearly half are leaders of a variety of mass organisations. All have been in prison since the late 1960s.'

Tapol said four Muslim political leaders have been in death-row since the late 1970s.

Two of the prisoners, Bambang Sisipaya, 36, and Abdullah bin Umar, 35, faced imminent execution. The had rejected Jakarta's 'offer' that they appeal against their sentences.

'The British government has been under pressure for some time to save the life of Gatot Lestario, whose case has been taken up by many Quaker groups in all parts of (Britain),' Tapol said.

A torrent of scorn for Paris whitewash

WELLINGTON — New Zealand Prime Minister David Lange yesterday angrily scorned the official French report whitewashing the sabotaging of the Greenpeace vessel 'Rainbow Warrior'.

He demanded an immediate apology from the French government and threatened to expel the French ambassador in Wellington.

Lange slammed the report, prepared by President Mitterrand's personal appointee, retired Gaullist civil servant Bernard Tricot, as 'utterly incredible . . . worse than just lacking in credibility'.

The assignment of five secret service officers on a spying mission to New Zealand was 'not the act of a friendly country'.

BY A FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT

He said: 'The French have a remarkable flair for getting out of New Zealand in a hurry. They've demonstrated that recently. Perhaps the same principle could apply to the diplomat.'

'You cannot have a form of acceptable association with another country that sets its spies on you and ignores your warrants for arrest for murder.'

Spies

'Friendship is strained when you have a nation that is continually pounding the ocean atolls with nuclear testing and has spies in our country.'

Sections of the French press in Paris strongly criticised the Tricot report.

'Liberation', the radical daily, headlined its story: 'Tricot washes whiter', while 'Quotidien de Paris' chose the blunt 'Coverup'.

Only the pro-Socialist Party 'Le Matin' defended Tricot, who admitted overnight that he could not rule out that he had been deceived.

The parliamentary leader of the French Communist Party, Andre Lejolinie, said: 'The report reaches conclusions which whitewash the government without giving the slightest evidence.'

Alain Madelin, a senior member of the right-wing UDF party, delivered a stinging attack on the inquiry chief: 'Tricot must think everyone is a fool.'

'Does he think that the French people are stupid enough to think that navy frogmen were sent just to take a few photographs?'

New Zealand Prime Minister DAVID LANGE

Ford's pull-out threat

DETROIT — The Ford Motor Company has threatened the Reagan government with the prospect of moving some parts-making operations overseas unless he agrees to lower standards demanded on car fuel economy.

Louis Ross, Ford's executive vice-president of the car and truck division, said the decision to move would come by the end of the year.

Only the lowering of 'corporate average fuel economy requirements' would persuade the company to maintain its parts-making operations in the United States, he said.

He said: 'It (the ultimatum) will come up (before Ford executives) in September. It seems to be the most efficient way to meet the standards.'

Both Ford and General Motors have said they will not meet the government-mandated 27.5m.p.g. fleet average for their domestic-built cars this year.

Companies that miss the standards face heavy fines unless they use credits for exceeding standards in previous years.

Under the pressure of the powerful car lobby the federal authorities have proposed a one-year relaxation of the standards.

But Ford wants a long-term 'relief plan' as a buffer against its worsening economic and marketing prospects.

Argentina poised for General Strike

ALFONSIN

BUENOS AIRES — The Argentine labour movement is poised for a general strike tomorrow to protest against President Raul Alfonsín's recent economic austerity measures.

CGT members are preparing for a big rally in the Plaza de Mayo in central Buenos Aires and are demanding a moratorium on the payment of Argentina's $48-billion foreign debt.

One of the 30,000 posters that have gone up in the city proclaim: 'Let us be rid of the steep rises in the cost of public services, unemployment, the paralysis of production, the bleeding of the people and the usury of the International Monetary Fund.'

The strike has been called by the Peronist trade union leadership who dominate the powerful General Confederation of Labour (CGT), as part of an election campaign.

Elections are scheduled in November, when Argentines will choose members of the 254-seat House of Deputies.

The Alfonsín regime, elected in December 1983, after seven years of brutal military dictatorship, is under siege.

Alfonsín's June meaasures, imposed after a special agreement with the International Monetary Fund for new credits, have been widely opposed and public opinion polls predict a political disaster for him.

Labour leaders yesterday said the government was 'blind' to the widespread unrest among workers.

The CGT called the strike to protest against a steep fall in wages and a commensurate rise in joblessness that has accompanied the two-month-old price freeze.

Alfonsín imposed the new measures under terms of the IMF agreement that demand the government slashes 1,000-per-cent inflation to about 300 per cent by next March.

In a recent speech, Alfonsín desperately accused the CGT leaders of 'missing the bus of history' by planning the strike.

The IMF-dictated economic programme will be the central issue in the November 3 elections, in which Alfonsín's Radical Party officials are hoping only to hold on to their majority.

Peronist politicians, who dominated Argentine politics for 40 years during which their policies discredited them, are also locked in an intense inner-party battle.

One breakaway faction has threatened to go to the polls under a different name in Buenos Aires province.

Albanian, British envoys negotiate

VIENNA — Albania's hardline Stalinist leader Ramiz Alia has begun talks with the Thatcher government on resuming diplomatic relations, the country's ATA official news agency said.

The talks are being held in Paris but there is no report on how much progress has been made.

The talks were confirmed by Alia, who succeeded the late Enver Hoxha, in a speech to a gathering in the eastern Albanian city of Korca.

He restated Albania's claim to gold seized by British imperialism after World War II.

The gold is being held, in flagrant disregard for Albanian wishes, by the British government jointly with France and the United States.

He said the return of the gold would open the way to settling disputes between Albania and Britain and 'to normalisation of relations'.

Prime Minister Thatcher has been baulking at the return of the gold. She said recently the bullion could only be released 'with the unanimous consent of all three Gold

Commission governments.'

'It is therefore not a matter in which we can act unilaterally.'

In making this statement Thatcher is confident that either Washington or Paris can be relied upon to oppose the release of the gold and therefore allow it to remain in the Bank of England's vaults.

In his Korca speech Alia condemned the Yugoslav government saying it wanted to turn Albania into a 'colonial state'.

Gandhi to face fury of Tamils

NEW DELHI — Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi is facing massive anger from the people of Tamil Nadu state over his decision to deport three leaders of the Tamil liberation struggle in Sri Lanka.

