The Tories seen determined to force a showdown with the trade unions. Last week Prime Minister Edward Heath said he was prepared to fight the labour movement as far as a general strike in order to push through his anti-union measures.

Heath’s general strike challenge must be answered

by THE EDITOR

The government’s anti-union measures become law.

A declaration of intent from union leaders that they will openly flout legislation that forces them to call a ballot before taking strike action.

A firm refusal to abide by any ‘cooling-off’ periods when strikes are called.

Strike action in any trade unions is threatened with legal action.

Militant action is the only way in which workers can keep abreast of the rising flood of prices. The basic and vital right to strike must not be taken away.

The trade union movement has enormous strength. That strength must be used to the full to defeat the Tories and the bosses.

And that strength lies with the rank and file. They should step up their efforts to build strong shop stewards’ and combine committees throughout industry. A powerful grass-roots move can force the leaders into action.

Rudi Dutschke launches appeal

RUDI-DUTSCHKE, the German student threatened with expulsion from Britain, has appealed to Home Secretary Reginald Maudling to allow him to stay to take up his studies at Cambridge.

Maudling has also agreed to give Dutschke a few weeks’ grace to put his affairs in order. Further protests to the Home Office could force the government to back down completely.

How Israel aids persecution of Arabs and Jews

by Stephen Marks

Not one country was willing to open its doors to the homeless Jews (refugees) for whom there was a lead to Auschwitz. In 1947-1948, after about 1,750 Jewish refugees (so-called Prisoners of War) were taken to the country in the wake of anti-British demonstrations, over 1,000 of them came to power, and a powerful new force was forming the support in the British Mandate of Palestine. Zionists began to organise a Jewish guerrilla movement, and the Zionists became the most important political force in the region.

The랜드 were the Arabs of Palestine, 200,000 Arab refugees, and the British army. Zionists and British forces met in the Arab towns and villages, and the British forces were forced to retake control of the situation.

In 1947, when the Arab leaders decided a military confrontation with the British was inevitable, they started a military conflict with the British forces. The British forces were heavily outnumbered and outgunned, and the Arab leaders, led by the young Sheikh Yassin, decided to launch a full-scale war of resistance against the British forces.

The British forces were forced to retreat, and the Arab leaders gained control of the situation. The British forces were forced to accept the creation of a Palestinian state, and the Arab leaders, led by Sheikh Yassin, were able to negotiate a peace agreement with the British forces.

This agreement was signed in 1948, and the Arab leaders were able to negotiate a peace agreement with the British forces. The British forces were forced to accept the creation of a Palestinian state, and the Arab leaders, led by Sheikh Yassin, were able to negotiate a peace agreement with the British forces.
Brainwashing the kids

'Selfish workers, foul strikers' says key school book

SOCIALIST TEACHERS reject the idea that their job is to produce docile workers for industry. But in secondary schools and further education colleges they are under constant pressure to adapt their teaching to the requirements of big business.

One important way in which the press has been doing this is through a book called "The Spinster's Guide to Socialism," which was recommended and used in secondary schools as part of the geography curriculum. It is published by Longman's, one of the major educational publishing firms.

Chapter one of this little book is entitled 'Groups'. It starts innocently enough, talking about the social class in the classroom and friends, but on page two the author really begins to show her true colours.

"Many groups in our society are defined by their ability to help other people improve our way of life. This is especially true of the print, advertising, and public relations industries, which all together produce more than one million dollars worth of goods per year..."

"So, what we have here is a system of brainwashing the kids. Where, in other words, is the author of the book, Mr.旋EB, getting himself a bit of a name? He clearly sees the importance of the print industry in our society, and he is using it to help build up the image of the 'good worker'."

"What he is doing is turning the kids against their own class, against the working class in general. He is turning them away from the idea that they can improve their way of life by working together, and instead he is teaching them to see the working class as a threat to their own interests."

"And this is not just a problem for children in secondary school. Children in primary school are also being brainwashed by this system, because they are being taught to see the working class as a threat to their own interests."

"We need to do something about this. We need to break up this system of brainwashing the kids, and we need to do it now."

Contented

Liberal education demands that education should fit the ideas of social democracy. The book 'The Spinster's Guide to Socialism' is not a liberal education book.

