Support the Black Panthers

IN AMERICA the Nixon regime is responsible for the mass slaughter of Vietnamese refugees. It is trying to wipe out the militant Black Panther Party at home.

In recent raids by heavily armed police in Los Angeles and Chicago, Panthers have been killed or wounded as they fought back against a hail of bullets.

On page 6 of this issue, Socialist Worker quotes an important article from American newspapers and trade union publications on the repression against workers movement.

In Britain, maximum solidarity is demanded for the courageous Panthers. Send your financial support to the National Black Panthers' Organisation, 2nd Floor, 71, Croydon Road, London, S.E.21. 10% of receipts will be sent to the London Black Panthers.

NOTE: To: Minister of Information, Mr. Stuart, Ministry of Information, Whitehall, London, W.C.2.

More school strikes

APRIL 15, 1969, was a day for the students to claim their own education. The students at the Communications Centre, London, decided to defy the authorities.

The students at the Communications Centre, London, have continued their school strike for two weeks. They have already gained two weeks' holiday and a promise of a full reorganization of the school. The strike is expected to continue for another two weeks.

Solidarity say European dockers

DOCK WORKERS raise the banners of the International Workers' Union throughout the world. They were picketed by workers in Amsterdam last month during discussions on closer collaboration between dockers in Britain and Belgium. In the centre in Tillytun, Tilkinton, was Mrs. D. Anderson, a dock worker.

Terry Barrett, who also spoke in dockers in Rotterdam and Amsterdam in Holland. The talks were a significant step towards building links between dockers in ports throughout Europe who face similar problems of speed-up, redundancy and containerisation. FULL REPORT PAGE 5.

Union banners missing on anti-Springbok march

by Nigel Walby

CARDIFF saw its largest demonstration of recent years on Saturday when 1,500 people marched to the Arms Park, scene of the Cardiff-Sandwich rugby match. Marching five abreast under the giant banner emblazoned "Rally Herbert's Appeal!" the demonstrators, including International Socialists, brought traffic to a halt in the centre of the city. The march was watched by thousands of Christian Churchers, many of whom joined the marchers.

Only 25,000 people attended the match, but there were many weaknesses in the march and it was watched by thousands of Christian Churchers, many of whom joined the marchers. The officers fell over themselves to point out that the demonstrations were not right and that the police had not been involved — what would happen if the police halted the demonstrations? They had not been involved — The police seemed to be too busy to notice the march.

Join the march in protest at the Springbok-England rugby international on 20 December. Assemble 1.30 pm at Twickenham station for march to ground.

Decay of Health Service

The capitalist system guarantees the people's public health. The demands of profit and production come first. This is seen most clearly in the decay of the National Health Service. In the last 20 years, the number of doctors and nurses has increased by 25%, but the number of doctors per 100,000 population has decreased by 15%. This is because of the increased number of old people, who are more likely to need medical care. The government has been unable to provide enough doctors and nurses to meet the needs of the population.

Something to fight for

The British labour movement is rediscovering its class character. The struggle against the exploitation of the working class and the fight for a socialist society is the only way to change the world. It is up to us to organise and lead the fight for a better world.
DH Lawrence, the miner's son, afraid of love and the workers

by Kathy Sims

KES RUSSELL'S FILM of D H Lawrence's 'Women in Love, now showing at the Prince Charles Theatre, Leicester Square, since its general release, is no mean achievement. It takes the hero of Lawrence's preahing, slow-moving novel into a film which is bound to be a hit, and happily enjoyable, particularly for those who are unfamiliar with the narrow understanding of Lawrence's philosophy.

The book had been one long bore, like the book, if Russell was a novel without imagery of the green and the imagination, together with his film's characters, to make a gen. Through the medium of the film, Lawrence's preahing infects a world where it was non-existent.

If we understand the basis of the novel, we can see that though Russell's film may not directly, the film is not in the true interpretation of the. The Russell has injected humanity into the story. We become aware of a certain humanity to the characters themselves, as they did not live on the tramline on the way home. In the film, the pit, contrasting shockingly with another, is an alley while the scene is seen through links that enable Russell to keep a sensitive balance between the two worlds and the world Lawrence has created for us.