A nervous state government yesterday closed all its schools and colleges indefinitely and put extra security forces onto the streets.

On Monday, more than 20,000 marched through the streets of Madras, the state capital, to warn Gandhi that he could have large scale unrest unless the deportation orders are revoked.

Tamil Nadu's 50 million Tamils share close links with the Tamil minority in Sri Lanka who are fighting to establish their own state on the island.

Last Saturday, Anton Balasingham, leader of the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam, was deported to London by Indian government immigration officers.

Chelvanayagam Chandrasekaran, who heads the Organisation for the Protection of Tamils from Genocide, was deported to New York. A third Tamil leader, N. Satyendra, was also kicked out.

Gandhi ordered the deportations when the three leaders refused to submit to terms laid down by the Indian and Sri Lankan governments at peace talks held in the tiny kingdom of Bhutan.

The remaining Tamil liberation leaders met in Madras yesterday and decided to go ahead with a meeting with Gandhi at a date to be fixed.

A spokesman for the Eelam National Liberation Front (ENLF), an alliance of four liberation groups, said they would seek Gandhi's help in ending the latest atrocities in Sri Lanka.

'We will consider any proposal on Sri Lanka suggested by Mr Gandhi when we meet him,' the ENLF spokesman told Reuters.

RAND DROPS TO ALL-TIME LOW

JOHANNESBURG — The South African rand yesterday plunged to a new low against the US dollar and other major Western currencies.

It dropped to 36.75 cents compared with its previous low of 38.44 cents five days ago.

The currency is under pressure from the flight of capital, the international campaign for disinvestment and sanctions and from the irrepressible struggle of black workers and youth.

So far the Botha regime has resisted pressure to apply restrictions on the movement of capital out of the racist state.

Reserve Bank governor Gerhard de Kock said he preferred not to introduce controls on capital outflows. It would be 'unfortunate' if the government was put into a position where it had little option but to do so, he said.

The economy has become so battered that the Botha regime may have to ask for a rescheduling of its foreign debts — something that was unthinkable a couple of years ago.

The struggle against the apartheid dictatorship will enter a crucial phase over the next few days. Today's illegal march in Cape Town to Pollsmoor Jail to demand the release of Nelson Mandela is a direct challenge to the State of Emergency.

The Rev Allan Boesak, a patron of the United Democratic Front (UDF), said the march will go ahead despite the government's ban.

'If the march is broken up on Wednesday, I want

BY A FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT

the world to understand that it is not for a lack of will on our part to protest peacefully,' Boesak said.

'The fundamental question is whether in South Africa peaceful protest is possible and that is the issue we want to prove on Wednesday.'

Next weekend the leaders of the National Union of Mineworkers may be unable to delay strike action in the country's leading gold, diamond and coal mines.

Three Common Market foreign ministers due to arrive on Friday have been told they cannot see Nelson Mandela, jailed leader of the African National Congress.

System

In Lusaka, the capital of Zambia, the ANC has accused Chief Gatsha Buthelezi and Progressive Federal Party leader Frederik van Zyl Slabbert of not wanting to end the apartheid system.

The ANC statement said there was no middle road between ending apartheid and 'we must and will crush the apartheid regime'.

It said Buthelezi, the stooge Zulu chief, and Slabbert 'refuse to initiate or participate in any mass action' and 'continue to advance the empty perspective of dialogue'.

Both were happy to serve in institutions created by the Pretoria regime to perpetuate white rule.

Cheques refused

TAIPEI — Taiwan banks have refused to honour $30 million worth of cheques guaranteed by the Cathay industrial group, the centre of Taiwan's biggest banking scandal.

The bounced cheques are the first batch to be dishonoured since the scandal broke in February.

The Cathay group is facing increasing difficulties because one of its owners, Tsai Chen-man, has been unable to repay debts of about $425 million.

Tsai's brother, Tsai Chen-chou, has been convicted of fraud and this week began serving his five 15-year terms.

Bribery trial to start tomorrow

BONN — Former Economics Minister Count Otto Lambsdorff goes on trial tomorrow accused of corruption in a political bribery scandal that has rocked the country's establishment.

Lambsdorff and his predecessor in office, banker Hans Friderichs, are charged with taking bribes of $170,000 for their Free Democratic Party (FDP) from the Flick industrial empire.

The former minister is alleged to have received the bribe in return for waiving $150 million tax on a Flick shares sale in the 1970s.

On trial with them will be Flick's former general manager Eberhard von Brauchitsch, who is accused of paying the bribes.

All three deny the charges, which carry prison terms of up to five years. They also face fines if found guilty on separate charges of tax evasion on party donations.

The case caused a political sensation when the federal state prosecutor's office announced investigations into suspected political corruption in February 1982.

Formal charges followed in November 1983 along with an independent parliamentary probe into allegations that Flick peddled funds for favours from all four main political parties.

The probe led to the resignation last October of Rainer Barzel as parliamentary speaker over evidence that he received 1.7 million marks ($570,000) from Flick after quitting as leader of the Christian Democratic Party (CDU) in 1973.

Barzel's successor Helmut Kohl, now West German chancellor, has denied he allowed Flick to buy his way to power.

Count Lambsdorff became economics minister in Helmut Schmidt's coalition government in 1977.

He kept the portfolio when the FDP switched to a coalition with Kohl in October 1982.

Friderichs was economics minister from 1972 to 1977. He quit politics to become chief executive of West Germany's second biggest bank, the Dresdner.

Marcos probe

MANILA — The Philippine Bureau of Internal Revenue will investigate reports that leading Filipinos have vast property holdings in the United States.

It follows revelations in the 'San Jose Mercury News', California, that President Marcos and his wife, Imelda, have huge investments in US real estate.

Marcos has denied the newspaper's allegations. He counter-attacked by ordering an inquiry into the overseas wealth of two Cabinet ministers.

MARCOS

But the Justice Ministry report on these cases has not been released.

Deputy revenue commissioner Tomas Toledo said the bureau would investigate whether top people investing overseas had evaded tax.

British Association for the Advancement of Science

Tories hostile to social sciences

THE government's 'hostile attitude' towards the social sciences was 'nothing short of tragic' a professor said yesterday.

