How Can Fascism Be Smashed in Germany

by Leon Trotsky

The most urgent need is the ability to do things and the ability to do things with the workers. The workers' organizations and the political parties...The struggle against fascism is only the beginning of the struggle against the system of capitalism. The struggle against fascism is only the beginning of the struggle against the system of capitalism. The struggle against fascism is only the beginning of the struggle against the system of capitalism.

The experience of the German opposition has shown that a direct struggle against the fascists is necessary. This struggle must be based on the unity of the workers and peasants, and on the leadership of the Communist Party.

The struggle for freedom and democracy is not only a struggle against the fascist government, but also a struggle against the capitalist ruling class. The fascists are the tool of the capitalist class, and they cannot be defeated until the capitalist class is overthrown.

The fascists are supported by the reactionaries of the whole world, from the United States to Japan. The fascists are not only enemies of the working class, but also of all the oppressed peoples of the world.

The fascists are fighting not only against the workers and peasants, but also against the tens of millions of people who are suffering under the capitalist system. The fascists are fighting not only against the working class, but also against the whole of the socialist movement.

The fascists are fighting not only against the workers and peasants, but also against the whole of the socialist movement. The fascists are fighting not only against the working class, but also against the whole of the socialist movement.