Lawrence himself succeeds very successfully in this kind of world while Lawrence himself succeeds very successfully in this kind of world. We also get some glimpse of hisiprisoned bourgeois loneliness and the relationships between men and women in real life. It would be difficult for a woman to accept that women wanted fulfillment up and down the pit, or that they were led to accept that her 'dancing' was done by men who were not bashed and spiritual views could not be derived from men. A sense of justice is made complete in the reader if not of Lawrence's writing and his frequent use of the final verse is in, and out of each other's public eye is to see the pit as it is.

Lawrence's writing was not so much or pure as a means of making them themselves. His 'dancing' was done so that he was not bashed and spiritual views could be derived from men. African workers are terrorised into not joining trade unions. The difference in wage rates between white and black is enormous.

and South African capitalists flourish from the super-exploitation of black workers.

JEFF COULTER talks to a rugby fan

Fun: Sport for me is politically neutral. I think that the only consideration for selection in any sport is to be skill and ability. But South Africa discriminates on other, non-sporting grounds such as race – and our job is to lick ‘em on the field and show them what a lot of privilieged lil’ whites really think.

JC: Do you really think so? Most international sports associations, such as the Olympic committee, criticise and ban countries from competing if they have to admit to anything which conflicts with their policies. But South Africa, as I understand it, is not excluded.

Fun: But surely their people have been involved in sporting activities all along.

JC: I know. You want to build bridges towards your so-called ‘white’ population by patronising anti-apartheid causes. But what you are really doing is building a wall.

Fun: The argument which has come up is that a sporting activity for every walk of life, classification in the hierarchy has to be done. Black and white, high and low, all have their own separate clubs. Is this really the way forward?

JC: It’s the best way forward.

Churchill would have been called a communist

It regulates the political activity of the nation. As Hitler supposed, the adoption of the Communist Art which defines Germany as the enemy of the world, will be the first step in the destruction of that nation.

The regime recently prevented a leading liberal journal from publishing its next issue. Conditions are such that even where your political views are in the minority, your chances of expression are limited. Fun: In this case, why is there so much international criticism of apartheid, if it is really that bad, and what about the large-scale economic cooperation between South Africa and the rest of the world?

Witsoe, in opposition to opponents, arranged that South Africa in office he honours the treaties with the ancient and present enemies of its island.

And so, in 1965, only 0.1 per cent of the black South African population was educated to a university level. The number of students in universities was 7,000, and it was estimated that only 200,000 black South Africans would be able to study at universities by 2000.

The regime has concentrated efforts to prevent black Africans from being able to study at universities and within the country. This is one of the main obstacles to the development of black intellectuals.

British has more than $500 million invested in South Africa. The lion’s share in the South African natural resources is locked up. The total value of exports is approximately with the value of gold being exported.

The government has also invested heavily in the diamond industry, which is one of the key contributors to the South African economy.

This is why Africa is that brings the world together. We are talking about what Africa should be doing.

Free speech for fascists?

BILL TURNER of the ILP and NS was asked if the tactics adopted by socialists against fascists and nazi groupings such as the National Front. He was complaining that debates organised by the ILP and the Socialist Party of Great Britain with the NF had been disrupted by left-wing organisations, including the Revolutionary Communist League, which had been invited to take part.

In order to achieve a principled movement that relativists do not debate, Comrade Turner’s tactics are in many respects just a principle in the marxist movement that relativists do not debate. It is quite astonishing that he advocates, as a principle, the right of free speech for all minorities.

Of course, we must argue where possible with people attracted to the NT, who however ambigously may be looking for a way out of the chaos of capitalism. In particular, we must have no opportunity to be subjected to verbal attacks on the part of the National Front or the British National Front, and similarly in the United States. We must budget the attacks on the Right and the Left, both of them.

We will challenge the leaders of the NF whenever they attempt to spread their poison in public. And when they do so, we will make a point of giving them the ILP’s and the SAGE’s. We will do this because we are dealing with people who participate in such disgraceful charades.

ROGER PROTZ
American socialists face life and death struggle for survival against repression

by David Friedman

THE RADICAL MOVEMENT in America is increasingly occupied with the repressive campaign being waged by the state with the support of both major parties, press and television. This question is literally a matter of life and death, freedom or oppression, for individual revolutionaries and the entire socialist movement.

The American socialist movement can be seen as a measure of the growth of the movement. If there were no repression, the movement could not be measured at all.

The need for the establishment of repression is also clear. The question is, will they be able to get away with it? How best can we respond?

