DANGERS FACING THE ITALIAN REVOLUTION An Editorial

Italy is now in the throes of revolution. The Italian revolution is only ten days old. But already the workers there are displaying all the imagination, boldness and heroism that the working class always displays in time of revolution. They are taking their place at the head of all the oppressed masses in the country. And their example is already inspiring the workers of all Europe, especially those of Germany.

It was the Italian masses that toppled Mussolini from power. They stormed the houses of the fascist leaders. They sacked the leading fascist newspapers. They forced open the prisons and freed the political prisoners. The Italian workers seek to obliterate and destroy every symbol and vestige of the hated fascist regime.

After defying the demands and the anger of the revolting Italian people for three days, the monarchist-militarist Badoglio government retreated under the pressure of the masses and ordered the fascist party dissolved. A day later the government was likewise forced to abolish the whole facade and apparatus of the fascist regime.

But the power behind the Badoglio regime - the capitalists, the church hierarchy, the monarchy — this reactionary gang, which helped organize the fascist government, which propped it up for over twenty years, and which finally discarded it in desperation, this reactionary gang still hopes to salvage itself and its rule.

The acts of the new Badoglio government show it to be as reactionary and hostile to the people as the Mussolini government it replaced.

See how desperately it tries to cling to the power which is already beginning to slip out of its hands. The government's first act was to clamp down martial law, forbidding three people or more to gather in or out of doors. Next it suppresses the newspapers that various underground groups have already begun to publish. A drastic military censorship is clamped down. And finally, the Badoglio government crowns its rule of infamy by ordering the soldiers to shoot down the demonstrating workers.

But all to no avail. The revolution continues. It grows broader, deeper, more sweeping every day. It is already finding response throughout Europe. Badoglio can still issue draconian orders. He is already losing the power to carry them

Ten Days Of The Badoglio Government

As he took over Mussolini's job of premier on July 25, Marshal Badoglio tried to talk with the voice of a strong man: "...whoever believes he can interrupt the normal progress of events or whoever Italian Upsurge seeks to disturb internal order will be struck down without mercy," he Inspires Workers declared.

Roosevelt Expresses Allied Aims

By Anthony Massini

The clearest expression so far of the Allied leaders' attitude toward the Italian events was President Roosevelt's statement, at his press conference July 30, that he "did not care with whom we dealt so long as he was not a member of the Fascist government and could get the Italian troops to lay down their arms and could prevent anarchy. It might be the King or a Prime Minister or a Mayor who could serve these ends." (N. Y. Mussolini's downfall and Times, July 31.)

The kind of deal referred to here by Roosevelt is not the same thing as the acceptance of unconditional surrender. If all it meant were unconditional surrender, then Churchill and Roosevelt would certainly be ready for that purpose to "deal with" Mussolini and Hitler too.

This "deal" obviously implies something different-a willingness on the part of Roosevelt to recognize as the authoritative 24 hours the press and radio tried government of Italy, "for the present," those who meet the

The Italian workers did not rise in their might, they did not take to the streets, they did not storm the fascist homes and jails, they did not call political strikes merely to replace a Mussolini with a Badoglio. The Italian people want something far more substantial than that. They want an end of the war. They want bread. They want to regain their political rights and freedom.

When the Allied invasion troops landed in Sicily almost a month ago, the press reported that they were warmly greeted and welcomed by the Italian people as liberators. But a Canadian war correspondent, Ross Munro, inadvertently gives a somewhat different story in a delayed dispatch dated July 26 and released through the AP. When Munro and others told the Sicilians in the streets about the fall of Mussolini on July 25:

"Overjoyed Sicilians vented their hatred for their fascist overlords by tearing down Italian propaganda posters of Mussolini. They threw rocks at Fascist emblems. One old man reached up to disfigure a painting of Mussolini's head on the wall of a building."

Here is a good example of how the Amgot policy works out in practice. Although the Allies had been in Sicily for two full weeks, the people, seeing how the Amgot authorities had maintained local fascists in their posts, were afraid to take down the fascist posters and emblems. It was only after the collapse of fascism, not after the arrival of the Allies, that they dared to show their hatred of the fascist symbols! Munro's report continues:

"FOR THE FIRST TIME IN SICILY I SAW REALLY HAPPY ITALIANS. Sad-eyed old women smiled and pretty, vivacious young girls who had been hiding in the cellars came into the streets, their eyes sparkling with joy

"We saw tattered, bewildered people, starved and exploited for years, breath new hope of freedom and liberty in our scanty information about the Duce's downfall."

For the first time Munro saw really happy people in Sicily! So much for the stories that the oppressed Italian people accept the Allied troops as their liberators.

Problems Of The Italian Revolution the masses. I want here 'simply to indicate the general place of Thirteen years ago, two years before Hitler's advent to power, a group of Italian Left Communists asked Trotsky's opinion on a number of important questions, among them the class nature of the revolution against fascism, and the character of a "transitional" period in Italy following the overthrow of fascism. These are immediate burning questions today. Despite the lapse of years, Trotsky's answer retains full validity in all its essentials.