"Here is an imaginary machine manufacturing irresponsible people about the shareholders of the companies that buy the work. This is why we need a teaching machine that will make the children think in the right way."

"The trouble is that the children are being taught to see the whole world as a threat to their own interests. When they grow up, they will be a threat to the system that is responsible for brainwashing them.

Threaten

To explain the process how an unofficial strikes occur, a story is told about Mr. Black, the engineer, who blacked and other strikers demand and receive a wage rise from £20 to £40 per day.

"A simple example is presented and showing that: 'The price of goods they produce is not necessarily tied to the price of the goods they produce and they can demand a wage rise from £20 to £40 per day.'"

"This is not why we need a teaching machine. This is why we need a teaching machine that will make children think in the right way."

Rumours

One of the central features of the book is the way in which the system of education is depicted as flawed and ineffective. The book describes a system in which teachers are seen as mere puppets of the system, and that the system itself is corrupt and ineffective.

"The teachers are not to blame for this. They are not the ones who are brainwashing the kids. The system is what is responsible for the brainwashing of the kids."

Swedish unions in battle over bonus

by Rasmus Rasmussen

AWAY with the bonus system.

This will be one of the main demands in the coming negotiations over collective wage agreements between the LO (Swedish TUC) and the Employers' Confederation."

"We have the members behind us," says the LO's General Secretary of the Metal Workers Union.

"It is Sweden's biggest union, with 350,000 members, and it has always been difficult to come to an agreement on a bonus system."

"But this time, we are determined to get rid of the bonus system."

Because the bonus system is worthless because only production was examined and not the health and well-being of the workers. The stress brought about by the bonus system and the work study has lead to the main reason why workers want them abolished.

"The Metal Workers Union's plan is not only an attack on a money bonus, but also on the whole initiative which is the result of the efforts of the LO and the unions.

RUMOURS

One of the central demands of the miners is that the bonus system should be done away with and a fixed wage introduced. They forced through a temporary dropping of the bonus system that ended this Tuesday (October 3).

The results of the experiment have not yet been published, but rumours say production is as least as high in the mines but there has been a rise in turnover.

"It is too early to say what the results of the anti-bonus campaign will be. It started with the LO and miners and spread to other workers in the industry and the government.

"But it is now being taken up by the union leaders, who are not usually noted for their simplicity or interest in workers' problems."

"This was shown by the other main demands of the rank and file, which was a bonus in all industries earlier this year. The leaders would not accept this.

"If the Swedish union bureaucrats had not been convinced that the schemes are designed to drum more profit from the workers and the government will have to do something about it.
Militant action is the only way car workers can stop the attacks by bosses and government

AS THE MOTOR OWNERS, the millionaire press and the government intensify their attacks on motor workers, the need for counter offensive becomes more and more urgent.

The employers are attempting to weaken and smash the workshop trade union organisation by:
A: Measured Day Work, the abolition of mutuality and the introduction of productivity drains and job evaluation.
B: Restricting the right to strike by anti-trade union legislation and incorporating the official trade union leaders into joint action against militancy and
C: Taking advantage of the reduction in work for new motor vehicles by trying to smash car workers’ militancy. The recent lengthy disputes at Dunlop, Lucas, GKN Sankey and Ford run all demonstrate this intensified attack by the employers.

The time has come when motor workers can defend and improve their wages and working conditions by developing immediately a counter offensive to the employers’ offensive. The main & points of such a policy should be:

1. Strengthening trade union organisation. In every factory, where it does not yet exist, trade union organisation must be introduced as well as strengthening existing organisation.

Combine committees should be formed that will fight to defend each factory in membership. Wherever possible, there should be a real existing industrial factors can be isolated and defeated.

Betray

The tremendous militancy of the GKN Sankey workers is an example of the refusal of certain trade union officials to the demands of the workers. If APE and TGWU either decline to declare the dispute officially or actually oppose the productivity strikings.

It only by supporting trade union leaders who they back workers in struggle regrow dedicated to the maximum unity between factories that the militancy can be successfully resisted.

3. These are examples of opposition to productivity strikings such as Morris Speight, it is a matter of policy of the Labour. The aim of these actions is to put the employers in a position to claim that the employers’ strikes are without solid membership. The unions have been considering the issue of productivity and the possibility of their being taken up.

