Left Opposition Gives Estimate of Spanish Anarchist Putch

Recent events have demonstrated that our labor movement is capable of achieving significant gains in the struggle for the establishment of a socialist society. The struggles in Spain have shown that the working class is capable of overthrowing the existing order and building a new society based on the principles of equality, democracy, and international solidarity.

The conflict between the working class and the bourgeoisie is not just a struggle for material gains, but a struggle for the very survival of humanity. The working class must unite with all those who share its goals and its vision of a world without exploitation and oppression.

The working class must continue to fight for its rights and for the rights of all those who are oppressed by the existing order. The working class must continue to fight for the establishment of a world in which everyone can live in peace and freedom.
