Panicking government to rush anti-union Act

MAY 1ST STRIKE VITAL TO STOP BALL-AND-CHAIN LAW

EDITORIAL

THERE IS A RAPIDLY GROWING RESPONSE to the call for a strike on May Day in opposition to the Labour government’s attack on trade unions. But framerate stewards’ committees, union district committees, trades councils and even some union executives are supporting the call for some action on May 1st.

The proposed legislation is a direct attack on the workers’ ability to defend themselves and their hard-won conditions of work on the shop floor. In the White Paper, in place of those unofficial strikes are threatened with fines, unions with a 28-day cooling-off period and compulsory ballots before strikes, where the Government’s own ‘Take Part and Prosper’ could instead.

reason

Why is it necessary to act now, even at the cost of days’ work? But the left wing MP’s don’t offer the working class any real alternative. Like Michelangelo they present policy as just ‘a mistake.’ Only the Labour leaders could be made to see reason.

All this is proposed by a Labour Government. In almost immediate haste, ‘haste will be death’ and Burke might write: ‘a large number of Tory votes to follow a Labour Party resolution against it. The Labour Party in a state of deep crisis as the general election approaches. The government’s bait in 1961, it looks as though the government will depend on Tory votes to get its trade union bill through Parliament. A large number of Labour MPs can be expected to vote against it.

Strike halts

two thousand Fleet Street printers halted on Saturday night when they staged a lighting for their union's strike in London. The printers' papers were disrupted as the members of the London Fleet Street Branch of the Society of Graphical and Allied Trades, marched to Clerkenwell yesterday evening, calling for a day of action. The SOGAT men get from newspapers, there is a strong feeling the newspaper men get from a day off to meet their problems by making the better offering.

The trade union leaders are now being said that their print union's plan on the whole is a success - they may be the only way to make money out of the whole situation.

Why the workers must organise for power

State and Revolution by V.I. Lenin

Leonin's pamphlet is the best exposition of one of the key ideas of the state yet written. Like many of his works it is written with a simplicity that criticises the ideas of tumsalists and anarchists with the language of socialist sounding phrases.

This book is a revolutionary statement. It is a more thorough and clear explanation of the theory of the state than any other book written by anyone. It is, however, a book which Lenin based on his own work and experience. It is a result of his own thought and research.

The state, then, is not just an instrument of oppression and control, but is also a means of communication and expression for the workers. This is why it is necessary to organise for power.

' i could kill you here no one will ever know': a B-special to Ulster civil rights fighters

by EAMONN McCANN

The picture was taken on January 4 in a field above Buncrana, near the border, a few moments before the ambulance which had been launched on a People's Democratic front call from Belfast to Derry.

The police officer on the extreme right, Constable Patterson, chief of the Royal Ulster Constabulary, with his submachine gun and stick, knew the risks better than the rest.

Third from the right, in civilian clothes, is Mr. M. McColl, a member of the B-squad.

One of the stated reasons for the introduction of the Public Order Amendment Bill, was that the Royal Ulster Constabulary were not involved in any kind of disturbance by the police. It would be more sensible for the police to do what the Constable Patterson is doing.

Under existing legislation the Constable Patterson is in a free and open field, but with Constable McColl doing their jobs, they lacked authority to arrest anyone.

The photograph was taken by a man who had the chance to take a photo. He was not allowed to take the photo.

Despite the date on the photo, it does not say much about that man. We will have to wait and see.

ASSAULT

It is obvious from the photograph that at Buncrana the police have contact with a group of men whom they appear to be assaulting. The intention was to launch an attack on the local branch of the trade union, and who had abused themself by terrorising the local people.

MODERATE

The picture shows a group of union members. They were members of the B-specials, even in plain clothes. The authorities did not have to arrest all the members of the B-specials, as Buncrana was a small town.

In 1974, Jim McCracken was killed in a shooting incident near Buncrana. The B-specials were accused of this killing.

Mr. Cook works at the curry owned by S. McCauley, about a mile from Buncrana. He said that his father, Mr. McColl, a member of the B-squad, was killed in the midnight of 1 to 2, while ready for the imminent shooting.

POWERS

Then we told them that we could kill you here and you won't never know.

It is men to whom Mr. Clougher is giving. It is worth noting how, in the Liberal Party, the liberals have been assisted in making this plausible by the fact that civil rights groups are against extremist policies.

The civil rights campaigners have been able to put across the point that the B-specials are against extremist policies. However, Mr. McColl and others, have added that this is a false measure because the B-specials are against extremist policies. BLACKSCARS
Insisted on black markets trade

The law was championed by Richard, director of the Antigua Syndicate, and was passed through both the House of representatives and the Senate. The law established a board of directors to regulate all black market activities.

The people who had been involved in black market operations were tried and convicted. Many were sentenced to long terms in prison. The black market was finally brought under control.

The CJA gave its leaders — the Anguillan revolutionaries — the opportunity to continue their struggle for independence.

The British colonial government was forced to retreat from its position of denying the Anguillan revolutionaries any support. The CJA continued to unfold its plans for the independence of Anguilla.

MINERS AND COAL BOSSES IN BATTLE OVER RENTS

John Charton

DONCASTER: Yorkshire miners are known among their bitter struggle against the National Coal Board's plan to increase rents as much as £1 10s a week, the Yorkshire Miners' Association which runs NCB housing estates, has told the Doncaster Reporter. The association, which represents 10,000 families on NCB estates, has been involved in negligible rent increases for miners who have been hit by the 50 per cent interest rate. The situation could be much worse, the association's secretary told the Reporter.

ENRAGED

Following the housing board's announcement of a 50 per cent rent increase, the Yorkshire Miners' Association has called on miners to show their anger by staging protests on their estates. The association has warned that the rent increase is likely to be even higher and has called on miners to refuse to pay the rent.

REFUSE

Since rents are docked from miners' wages, any increase means that miners are docked even more. The Yorkshire Miners' Association has called on all miners to refuse to pay the rent until their wages are increased.

ITALIAN SHOOTINGS

In a letter to The Observer, the leader of the Italian Communist Party, Enrico Berlinguer, has called for the release of all prisoners who have been arrested in connection with the Italian-Jewish community.

The Italian government has arrested over 500 people in connection with the Jewish community in Italy, following a series of anti-Semitic attacks. The Italian Communist Party has been critical of the government's handling of the situation and has called for the release of all arrested people.

The role of the Communist Party is similar to that played by its French counterpart last summer - except that the Italian party has not made any effort to gain the support of the public or to campaign actively for proportional representation. The electoral system is based on a single-member constituency system, which means that the Communist Party must campaign in each constituency to gain the support of the public.

The party's campaign is based on the belief that the Communist Party is the only political party that can represent the interests of the working class. The party is campaigning on issues such as rent control, wages, and social rights.

AIDS

AIDS is a serious issue for the Communist Party. The party is campaigning for increased funding for AIDS research and for the provision of free HIV testing and treatment. The party is also calling for the decriminalization of homosexuality.