Professor Rudolph Schaffer of Glasgow's Strathclyde University, accused the government of slashing research funds and channelling resources away from social science subjects in universities.

Prof Schaffer was delivering the presidential address to psychologists at the start of the annual conference of the British Association for the Advancement of Science at Strathclyde university.

Education Secretary Sir Keith Joseph had even gone to the 'petty length' of forcing the social science research council to drop the word 'science' from its title, said Prof Schaffer, who said it made 'fools of himself and his teaching colleagues'.

It was precisely when technological change was so vast and so fast that attention to social and psychological implications was so essential, he

He cited the boom in test-tube babies — by the end of this year 1,000 will have been born throughout the world.

'In theory at least it will be possible for a couple to bring into the world any number of children all at the same time, whether by means of surrogate mothers or by means of artificial wombs — a development that seems likely to become technically feasible in the not very distant future', said Prof Schaffer.

He thought most couples would continue to want to space their children, but there might be those who would want to get it over 'in one fell swoop and in this way produce a very distinctive kind of family'.

Prof Schaffer called for a far greater commitment to the study of human beings.

Major warning on heart attacks

STROKES and heart attacks are claiming the lives of so many Britons it is as if a Jumbo jet crashed every day, a health expert warned yesterday.

Yet only half the population have regular tests to see how high their blood pressure is and very few people have their cholesterol levels checked, said Professor John Catford, of the Institute for Health Promotion at the University of Wales College of Medicine.

He told the conference that these checks need not cost more than £5 a person — half the cost of a car MOT test. 'Surely we value the health of our bodies more than that of our motor cars,' he said.

Prof Catford, Director of the Welsh Heart Programme, said coronary disease, strokes and other vascular diseases had reached epidemic proportions.

They were responsible for between 40 per cent and 50 per cent of all deaths and serious physical handicapping conditions in developed countries.

He said: 'The scale of the problem in Britain is equivalent to a Jumbo jet crashing every day, as in total a quarter of a million lives are lost every year because of these conditions.'

'One in 10 men in Scotland as in Wales will not see their 65th birthday because of a fatal heart attack. In at least an equal number the disease will have caused distressing symptoms, such as chest pain or shortness of breath.'

'We need to encourage non-smoking, a diet lower in saturated fats and salt, and appropriate exercise.'

Feedback on what effects changes in lifestyle had is important so that people can see the progress they were making.

He said: 'The two most important fields for feedback concern blood pressure and blood cholesterol.'

Doctors know that high blood pressure increases the chance of a stroke or kidney failure, while high cholesterol levels are associated with an increased risk of heart disease.

Doctors discuss control of AIDS

COMPULSORY powers to detain AIDS patients in hospital may never have to be used the health and social security department's chief medical officer Dr Donald Acheson said yesterday.

Under public health acts, a court can order a person to be detained in hospital if doctors believe he is highly infectious and he refuses to heed medical advice.

But Dr Acheson said these powers were only

Education standards under attack from education minister Keith Joseph

Education like a 'sausage machine'

JOSEPH

EDUCATION has developed a 'sausage machine' mentality in which people have become obsessed with success and failure, it was claimed.

Educational institutions were treated like factories in which students were 'processed' and came out as 'results', lecturer David Brookes told the conference.

'If an increase in output is required, then all we need to do is to push in more raw materials, make the labour force work harder or increase the use of new technology.'

Brookes added that a good academic education was no guarantee of employment in a society with millions out of work.

But, despite this, people were valued for the pieces of paper they held rather than for their human qualities or their ability to work outside the exam room.

Students often ended with a large number of qualifications, with no idea of why they had taken them or what to do with them.

'The inspirational role of teachers has become lost, innovation in the classroom is frowned upon, and completion of the syllabus is the prime target for the teacher.'

Brookes, head of science and maths at Thurso

Technical College, Caithness, claimed the way ahead lay in a new teaching plan for over-16s introduced in Scotland a year ago.

The 16-plus action plan provided students with a choice of material in further education and allowed teachers to meet the real needs of students, industry, and society, he said.

The morale of teachers needed to be raised to that of a 'crack regiment', said Brookes, by more efficient training and by providing equipment and support services demonstrating that the teacher was a highly-valued professional.

Diamonds really are forever

DIAMONDS really are forever — or at least very nearly so, a geologist said yesterday.

Dr Jeffrey Harris of Strathclyde University, said tests on diamonds from the Kimberley mines in South Africa showed they were 3,410 million years old.

The Earth is only 4,600 million years old so the slogan 'diamonds are forever' was very nearly right, he told the meeting.

MARCH TO RELEASE THE JAILED MINERS

Support all the way in the Manchester area

THERE was strong trade union support for the March to Release the Jailed Miners yesterday when it passed through several areas of Manchester.

Before setting off yesterday morning a delegation from Manchester City Council direct works shop stewards' committee came down to greet the marchers.

They brought a donation of £40 collected at Langley depot.

Convenors Billy Gill, Frank Forrester and Mick Nolan all addressed the marchers.

Gill said that he himself came from the mining community of Leigh. 'At the end of the day I think that we are after the same thing,' he said. 'That we should have a socialist system in this country.'

'I've no doubt that there will be a massive call at the TUC for the release of the miners.'

Steve Murray, electricians' shop steward, said the youth on the march represented the most conscious section of the working class.

'It's up to us to organise a General Strike, and have no miner in jail,' he added.

The marchers had spent the night at Langley Labour Club. The club's stewardess, Anne Honeyford, declared her full backing for the march. As they set off, the former hospital worker said: 'Being a strong trade unionist myself prior to coming here, I wish you all the best.'

The march proceeded through a major industrial centre, chanting: 'Railmen, miners, youth unite! Organise the General Strike!' and 'Release jailed miners! Reinstate sacked men!'

Outside the British Aerospace factory in Chadderton a delegation of union leaders from the APEX clerical and AUEW engineering unions came out to greet the march.

The shop stewards at this factory, which employs 3,000 people, had donated £50 to pay for the marchers' lunch.

APEX committee member Steve Garr told the marchers: 'We fully support you in what you are doing.'

'We've had further proof over the past few weeks with the events in Sheffield and the acquittals in the Orgreave trial that we are getting somewhere with the release of the jailed miners.'

APEX members at British Aerospace were themselves on strike for four weeks last year over pay.

