Where Lies the Mistake in the Present Policy of the German Communist Party

The Workers United against Fascism

Communism in Fascist Germany?

We cannot understand sufficiently the importance of the developments that have taken place in the class struggle in Germany to pass judgment on the present German Communist Party. It is not possible to make an adequate, in-depth analysis of the attitude of the Communist Party towards fascism in Germany. However, we can say that the German Communist Party has made a basic mistake in its policy in Germany.

The mistake lies in the fact that the Communist Party has not understood the importance of the class struggle in Germany. The workers and the workers' organizations have been the driving force behind the developments in Germany. The German Communist Party has failed to seize this opportunity and has not taken the necessary steps to mobilize the workers.

In order to understand the mistake of the Communist Party, we need to understand the dynamics of the class struggle in Germany. The workers in Germany have been fighting against the fascist regime for a long time. They have been organizing strikes, protests, and demonstrations. The German Communist Party has not joined this struggle and has failed to mobilize the workers.

The failure of the Communist Party to understand the dynamics of the class struggle is the cause of its mistake. The workers have been fighting against the fascist regime for a long time. The German Communist Party has not understood the importance of this struggle and has not taken the necessary steps to support the workers.

In conclusion, the mistake of the Communist Party lies in its failure to understand the dynamics of the class struggle in Germany. The workers have been fighting against the fascist regime for a long time. The German Communist Party has not understood the importance of this struggle and has not taken the necessary steps to support the workers.