DANGEROUS

The situation on the left has been to cry "fascism". The socialist movement has business-as-usual repression of the capitalist state, and it is enough, of course, with totalitarian fascism to face fascist reality. This is the only way to deal with the situation. Our aim is to divide and conquer the workers, workers from the jobless, struggling workers, from the jobless, students, from the jobless, radicals, from the jobless, revolutionaries, from the jobless. The radical movement represents a new force, and all forces that make up this movement depend on the successful counter-offensive, which will allow us to gain support for the socialist revolution, for the socialist party for power and legal activities.

Nixon regime attempts to wipe out Panthers

THE MILITANT Black Panther Party is bearing the brunt of the attacks on left-wing organizations by the United States' government and police machine. In the last 18 months 26 Panthers have been shot by the police and more than 200 arrested on trumped-up charges.

The picture shows two Panthers in Los Angeles being led away after a gun battle last week where a force of 300 cops attempted to blast their way into the party's local headquarters.

With incredible courage, the 11 Panthers in the building refused to surrender and fought back against the police using tear gas, dynamite and rifle fire.

The week before, police in Mayor Daley's Chicago raided the home of Fred Hampton and Bobo Rush, leaders of the Illinois section of the Black Panthers. The police claimed that the Panthers opened fire first, but the bullet-ridden body of Hampton was found in a blood-soaked bed. Another Panther, Mark Clark was shot during the raid.

Robby Seale, national chairman of the Panther Party, is in jail following a trial for conspiracy in which he was charged and handcuffed to a chair when he answered back to the judge. A recent report says Seale has been brutally beaten in jail.

The Black Panthers are militant revolutionaries. Unlike other "Black Power" organisations, they have not turned their back on the working class or socialists. It is this potential threat of a mass revolutionary organisation linking up blacks and white workers that has unleashed the armed terror of the Nixon regime in the "land of the free".

Period of prosperity apparently over from the economic crises which had ravaged capitalism.

World War II resulted in immense advantages for America. Western European capitalism was in ruins, threatened by its own exploitation and, until they were pacified and exploited, by revolutionary working-class movements. America invested heavily in the reconstruction of the European industrial powers, as a strategic necessity for the preservation of capitalism. From this point on, the United States' strategic interest was to maintain a balance of power in Western Europe and to maintain the military and economic power of the United States in the world market, not to secure the acquisition of the dollar as the medium for trading, but to dominate the world market.

The post World War II prosperity reflected the nation as a whole through a "trickle-down" process which reached as far as the organized workers, gave to the blue-collar workers a semblance of security. The trade unions, however, were not concerned with the welfare of the workers, but with the welfare of the working-class militancy. The decline of working-class militancy, the decline of the working-class movement, was not because of lack of organization and leadership but because of a lack of commitment to the cause of workers' emancipation. The black, blue-collar workers and the working-class movement had an important role in the struggles of the period, but they were in no position to make a revolutionary breakthrough.

AUSTERITY

The cost of the war in Vietnam has been transferred to the working class. The war has been the most serious period of austerity in the history of the United States. The cost of the war has been the most serious period of austerity in the history of the United States. The cost of the war has been the most serious period of austerity in the history of the United States. The cost of the war has been the most serious period of austerity in the history of the United States.

The economic stability of the 1960s was reflected in public conservation and general satisfaction with the system. The majority believed that their hopes and dreams were being realized. The majority believed that their hopes and dreams were being realized. The majority believed that their hopes and dreams were being realized. The majority believed that their hopes and dreams were being realized.

STABILISER

Out of the period of war production came a new stabilizing force in the American economy. The armament economy has become a major economic stabilizer in the modern capitalist economy. In the last two decades. But this method of stabilizing the economy is also the cause of the nations' productive potential. This leads to economic stagnation and to the continued growth of the war machine.

The world's dependence on the war economy has taken a competitive edge, preparing the way for the military-industrial complex into American prosperity. There is now the face of the new manufacturing and production, leading to ever more repressive measures in international economic relations. These tendencies have been accelerated by the Vietnam war which turned a gradual erosion of US influence into a sharp decline.

The fact of this decline is apparent to everyone trying to run a household on a budget. American capitalism has always used its post-war advantages, giving rise to increasing economic difficulties and increasing unemployment spreading throughout the major sectors of society.

Confusión

The liberal leaders were appealing to the black strata to solve the burning problems of the world. The government has emerged, highlighted by mass demonstrations, and has confronted the war in Vietnam and a series of regulations on campuses and increasingly in high schools across the country. However, the growth of a new militant and radical consciousness in the United States in the 1960s has been uneven. The Black community, the Chicano community, the Indian community, the white community, the liberal community, the majority of the white working class, the radical elements, the movement for black and militancy, remains imprisoned in the ideology of political change and political passivity.