AUEW shop steward George Wilson wished the marchers well and said: 'I do agree with you about youth labour being abused.'

After a long trek through the built-up areas, the marchers reached North Manchester General Hospital where a NUPE delegation was waiting to greet them.

During the miners' strike the hospital workers came out on strike for a day and women NUPE members on a picket line with miners were dragged away by the police in SPG vans.

David Owen, NUPE branch secretary, who welcomed the marchers, told News Line: 'We are still in support of the miners and the reinstatement of those sacked and the release of the jailed men.'

'It's a poor situation when we are coming to a state in this country that the capitalists are in fact riding roughshod over working class people.'

The marchers ate lunch at Harpurhey community centre, which was paid for by British Aerospace stewards and cooked and served by members of a community project there.

Willis accepts Tory laws

TUC AND Labour Party leaders are frantically trying to keep demands for the repeal of Tory anti-union legislation off the agenda of next week's TUC congress in Blackpool.

TUC General Secretary Norman Willis and Labour leader Neil Kinnock are both opposed to scrapping much of the legislation which has been mercilessly used by the Thatcher government in its war against the unions.

Willis made this abundantly clear yesterday in an interview with the 'Times'. According to the top people's paper Willis made the astonishing claim that unions were 'learning to live' with the secret balloting procedures required under the Tory laws.

'Perhaps, rather than accepting government money for postal ballots, unions could have Freepost,' he said, indicating his readiness to see the unions tied to the capitalist state.

Kinnock's position was spelt out by Shadow Employment Secretary John Prescott during a private press briefing several weeks ago. He is reported to have told journalists that the Labour leadership saw some 'merit' in retaining much of the existing Tory legislation.

Soon afterwards the TUC-Labour Party Liaison Committee produced its wretched plan to revive the hated social contract and cement a corporatist relationship with the unions. Part of the so-called partnership clearly entails a dirty, behind-the-scenes deal to keep on the statute book anti-union laws introduced under Thatcher's Bonapartist regime.

For during a series of meetings at Congress House last week leaders of the transport union, under pressure from Kinnock, agreed to drop their demand that all the Tory laws should be scrapped under a future Labour government.

The TUC and Labour Party right-wing also insisted that the T&GWU abandon its call for the reimbursement of 'all funds seized or exacted' from unions under the laws.

Instead the unions are being offered a 'review' of the legislation to be undertaken by the TUC-Labour Party Liaison Committee and a promise of new laws to provide 'positive rights' for trade unionists.

This sordid manoeuvre has a two-fold purpose. It is designed firstly to stifle further opposition to the Tory class laws and deliver a calculated stab-in-the-back to the miners' union which has refused to purge its contempt in the capitalist courts.

Secondly the 'alternative' legislation proposed by the reformists will be aimed at destroying the independence of the unions and integrating them fully into the capitalist state.

But the attempts of Kinnock and Willis to shackle the unions to the Bonapartist state, will be fiercely resisted by the working class. Rail guards and printworkers, inspired by the miners' undefeated year-long strike, are mounting fierce resistance to a ruthless attack on their jobs and conditions. But they must not be left to fight alone. The TUC congress must unhesitatingly reject the treacherous formula devised by Willis and Kinnock, reaffirm its total opposition to the Tory anti-union laws and organise a General Strike to bring down the Thatcher regime.

Next Monday September 2 the march to release jailed miners, organised by the Young Socialists, will arrive in Blackpool two weeks after setting out from Cortonwood colliery. We urge miners, railwaymen and printworkers to join the marchers in a mass lobby to demand that the TUC organise the General Strike.

MARCH TO RELEASE

Demand a full all-round strike

says South Wales miner

BY PENNY BLOOR

THE MINERS must put all their backing behind the railwaymen, as must the whole trade union movement, says South Wales miner Michael Smith, known to the marchers as Striker.

Striker, a miner at Blaenau colliery, joined the Swansea to London leg of the National March to Release the Jailed Miners in June whenever he could.

Now he is back on the road again, all the way from Cortonwood to Blackpool, campaigning for the TUC to organise the General Strike.

'ASLEF and the NUR supported us all through the miners' strike, and we will never forget what they did for us,' Striker said.

'Most of the men in my pit support the NUR. Maggie Thatcher is trying to get at the unions again, which is what she did to us.'

'The main lesson of the miners' strike for railmen is — just don't give up. You've got our support and we are the biggest union.'

Striker believes the organisation of the General Strike is essential to defeat the Tory regime.

'We have seen how the TUC stabbed us in the back and how the Labour Party let us down.'

'The lobby of the TUC is important to show how they stabbed the miners in the back and to demand a full all-round strike. My own pit will be bringing a coachload.

'If Thatcher thinks she's going to starve the railmen back like she did with us, she's got another think coming.'

Striker added: 'We are still fighting all the way against pit closures.'

He himself, at 24, has been seven years in the mining industry and was transferred to Blaenau colliery a few months before the strike, after Wundham Western colliery was closed down.

'Most of the women are still active. They went up to the women's conference in Sheffield last week.'

'We agree that they should be in the union and fighting with the men against pit closures.'

'I am the fourth generation of miners and probably the last one. When I get married and have children I can tell them I never scabbed and they will be able to tell their children their grandfather never scabbed.'

Retired m youth

THE GREATEST thing to retired miner Joe Ryan is seeing young people on the move against the Thatcher government.

Joe, now retired, was a miner in the Bradford colliery in Manchester before it closed down and before that he was a docker.

He was also an active member of the Trotskyist movement before the Socialist Labour League was founded and on the editorial board of the rank-and-file newspaper 'The Miner' in the 1950s.

Joe came to greet the marchers and to help at the hall where they stayed at Middleton on Monday night.

'The march is absolutely marvellous,' he told News Line. 'It is something we should have had in our day when the big pit closures were on and the leaders of the NUM then accepted it and put up no fight at all.'

'The main thing that strikes you now is the youth. There are all sorts on this march, a well-mixed group.'

'I see the YTS as cheap labour, of course, and so the youth have to fight against it.'

'The youth I've met on the schemes are not happy and there should be a fight for real jobs and real wages.'

