By H. F. ROBERTS

Thirteen leaders of the Bolshevik-Leninist group of France have been expelled from the French Socialist Party. Prepar-ing a sacred union of their own as a prelude to the sacred union government of the morrow, the Socialist and Stalinist bureaucracies are seeking to disembarrass themselves of a revolutionary left wing which does not and will not permit their gross betrayal of the French proletariat to go 'unchallenged

In response to this reactionary offensive an organized bloc under the name Revolutionary Left is taking form in the Socialist Party of France. At a meeting of 1,500 militants in Paris Marceau Pivert, one of the outstanding leaders of the Socialist left, proclaimed the formation of the left bloc.

The expulsion of the Bolshevik- Lay Off Resentment Rips Leninists, long expected and forecast in these columns, was openly stated by the National Disputes Committee of the S.P. to be based upon the fact that the "program of the Bolshevik-Leninist Group cansince it would lead the party into workers in plant 2, the Goodyear an impossible situation." Faced with the crisis of war and the acute tightening of internal contradictions, the threat of Fascism and civil war, the Socialist and Stalinist bureaucracies in France are trying to cover with the fetish of "unity" their policies of betrayal, of social patriotism, of class collaboration. In so doing they are finding it necessary to cope with a growing movement of opposition from the left which they hope to silence by the simple expedient of bureaucratically expelling them from their organizations.

In the Socialist Party the left wing is rapidly crystallizing. At a meeting of the various left tendencies of the S.P. in Paris a few weeks ago, the Bolshevik-Leninists, the Pivert group, the Action Socialiste and the C.A.S.R. took the preliminary step toward the formal constitution of a left bloc to be known as the Revolutionary Left,

First reports on the meetings of comrade Shachtman on his coast-to-coast tour indicate the growing influence of the Workers Party and lively interest in its revolutionary position on the war question. A fist fight between the heads of the two biggest unions in the A. F. of L., Hutcheson of the Carpenters and John L. Lewis of the Miners, featured the closing day of the Atlantic City convention. In more vays than one this affair was symbolic. The boys were actually excited about something and that has not been true of the top leadership of the A. F. of L. for years. These comfortable bureaucrats were not the kind to take life seriously, and they did not need to excite themselves about anything except their golf scores and the stock market. That day is over. The rift in the leadership is the most serious that has occurred in the entire fifty-five years history of the Federation. The historic one-round bout of Hutcheson and Lewis took place over Hutcheson's opposition to letting a Federal Union delegate speak for an industrial union in his industry. Jack Warnick Lewis said it was "small potatoes" of Hutcheson not to let the "little Lewis said it was "small potatoes" fellows" have their say. Hutcheson rose to the full height of his NSAC Comes to Defense six teet two and said he had been brought up on small potatoes and that's what made him so littlejust like a boy out of a Mark Twain story. He also, it is said, called Lewis a naughty name. With that Lewis sent one to the jaw. Soon the two men were rolling about on While Attorney-General U. S. Webb, the floor. When they had been sepwho spent thousands of dollars of arated, Lewis brushed back his state funds to finance the prosecu- raven locks and like a nineteenth tion of Norman Mini and the other century Shakesperian actor strode Sacramento workers for criminal to his seat. Hutcheson, the craft syndicalism, refuses to prosecute unionist, had to take time out to dress his wounds. That also was symbolic. Meanwhile William Green, face as red as a tomato, looking on forces too big for him, strove in vain to get order. And that also was symbolic. "Progressives" in a Minority

It must not be inferred that the so-called "progressives" under the leadership of John Lewis constituted a majority in this convention.

they were regularly defeated by the

The Theoretical Origin of Social Patriotism THE SOURCE

Culled from Leon Trotsky's immortal classic, "The Criticism of Fundamentals: the Draft Program of the C. L" which exposed the fountainhead of Stalinist degeneration, the following section showed as far back as 1928 how the revisionist theory of "Socialism in One Country" led immutably to social patriotism. This prediction, considered at the time of its presentation to the Sixth World Congress of the Comintern to be an academic deduction, especially in view of the solemn prenouncements of the Congress in favor of revolutionary defeatism, needed hardly seven years and another Congress of the C. I. to find its confirmation in life itself and in the official minutes and resolutions. Indeed, so true has this prediction become that the official organ of the French Communist Party speaks ad nauseum of the need to defend French culture and patrimony, as the inheritance of the working class alone, against German invasion. A casual glance at the Daily Worker will reveal a similar and probably more obnoxious social patriotic propaganda.—Ed.

True, a resume revolutionary duty whereas patriotism in relation to a bourgeois state is treachery. This is surely so. Can there be any dispute on this question among grown-up revolutionists? But this incontrovertible idea becomes, as we progress more and more, a scholastic cover for deliberate falsehood.

Revolutionary patriotism can be only of a class character. It begins at patriotism to the party organization, to the trade union, and rises to national patriotism when the proletariat has captured power. Whereever the workers have power patriotism is a revolutionary duty. But rank and file workers-wanted to defend Hohenzollern and the bourable part of revolutionary internageoisie.
