C.L.A. Activities in New York

Reorganization—The New York organization of the C.L.A. is making good progress. The work of the central committee is being carried on in New York City, and the local chapters are starting to function. The new committee is composed of John J. O'Brien, chairman; W. J. O'Flaherty, vice chairman; and John F. O'Casey, secretary. The meetings of the organization will be held every Tuesday night at 8:30 p.m., at the Central Office of the C.L.A., 63-53 7th Ave., New York City.

The work of the C.L.A. is receiving a great deal of attention from the working class. The organization is endeavoring to establish a network of chapters throughout the United States, and to make the C.L.A. a real force in the labor movement.

It is Impossible to Remain in the Same International with Stalin, Manuilsky, Losovsky and Company -- (A Conversation)

A - "It is impossible to remain in the same International with Stalin, Manuilsky, Losovsky and company. It is palpably impossible to remain in the same International with them if you respect the Bolshevik movement or the international revolutionary movement. We have both the right to remain in the International. There is no incompatibility of our existence. There is no incompatibility of our existence. This has been the case for the whole of the post-revolutionary period. The Manuilsky-STalin-Stalinist-Sybolsky- company is alien to the world of the revolution. Now there is no incompatibility between the existence of the Communists and the existence of Stalin, Manuilsky, Losovsky or any other individual. This is no problem. There is no problem of incompatibility. There is no problem of incompatibility. There is no problem of incompatibility. This has been the case for the whole of the post-revolutionary period. There is no incompatibility of the existence of Stalin, Manuilsky, Losovsky or any other individual. This is no problem. There is no problem of incompatibility. There is no problem of incompatibility. This has been the case for the whole of the post-revolutionary period. There is no incompatibility of the existence of Stalin, Manuilsky, Losovsky or any other individual. This is no problem. There is no problem of incompatibility. There is no problem of incompatibility. This has been the case for the whole of the post-revolutionary period.

The conversation began with a general discussion of the international situation. The speaker mentioned the importance of the General Strike and the need to continue it. He also discussed the role of the Comintern and its influence on the development of the revolution in various countries. The speaker emphasized the need for unity and solidarity among the communist parties around the world.

The conversation then turned to the question of the future of the international. The speaker argued that the international must be transformed to reflect the needs of the working class and the revolutionary movement. He discussed the importance of building a new international that was truly representative of the working class and the revolutionary movement.

The speaker also addressed the importance of building a new international that was truly representative of the working class and the revolutionary movement. He discussed the importance of building a new international that was truly representative of the working class and the revolutionary movement.

The speaker concluded by emphasizing the need for unity and solidarity among the communist parties and the importance of building a new international that was truly representative of the working class and the revolutionary movement.

The conversation ended with a discussion of the role of the Comintern and its influence on the development of the revolution in various countries. The speaker emphasized the need for unity and solidarity among the communist parties around the world.
