New strike call at Leyland bus plants

What we think...

Weakens

in other words, it requires that the agreements of the workers should be protected and that their work situation should be the same as in the banks.

Only in that way can Britain become a competitive force in an increasingly competitive world market that is not affected by the special position.

The British bankers and the international monetary fund will have little British capital, due to their difficulties, if the Labour government shows clearly that it is not to make the workers pay.

No one is the least aware of these difficulties and the balance of foreign exchange and the need to continue until the end of the year. Where the British government cannot continue in this general framework, we can make no decision.

For the next few weeks and months, the TUC has been the basis of all the governments' trade union reform and that is the need to make the power of the capitalists and the rank.

And the TUC-government agreement, which is not only the trade union leaders but in some independent rank and file organisation, but that, when pushed, they are always used against their will.

This willingness to accept recommendations for controlling their own members extends to the so-called 'left' trade union leaders as well as to the work-force. Here is an example:

The Labour Party has made anti-trade unionism round the country with its policies of new open class war policies which workers are rejecting.

More every right-wingers than the Labour Party because more even more counter-ideology right-wing than ever.

The TUC has accepted the framework of the capitalist system. They have also accepted it is their duty to do something about it — that they have to make capitalism work.

Printed again, the call to arms that Stalin banned

The ABC of Communist Bukharin and Prokhorov. Edited by E. E. Peresunko. FIRST WRITTEN IN 1919. While events have certainly passed the book by, the ABC is still a valuable commentary which every student of communism should read.

When the Bolsheviks found their hands were unequal to the job of learning the new language and the essential textbook for cadres in the struggle, they went about organizing the work of a party. When the Mensheviks found their hands were unequal to the job of learning the new language and the essential textbook for cadres in the struggle, they went about organizing the work of a party. The ABC is simply a useful handbook for those who are interested in understanding the history of communism.

Chief target

Bukharin, the senior contributor, undertakes all the theoretical chapters as well as the chapters on the organization of industry. At this time, there was a need for such a book, and Bukharin was the chief target of the ABC. The book is written in terms of both the real situation and the expected situation, where the party and the individual are expected to survive.
SACK THE BOSS! THAT'S THE ONLY ANSWER TO ANARCHY AND PROFITEERING IN THE PORTS

NIGEL COXHEAD: Besides the continuing threat of redundancy, containerisation is also a serious problem. The employers are seeking to introduce a Continental-style system, which has been discussed in London for a number of years. The system is being used in a number of ports, including London, where it is already in operation.

In a previous article (7 June), Terry Barrett said that the main reason for the Devlin Report on the docks was to put an end to the problems caused by the dockers' union, which had been a thorn in the side of the employers for many years. He said that the report was unsatisfactory because it did not take into account the needs of the workers.

In the Devlin Report, the employers' case is put forward in a single paragraph. The employers say that the dockers' union should be dissolved and that the employment of foreign workers should be increased. This is the only way, they say, to avoid the problem of redundancy.

The employers' case is not without foundation. The dockers' union has been a major problem for the employers for many years. The union has shown itself to be a powerful force in the docks, and the employers have had to fight hard to maintain their position.

In the past, the employers have been able to use the threat of redundancy to keep the dockers' union quiet. But now, with the introduction of a Continental-style system, the employers are no longer able to use this threat. The employers have therefore turned to the only other solution they have - the dissolution of the dockers' union.

If the dockers' union is dissolved, the employers will be able to introduce a Continental-style system without opposition. The dockers will then have no option but to accept the new system, or face the prospect of redundancy.

SLAVE LABOUR

What have the bosses ever contributed to the development of the London docks? They have been free of charge by slave owners of war labour. Every year, thousands of skilled and unskilled dockers are employed by the bosses. Every ton of goods is handled by dockers and transported by jolly drivers and snappers. The public work is done by dockers. No wonder the bosses have been able to maintain their position for so long.

Blanket terms

The men in these automated terminals may get a better deal than the men in the same buildings. The terminals are run by public relations officers. They are paid more than the dockers. They are treated like kings. They have their own cars, their own offices, and their own private gardens. The dockers have to live in crowded dormitories, work long hours, and have no holidays.

Legal chains

N.C. You talk of defending the rights of the workers. Are you not also defending the freedom of the bosses? Are you not also defending the exploitation of the workers? Are you not also defending the survival of the bosses?

Legal chains

T. F. B. The alternative is to continue the bosses' control of the docks. The workers will be subjected to the bosses' will. The bosses will not be held accountable for their actions.

T. F. B. We must defend the workers' rights. We must not be afraid of the bosses. We must not be afraid of the police. We must not be afraid of the courts. We must stand up for the workers.

The docks are worked by dockers, clerks, stevedores, crane drivers and transport workers. The bosses are superfluous.

Lift men's strike ends in defeat

THE STRIKE by lift engineers, which has disrupted the services of some of the London hotel chains, has now ended. The men, who are employed by various firms, were demanding a pay rise of 30%.

The suspended man, a member of the Transport & General Workers' Union, said the strike had been a success. He said: "We have won our pay demands, and I am happy with the outcome."