Joe commented on the jailing of miners: 'It takes my mind back to the five dockers jailed in the 1950s. It's an even big-

News Line Theatre

A moving drama of miners' struggle

THE audience sat in silence at the end of the Bristol Independent Theatre's production of 'Eastwood', not knowing whether to applaud the performance or show respect for the victims of the tragedy they had just seen enacted.

Amongst the hundreds of plays being performed on the Edinburgh Festival fringe, this play about the mining communities in the period of private ownership, is one that no-one who can get there should miss.

Nick Ward, who devised and directed the play, has clearly studied the early work of the novelist D.H. Lawrence (who was born in the Nottinghamshire mining village of Eastwood), and listened carefully to the taped reminiscences of retired miners.

History

He and a company of drama students and graduates have succeeded - with Lawrence's help - in evoking the other side of the history of the Nottinghamshire miners from that of the Spencer union of the 1920s and the attempts to form a pro-Thatcher breakaway union today.

And at the same time the production recreates on stage some aspects at least of Lawrence's literary genius as he struggled to portray the reality of the contradictions of individual life in the midst of historic social crisis.

Set in 1911, on the eve of the great Minimum Wage strike which took place a year later, 'Eastwood' tells of the life and death of a militant miner.

The tragic inevitability of what is to happen is

Donal McNeil, Mark Bannister and Victoria Carling in a scene from the play

Katy Goodwin as the wife and Donal McNeil as the miner Alfred Brindsley apparent from early on, but it is in the gripping way in which that inevitability unfolds that the genuine tragedy lies.

The final scene particularly of the washing and dressing of the body of the dead miner is audaciously conceived and beautifully executed.

Altogether it is a magnificent piece of theatre.

The bitterness, cruelty, compassion, humour and ruthlessness of the class struggle permeates the performance without ever being imposed upon it. It is full of variety, making use of slides, mime and an original musical score by Richard Heacock.

The cast of five are all excellent, but Donal MacNeil in the lead role alive and dead and Sophie Hedderwick in a convincingly unpatronising portrayal of the child are especially striking.

IN PARWICH, DERBYSHIRE

TENTH ANNIVERSARY SYLLABUSES STARTING ON JULY 8

The Process and Practice of Cognition A series of four studies – Fortnightly courses start July 8 TUTOR G. HEALY

1. From the History of Philosophy

Kant had a dualistic starting point — for him consciousness was the subject of knowledge, whilst the world of 'things in themselves' was unknowable — He therefore transformed the opposition between subject and object into an absolute.

Hegel's conception of the objective world was equated to his 'absolute idea' as a product of thought. His dialectical, idealist, dualist method repudiated Kantian Scepticism, which he correctly claimed 'did not dare affirm "it is"', whilst Kant's 'modern idealism did not dare to regard cognition as a knowledge of the Thing in itself'. (Lenin's Collected Works, Volume 38, p.130-131). His conception of knowledge consisted of abstractions from his 'absolute idea' which accounts for their objective dialectical idealist origin.

As Marx and Engels explained: '... In Hegel's Phenomenologie the material, sensuously perceptible, objective foundations of the various estranged forms of human self-consciousness are allowed to remain. The whole destructive work results in the most conservative philosophy because it thinks it has overcome the objective world, the sensuously perceptible real world, by transforming it into a "thing of thought", a mere determinateness of self-consciousness, and can therefore also dissolve its opponent, which has become ethereal, in the "ether of pure thought". The Phenomenologie is therefore quite consistent in that it ends by replacing human reality by "absolute knowledge" ... The whole of the Phenomenologie is intended to prove that self-consciousness is the only reality and all reality.' (See Volume 4, Collected Works of Marx and Engels: 'The Holy Family or Critique of Critical Critique')

Engels, together with Marx, characterised nature as the proof of dialectics. To them practice was the basis of the verification of dialectical knowledge and not Hegel's 'absolute idea' which Engels described in Anti-Dühring as 'a colossal miscarriage' — the role of theory as a guide to practice explained.

READING: Anti-Dühring: Introduction-General (Engels) Dialectical Materialism — The History of Philosophy (Theodore Oizerman).

2. Practice and Cognition

'Sense-perception (see Feuerbach) must be the basis of all science. Only when it proceeds from sense-perception in the twofold form of sensuous consciousness and sensuous need — that is, only when science proceeds from nature — is it true science. All history is the history of preparing and developing "man" to become the object of sensuous consciousness, and turning the requirements of "man as man" into his needs. History itself is a real part of natural history — of nature developing into man. Natural science will in time incorporate into itself the science of man, just as the science of man will incorporate into itself natural science; there will be one science.' (See Volume 3, Collected Works of Marx and Engels: 'Economic and Philosophic Manuscripts of 1844').

The Individual, Particular and Universal I-P-U categories as a syllogism formed in the course of practice. 'Identical opposites' ... 'the individual exists only in the connection that leads to the universal. The universal exists only in the individual and through the individual. Every individual is (in one way or another) a universal.' (Lenin's Collected Works, Volume 38, p.361)

'My general consciousness is only the theoretical shape of that of which the living shape is the real community, the social fabric, although at the present day general consciousness is an abstraction from real life and as such confronts it with hostility. The activity of my general consciousness, as an activity, is therefore also my theoretical existence as a social being.

'Above all we must avoid postulating "society" again as an abstraction vis-a-vis the individual. The individual is the social being. His manifestations of life — even if they may not appear in the direct form of communal manifestations of life carried out in association with others are therefore an expression and confirmation of social life.' ... 'Thinking and Being are thus certainly distinct, but at the same time they are in unity with each other.' (Volume 3, Collected Works of Marx and Engels, ibid)

'The abolition of private property is therefore the complete emancipation of all human senses and qualities, but it is this emancipation precisely because these senses and attributes have become, subjectively and objectively, human.' (ibid)

The struggle against bourgeois idealist pressure in the everyday work of the Party — Dangers of a reluctance to analyse the results of the Party's practice — The negative role of administration and routine departmental work as things in themselves — The need for a constant struggle against 'blind activism', which without critical analysis relays bourgeois ideology into the Party. (See Political Letters Nos.7 and 3/7)

'Every individual is connected by thousands of transitions with other kinds of individuals (things, phenomena, processes), etc. Here already we have the elements, the germs, the concepts of necessity, of objective connection in nature etc.' — How such objective connections, without critical analysis, can become a centre for the generation of bourgeois ideology inside the Party.