CONFLUY

The socialist movement is the only organization that can lead a struggle for political change and political passivity. The socialist movement is the only organization that can lead a struggle for political change and political passivity. The socialist movement is the only organization that can lead a struggle for political change and political passivity.
Docker’s solidarity vital in container battle

From Terry Barrett, Tilbury Docks TGUW

From the beginning, Britain’s dock worker problem has been a fight over containerisation – the closure of the English Channel by oil tankers and the introduction of large ships that can carry containers. The British dock worker problem is a struggle between international capitalism and the working class. The struggle is not just about cargo, but about the very nature of work itself.

The dockers’ struggle is not just a struggle against the bosses, but against the whole system of capitalism. It is a struggle against the system that creates poverty and inequality, and a struggle for a better world.

The dockers’ struggle is not just a struggle for more pay, but for better working conditions. It is a struggle for a safer workplace, and a struggle for a world without fear of work.

The dockers’ struggle is not just a struggle for freedom, but for self-determination. It is a struggle against the domination of other nations and a struggle for a world where all people have the right to decide their own fate.

The dockers’ struggle is not just a struggle for the present, but for the future. It is a struggle for a world where all people have the right to live in dignity and freedom.

The dockers’ struggle is not just a struggle for the dockers, but for all workers. It is a struggle that we can all join and that we can all win.

The dockers’ struggle is a struggle for the heart and soul of our society. It is a struggle that we must all support and that we must all win.

The dockers’ struggle is a struggle for our future. It is a struggle that we must all embrace and that we must all fight.

MILITANT TENANTS in Greater London are preparing for action over rent increases. At an Extraordinary General Meeting at the TUC last week, tenants from various parts of Greater London attended to discuss the plight of renters over rent increases. The Tenants' Action Committee, which represents tenants throughout London, has recently introduced a campaign to protest against rent increases. The committee has been successful in increasing awareness about the issue and has received support from various organizations and individuals.

"We will stand up to demands for increased rents," said Chris Ryan of the Tenants’ Action Committee. "We are not going to accept any increases without a proper rent strike." The committee plans to organize rent strikes in various parts of London to protest against the rent increases. The committee is calling for support from tenants who are facing increased rents.

Crabtrees go back

On 30th April, 1969, 500 AEP members at Crabtree's Vickers, grilling works, were on strike over major concessions by the management. The strike was called to protest against the management's refusal to make full pay demands for the company's employees. The strike was a test of the workers' resolve to fight for their rights and to defend their livelihood. The workers were determined to make the company pay for its concessions.

CRABTREE'S VICKERS, 260 locked-out employees at the company's Sidcup, Kent, plant, met with representatives of the company to discuss the future of the plant. The company has offered to return the employees to work under new terms and conditions.

Pensions: 2000 old people get 6d. a week

by Jim Kincade

The government has recently admitted that there are some 2000 old age pensioners who get a pension of precisely 6½p a week. This group has missed out on the main flat-rate pensions but instead qualify for a flat-rate pension under the graduated pension scheme introduced by the Tories in 1961.

Condemned

When they were in opposition, Labour leaders used to condemn the 1961 scheme as a "porky-chop swindle". But after five years of Labour rule the Tory graduated scheme still operates without any change.

The 2000 pensioners do however enjoy one big concession. If your pension is as low as this, you are not obliged to turn up at the Post Office every week to collect it.

Blasts used to crack-down on Italian Left

by Norah Carlin

The explosion, one of which killed 14 people in the Cultural Bank in Milan on 11 October, was an attempt by the Italian Left-wing groups to respond to the growing violence of workers on strike. The bank was one of the targets of the violence, and the Left-wing groups accused the government of not doing enough to combat the violence.

The explosion was one of several that occurred in Milan and Rome in recent weeks and was part of a continuing struggle between the Italian Left and the government. The Italian Left has been using a variety of tactics to oppose the government, including blockades and sit-ins.

The government has not yet commented on the explosion, but has called for a "law and order" campaign. The right-wing parties have responded to the explosions with anger, and have called for a "law and order" campaign on the streets. The Social Democratic League, in contrast, has called for a "law and order" campaign on the streets to stop the violence.

The government has also announced a new package of measures to combat the violence, including increased police powers and a ban on public meetings.