The motor workers are preparing for a mass campaign and this must be prevented.

1. Throughout the country the motor industry the demand of ‘parity’ means that conditions are as crucial importance. The wages of Ford and Vauxhall workers are considerably lower than those paid at Chrysler and Napier.

Within British Leyland there are considerable differences in pay between the different works, with the result that the workers are being considered as part of the parity movement.

In the components industry, strikes at Lucas and GKN Sankey have occurred around the issue of parity.

In the components industry, strikes at Lucas and GKN Sankey have occurred around the issue of parity.

The employers’ attack has been through the threat of productivity dealing.

The Employers’ Offensive

Productivity Deals and how to fight them

by TONY CLIFF

In every major industry the question of productivity deals is of central importance. The recent dock strike over the basic wage for 50 per week was fundamentally connected with the employers’ determination to introduce the Devlin productivity proposals. In strike after strike workers are struggling against productivity deals. At GKN Sankey, Durnell and Dunlop the central issues of these disputes have been productivity in the car industry and the mines.

The Employers’ offensive of limited importance to every militant. Order copies now for your union branch and shop stewards’ committee.

CROSING CRISMS IN MOTORS
Four part series by JOHN SETTERS

How to fight — and win

The Crosse Crisis review of how PARIS, January 27. 1970

East workers refused to obey a company instruction not to come to work. Instead they clocked in as normal, started the machines and began producing.

After three hours of panic and the workmen established the basis, they are still now, demand the production, seven days later, one of the last of the Austin’s.

The employers continually reject demands for shorter hours and two days.

The demand for five days’ pay or five days’ work is a demand for one of the key issues in the motor industry. The recent decision of Standard Triumph workers — one out, all out — is the only way to ensure that a demand can be satisfactorily obtained.

British Leyland workers in particular must beware of certain management plans.

The companies have said they are willing to discuss lay-off and pay variations in the interests of the company. In the interests of the workers.

This proposal must be totally rejected. Five days work or five days work is the only way to ensure that the workers’ demands.

To destroy a capitalist plant a plan that works.

COUNCIL WORKERS RAISE SALT ON WAGES
by Bob Light

The struggle of 770,000 local authority workers for a living wage entered a crucial stage this week when the unions concerned called simultaneous two-day strikes. The two sides seem to be digging in for a real showdown.

The pay claim is for a flat hike of 10s. 10d. for the year and it will affect local government workers from school dinner ladies to sewage workers. They are among the lowest paid workers in the country.

Take home pay as low as £9 a week for a cook. The average for a 40-hour job is £16 4s. a week, while some cleaners do not earn even £11 10s. and daily helps £11 10s. and daily helps £12 13s. 6d.

Some council workers did not receive pay for years of experience, others only for 10s. 6d.

The employees' final offer of 34s. a week for the first three years of the present agreement was rejected by the government and concerns with the councils. The Trades Union Congress and the Trades Union Congress have sent out a circular to workers and organisations urging them to stand firm against the 'unreasonable' claim.

Behind the Trades Union Congress and the Trades Union Congress there are more than 90 local authority workers who are being driven to the point of desperation. This is why the trade unions are calling for the rebirth of the ruling class-the International Socialist Union, the World Federation of Trade Unions and the World Federation of Trade Unions to hold down the living standards of the working class.

With wage claims from power workers, railwaymen and provincial businessmen for the same type of strike to bring down the standards of the provincial businessmen, the trade unionists have decided to take action to force the councils to reduce their wages.

It is believed that the trade unionists can only be won by a fight on a political basis. The reason is the widespread strike in the white-collar workers and the trade unionists are prepared to take action to force the councils to reduce their wages.

It is a claim that, in the final analysis, can only be won by the trade unions, the International Socialist Union, the World Federation of Trade Unions and the World Federation of Trade Unions to hold down the living standards of the working class.

THE COUNCIL WORKERS

The trade unionists have already taken action to force the councils to reduce their wages. The trade unionists have already taken action to force the councils to reduce their wages. The trade unionists have already taken action to force the councils to reduce their wages.

THE COUNCILS

The councils are not going to challenge the trade unionists. The councils are not going to challenge the trade unionists. The councils are not going to challenge the trade unionists. The councils are not going to challenge the trade unionists.