'The distinction,' writes Lenin, 'between subjectivism (scepticism, sophistry, etc) and dialectics, incidentally, is that in (objective) dialectics the difference between the relative and the absolute is itself relative. For objective dialectics there is an absolute within the relative. For subjectivism and sophistry the relative is only relative and excludes the absolute.' (Collected Works, Volume 38, p.360)

How we can apprehend, through dialectical theory as a guide to practice, the absolute within the relative.

3. Disclosing the 'cell' of dialectics

'Thus,' writes Lenin 'in any proposition we can (and must) disclose as in a "nucleus" ("cell") the germs of all the elements of dialectics, and thereby show that dialectics is a property of all human knowledge in general.' (Collected Works, Volume 38, pp361-362)

A 'proposition' as the source of sensation contains IDENTITY, which is Positive — How in their self-relation, this Positive Identity is negated through the image of sensation into its own Negative DIFFERENCE. The unity of Positive and Negative in their self-relation constitutes ESSENCE — within this Essence Identity is Relative whilst Difference is Absolute — 'Essence' as Ground 'is a movement through different moments, absolute self mediation ...

IDENTITY — DIFFERENCE — CONTRADICTION
(ANTI-THESIS)

Sub-divisions of ESSENCE are SEMBLANCE, APPEARANCE, ACTUALITY: analysed in their interconnection with the development of the 'Notion' and the 'practical idea'. (Lenin's Collected Works, Volume 38, p.130)

How through analysis these become the 'nucleus' 'cell' of the new proposition leading to the leap to the abstract notion and its positive in the theoretical idea which generates the driving force of the practice through the Notion of the 'practical idea'. (See box on top of p.143, Volume 38).

How 'human knowledge is not (or does not follow) a straight line, but a curve, which endlessly approximates a series of circles, a spiral' (Volume 38, p.363). How the dialectical relation between subject and object manifests itself through this 'spiral' — 'each new coil of the spiral repeats the preceding one but at a higher level' (Dictionary of Philosophy, Moscow 1984, p.398)

4. The Syllogism of Necessity

Lenin quotes Hegel approvingly (Volume 38, p.177): 'All things are a syllogism, a universal which is bound together with individuality through particularity; but of course they are not wholes consisting of three propositions.' — Hegel's analysis of syllogisms consists of INDIVIDUAL, PARTICULAR, UNIVERSAL. I.P.U. (Volume 38, p.178)

'In reality,' wrote Hegel, 'subjectivity is only a stage of development from Being and Essence whereupon this subjectivity "dialectically" breaks through its Barrier' and "opens out to objectivity by means of the syllogism".

Lenin comments: 'Very profound and clever! The laws of Logic are the reflections of the objective in the subjective consciousness of man.' (Volume 38, p.183)

'The world is the other being of the idea,' emphasises Hegel, with Lenin insisting, 'subjectivity (or the Notion) and the object — are the same and not the same.' (Volume 38, p.184)

Lenin quotes Hegel approvingly ... 'It is wrong to regard subjectivity and objectivity as a fixed and abstract anti-thesis. Both are wholly dialectical.'

The syllogism of Necessity is manifested in the National March May 18–June 30.

a) The demand 'Release the Jailed Miners' manifests the connection with the world economic and political crisis and its effect upon the Individual in the conflict between the working class and the state.

b) 'Reinstate the Sacked Miners' is the Particular which faces the individual when he is released from jail or if he is convicted.

c) 'FIGHT PIT CLOSURES' are the universal tasks which face all miners.

d) This means all-out conflict with the 'anti-union laws'.

e) Which is inseparable from the struggle against 'scab labour schemes for youth'.

The theory of the Workers Revolutionary Party and tactics in the British socialist revolution

TUTOR PETER JONES

1. A study of Lenin's 'What is to be Done?'

a) The struggle for revolutionary theory versus 'freedom of criticism' The slogan 'freedom of criticism' as a 'veritable war-cry' (Lenin's Collected Works, Volume 5, p.350) — a declaration of war on democratic centralism and revolutionary theory. 'Freedom of criticism' is the beginning of the opportunist liquidation of the revolutionary movement.

'He who does not deliberately close his eyes cannot fail to see that the new "critical" trend in socialism is nothing more nor less than a new variety of opportunism. And if we judge people, not by the glittering uniforms they don or by the high-sounding appellations they give themselves, but by their actions and by what they actually advocate, it will be clear that "freedom of criticism" means freedom for an opportunist trend in Social-Democracy, freedom to convert Social-Democracy into a democratic party of reform, freedom to introduce bourgeois ideas and bourgeois elements into socialism.' (Volume 5, p.354-335)

Lenin explains how 'the very same social and political content of modern international opportunism reveals itself in a variety of ways according to national peculiarities'. (Volume 5, p.360)

The importance of the theoretical struggle — opposition to theory ('anti-theory') as capitulation to bourgeois ideology.

'Without revolutionary theory there can be no revolutionary movement. This idea cannot be insisted upon too strongly at a time when the fashionable preaching of opportunism goes hand in hand with an infatuation for the narrowest forms of practical activity.' (Volume 5, p.369)

b) The spontaneity of the masses and revolutionary consciousness Lenin explains that 'the "spontaneous element", in essence, represents nothing more nor less than consciousness in an embryonic form'. (Volume 5, p.374)

The spontaneous movement represents 'the class struggle in embryo, but only in embryo'. (Volume 5, p.375)

'We have said that there could not have been Social-Democratic consciousness among the workers. It would have to be brought to them from without. The history of all countries shows that the working class, exclusively by its own effort, is able to develop only trade-union consciousness, i.e., the conviction that it is necessary to combine in unions, fight the employers, and strive to compel the government to pass necessary labour legislation etc. The theory of socialism, however, grew out of the philosophic, historical, and economic theories elaborated by educated representatives of the propertied classes, by intellectuals. By their social status, the founders of modern scientific socialism, Marx and Engels, themselves belonged to the bourgeois intelligentsia.' (Volume 5, p.375)

The revolutionary situation in Britain and the dangers of 'bowing to spontaneity'.

'And so, we have become convinced that the fundamental error committed by the "new trend" in Russian Social-Democracy is its bowing to spontaneity and its failure to understand that the spontaneity of the masses demands a high degree of consciousness from us Social-Democrats. The greater the spontaneous upsurge of the masses and the more widespread the movement, the more rapid, incomparably so, the demand for greater consciousness in the theoretical, political, and organisational work of Social-Democracy.' (Volume 5, p.396)

2. The Workers Revolutionary Party and the United Front tactic

a) The revolutionary identity of the Party is the heart of the United Front

'The task of the Communist Party is to lead the proletarian revolution. In order to summon the proletariat for the direct conquest of power and to achieve it the Communist Party must base itself on the overwhelming majority of the working class. So long as it does not hold this majority, the Party must fight to win it. The Party can achieve this only by remaining an absolutely independent organisation with a clear programme and strict internal discipline.' ('On the United Front', in First Five Years of the Communist International, Volume 2, p.91)

b) The United Front tactic: 'the most important method in the struggle for the masses'. (Trotsky's Writings on Britain, Volume 2)

The United Front tactic is a method for building the WRP in struggle against reformism and Stalinism:

'A basic principle of this tactic is: "With the masses — always; with the vacillating leaders — sometimes, but only so long as they stand at the head of the masses." It is necessary to make use of vacillating leaders while the masses are pushing them ahead, without for a moment abandoning criticism of these leaders. And it is necessary to break with them at the right time when they turn from vacillation to hostile action and betrayal. It is necessary to use the occasion of the break to expose the traitorous leaders and to contrast their position to that of the masses. It is precisely in this that the revolutionary essence of the United Front policy consists. Without this, the struggle for the masses always threatens to turn into an opportunist kowtowing to spontaneity covered up by an in-no-way-binding criticism of opportunism in words alone.' (Trotsky's Writings on Britain, Volume 2, p.191)

The revolutionary tactic of the United Front versus Stalinist 'social fascism' and 'Popular Frontism'.

The significance and lessons of the National March to Release the Jailed Miners for the campaign for the United Front today.

CECIL GOES FOR SIX AT YARMOUTH

STEVE CAUTHEN . . .
Chooses Bonhomie in the 2.15

HENRY CECIL'S runners always command the greatest of respect at YARMOUTH, where he has enjoyed a superb record over the years, and the stable has fine chances of winning four of the six races there today.

Cecil runs two interesting newcomers — Bonhomie and Kudz — in the Fee Farm Maiden Stakes, and could also score through Beowulf (Sarah Martin Handicap), Native Oak (E B F Perebrown Maiden Stakes), and Oeuf Ivoire (Market Gates Maiden Stakes).

Kudz, a son of Master Willie, is a half-brother to Lucky North, and it shouldn't be long before he starts paying back the $130,000 he cost as a yearling. But on this occasion, Steve Cauthen has elected to ride the stable's other representative, Bonhomie (2.15) and this colt, who cost $350,000 as a yearling looks the one to be on.

Beowulf (3.15) not one of the most talented performers in Cecil's yard, ran well enough on his most recent outing, when he finished second, beaten six lengths, to Benton in a Kempton maiden event, to suggest that he can take advantage of his light weight here.

After a promising debut at Nottingham, when he finished third behind Eve's Error, despite not getting the best of runs, Native Oak (4.15) should now be ready to do himself justice in the contest, which Cecil won with Presidium last term. The biggest threat may come from Geoff Wragg's Norpella, who caught the eye on her debut at Newmarket, where she finished eighth to Meteoric.

Oeuf Ivoire (4.45) has a good opportunity to lose her maiden tag while completing the Cecil fourtimer. The Sir Ivor filly has finished third on both outings this season, and doesn't have a great deal to beat here, although It's About Magic represents the stable of Olivier Douieb, whose newcomers must always be respected.

Bucklow Hill (3.45) who probably put up his best performance of the season when a very early winner at BEVERLEY in July, returns to the Yorkshire track for the Charles Elsey Memorial Challenge Trophy Handicap and looks an attractive bet to defy top-weight.

Deadbolt (3.15) who has improved a good deal since failing to land a substantial gamble at Redcar in June, is selected to complete his hat-trick in the Beverley Silver Salver Nursery.

Michael Jarvis's two-year-old carries a 7lb penalty for his length and a half victory over Maracas Girl at Lingfield last week, but won in such clear cut style that it should not stop him.

What makes Watford boss tick?

THE TAYLOR-MADE MANAGER

GRAHAM TAYLOR . . . In full flow

WATFORD'S ambassador Graham Taylor gave a lesson in manership his new assistant last weekend.

Being the boss at an establishment that rightly claims to be the 'friendly club', Taylor brought John Ward to meet the gathered journalists munching the club's sandwiches and supping tea after the 5-1 victory over West Bromwich Albion at Vicarage Road.

It had been a sunny day, with a happy, though small crowd (14,451), and it seemed an ideal time to blood the 'new boy'.

In fact, Ward has been on the coaching side at the club for four years, has managed the Combination side for three years and now takes over from Bertie Mee, a club director, who is due to graciously withdraw from his more active role at the Hornets' improved ground at the end of the season.

Ward remained in an almost embarrassed silence as Taylor, in his usual full flow, explained his philosophy on managing a team — something that Ward has heard before . . . and has obviously learned from to land the new job.

In fact he and Taylor have known each other for some years, having played together at Lincoln, been manager and player at the same club, and, of course, at Watford itself.

Taylor explained the team's style: 'We sustain a performance that excites people.'

Events

'It makes sure all the attention is on the pitch and you don't have time, if you want time, to think about other things,' he added with an eye to the headline-catching events since the Brussels and Bradford tragedies.

'The whole atmosphere was what I'm proud to be associated with and it's right and proper that I should say that, because a week ago we were at Tottenham losing 4-0.'

'When you don't like things, you tend as a manager to be very free with your criticism of players, who are human beings anyhow.'

'It's so easy to criticise, so I think it's right and proper that the praise should come as well, because if they represent me in the defeats when they don't play well, then they represent me when they do play well and deserve praise accordingly.'

Taylor said the praise could not be too high for the players' approach in the two home victories (Birmingham midweek and West Brom last Saturday), following the 4-0 defeat at Tottenham the previous Saturday.

He spoke about the improving talent of his £115,000 signing from Sunderland last season, Colin West, who scored a hat-trick in last Saturday's game.

Again, he appeared to be giving Ward — and the press — an insight into his thoughts on the art of manership.

The tall, blond Geordie had not shone at Sunderland, but had improved at Watford where he had players 'in and around him'.

The emphasis was on the skill of the whole team working for each other, and also considering each individual — good or bad.

'When you make an assessment of players, you've got to look a lot deeper sometimes.'

'There's always something players can offer. Even in a bad performance, players do do something positive and when they're in a team that isn't doing so well, you've got to look for the things that don't sometimes come off for them.'

'We always see the things that do come off and praise them, but I try, if possible, when assessing players, to put myself into their mind'

WATFORD'S popular annual open day will be held at Vicarage Road tomorrow between 10a.m. and 1p.m. It will be featured as part of the annual Watford Week. Admission is free and fans will have a chance to see behind the scenes and meet the players, pens in hand to sign autographs. There will be an opportunity to have photographs taken with selected players.

when it doesn't come off and visualise what they were trying to do.'

There had been a lot of talk about Watford and their very good squad.

'I feel a bit of sympathy for the Watford players because of everything that is being written and said about us and our own style,' said Taylor.

'What's not being appreciated is the skill that's in it.'

Skill

Because he asked 'the team to play at a 'fair pace', it could look scrappy now and again. What people did not realise was the amount of skill that had gone into acquiring that pace.

Taylor does tend to radiate confidence into the players and the game as a whole. But he is clearly a deeper thinker than many managers.

That was the message to deputy Ward contained in his realistic answer to one reporter who felt the side was nearly invincible.

'We'll give everyone a good game. But I would not go as far as saying we would win every time,' said Taylor with a satisfied — and friendly — smile.

TEAM SPIRIT . . . Graham Taylor's team philosophy paid off last Saturday when new signing and captain Brian Talbot took advantage of the united spirit in the side to score against West Brom at Vicarage Road. He was congratulated by Nigel Gibbs, Colin West, Nigel Callaghan and Luther Blissett

CHELSEA TO HELP WALES

CHELSEA yesterday promised Wales and Scotland total World Cup support. One of the home countries looks set for a play-off against the winners of the Oceanic section — and that could mean a trip to Australia in early December.

'If any of our players are wanted for the play-off game, we will be only too happy to release them from our League match the previous Saturday,' said Chelsea assistant manager Ian McNeill yesterday.

The Football League has told both countries they will agree to a maximum of four games from the November 30 programme being postponed — but that it will cost up to £10,000 compensation per game.

The Scots rejected the offer out of hand, preferring to rely on home-based players should the need arise. However, Wales's entire squad is drawn from the Canon League and reluctantly agreed to the terms.

Chelsea have David Speedie, Pat Nevin and Joe McLaughlin playing for Scotland and Mickey Thomas, Gordon Davies and keeper Eddie Niedzwiecki for Wales.

RUMANIA CAN FOLLOW ENGLAND

RUMANIA should improve their chances of reaching the 1986 World Cup finals when they entertain Finland in a vital Group Three qualifying tie tonight in Timisoara.

England currently lead the group with eight points from five games and are almost certain to travel to Mexico as group winners, but the battle is hotting up for the runners-up spot.

The match is particularly crucial for Finland, who have taken six points from six matches and must take at least one point tonight and beat Turkey to have any chance.

Rumania, always tough and uncompromising, are better placed though they have only four points from four matches. They have still to meet Northern Ireland at home, before travelling to Wembley for a match on September 11.

Despite the absence of defenders Pauno Kymalainen and Aki Lahtinen, due to injury, Finnish manager Martti Kuusela said: 'For the first time, I have plenty of players to choose from.'

Botham faces 'court' on eve of Test

IAN BOTHAM appears before a disciplinary hearing at Lord's today arising from the much-publicised incidents at the third Test at Trent Bridge.

The 29-year-old Somerset all-rounder is accused of 'displaying public dissent' during a fiery bowling spell against the Australians in which he was also warned by umpire Alan Whitehead for intimidatory bowling and running on the pitch.

Botham, if found guilty, could face a penalty as lenient as a warning, be fined or even suspended.

Penalty

The more severe penalty is unlikely, however, since it would seriously disrupt England's plans for the sixth Test, which starts at the Oval 24 hours later.

The hearing will be handled by Charles Palmer, the chairman of the Test and County Cricket Board, in the absence of the disciplinary chairman, Colin Atkinson, who is unavailable.

Palmer is expected to consider a report from umpire Whitehead and will have available to him a TV video recording of the incident.

Botham has appeared before three previous hearings at Lord's. In 1983 he was fined for making public remarks about Australian umpires and a similar penalty was imposed a year later for his outspoken comments following an England tour to Pakistan.

Cleared

Also in 1984, Botham was cleared by a TCCB inquiry into allegations of drug-taking on a tour to New Zealand.

HAMPSHIRE captain Mark Nicholas steered his side back into contention in the fierce County Championship battle as he hit an unbeaten 71 at Bournemouth yesterday to clinch victory over table-toppers Gloucestershire.

MALCOLM MARSHALL... he could prove to be the key man in the battle for the County Championship

And the 27-year-old Nicholas declared after a convincing seven wickets win: 'It's going to be a fantastic finish to the season. No one can be written off as yet and there are still six sides who could win the title.'

Hampshire, who needed to make only 101 after Gloucestershire had been shot out for 157, have moved into third position, 17 points behind, having also played 20 games.

But with the heat on yesterday second-placed Middlesex missed the chance to go top when they crashed surprisingly to Sussex at Hove, losing by 103 runs with their last six wickets going down for 26.

Nottinghamshire, also among the title chasers, kept in touch by beating Derbyshire by ten wickets at Trent Bridge while Essex and Surrey, two more of the contenders, shared the honours at Chelmsford.

The stylish Nicholas hit 13 fours as he led Hampshire by example to their vital win. His 71 was made out of 82 while he was at the crease, and Hampshire gained 21 points.

It came after Gloucestershire's West Indian fast bowler Courtney Walsh had shot out Gordon Greenidge and Chris Smith for 19.

Earlier, in a 16-over period spanning lunch, Gloucestershire's last seven wickets in their second innings had tumbled for just 30 runs. But despite this dispiriting set-back captain David Graveney is not downhearted.