Here is what Leon Trotsky wrote on May 14, 1930 in reply to a question about the class nature of the revolution against fascism:

Social Character of Italian Revolution

"You deny the possibility of a bourgeois revolution in Italy and in this you are absolutely correct. History hasn't the capacity for turning back a considerable number of pages, each denoting a decade. The Central Committee of the Italian Communist Party used to try to skate around this question by declaring that the revolution would be neither bourgeois nor proletarian but a 'people's' revolution. This is a mere repetition of the answer given at the beginning of our century by the Russian Populists (Narodniki) to the question of what will be the nature of the revolution against Czarism. This is the same answer that the Comintern has. given and continues to give with respect to China and India. It is a pseudo-revolutionary rehashing of the social-democratic theory of Otto Bauer and others, a theory proclaiming that the state can rise above the classes, i.e., be neither bourgeois nor proletarian. This theory is fatal for the proletariat and for the revolution. In China it turned the proletariat into cannon fodder for the bourgeois counter-revolution.

"Every great revolution in history is a people's revolution in the sense that the entire people enters into the channel of the revolution. The Great French Revolution and the October revolution were people's revolutions in the full sense of the term. But the former was bourgeois inasmuch as it established private property whereas the latter was proletarian inasmuch as it abolished private property.

"Only hopelessly belated petty-bourgeois revolutionists are still capable of envisaging nowadays the perspective of neither bourgeois nor proletarian revolutions but a 'people's' (i. e., pettybourgeois) one. But in the imperialist epoch the petty bourgeoisie is utterly incapable not only of leading the revolution but of playing an independent role in it."

With regard to the "transitional" period in Italy after the downfall of fascism, a question closely linked with the foregoing, Trotsky wrote:

Two Diametrically Opposed Conceptions

"First of all it is necessary to pose clearly the question - a transitional period from what to what? A transitional period between a bourgeois (or 'people's') revolution and the proletarian revolution -- that is one thing. A transitional period between the fascist dictatorship and the proletarian dictatorship - that is something else again. In accordance with the first conception on the order of the day is a bourgeois revolution and one must fix the place of the proletariat in it, and only after this will there open up the transitional period to the proletarian revolution. According to the other conception, at issue is a series of battles, social shocks, changing situations, and partial turns which comprise the stage of the proletarian revolution. There might be several such stages. But between them there cannot and will not be either a bourgeois revolution or the mysterious hybrid of a 'people's' revolution.

"Does this mean that Italy might not again turn for a certain time into a parliamentary state or become a 'democratic republic'? I consider - apparently in complete agreement with you - that such a perspective is not excluded. But it can manifest itself not as the product of a bourgeois revolution but as the abortion of the proletarian revolution, which had not fully matured and which had not been brought to its conclusion. In the event of a profound revolutionary crisis and mass battles in the course of which, however, the proletarian vanguard proves yet, incapable of coming to power, the bourgeoisie might w and to consider as solved the colossal task which still fully confronts the weak Communist Party.

"Should the revolutionary crisis unfold, say, in the course of the next few months-under the influence of the economic crisis on the one hand, and under the impact of the revolutionary impulse from Spain on the other - then vast masses of toilers, not only peasants but also workers would undoubtedly advance, alongside of economic demands, democratic slogans (freedom of assembly, of the press, coalitions, unions, democratic representation in parliament, municipalities, etc.). Does it mean that a communist party must reject these demands? On the contrary. It must invest them with the most audacious and resolute meaning. The revolutionary dictatorship cannot be imposed upon the popular masses. It can be realized in life only by conducting the struggle - the entire struggle for all the transitional demands, tasks and needs of the masses - at the head of these masses.

Bolshevik Policy in 1917

"Let me recall that Bolshevism by no means came to power under the abstract slogan of the dictatorship of the proletariat. We fought for the Constituent Assembly much more resolutely and boldly than all the other parties. We said to the peasants: 'You demand equal distribution of land? Our agrarian program goes much further. But no one except us will assist you peasants in realizing the equal use of the land. For this you must support the workers.' In regard to the war we said to the popular masses: 'Our communist task is the war against all oppressors. But you are not ready to go so far. You are striving to break out of the imperialist war. No one except us Bolsheviks will help you achieve this task.'

"I do not touch here at all upon the question of what should be the central slogans of the transitional period in Italy, right now in the year 1930. In order to outline the proper slogans, and to effect correct and timely changes, it is necessary to be far better acquainted with Italy's internal life and to be far closer to her toiling masses than is possible for me. Here, in addition to the correct method, it is also necessary to be able to listen to

we must irreconcilably fight against all forms of democratic charlatanism. Such low-grade charlatanism is represented by the slogan of the Italian social-democracy: "The Democratic

"Democratic" Charlatanism

Republic of the Toilers." The toilers' republic can be only the class state of the proletariat. The 'Democratic Republic' is only a masked rule of the bourgeoisie. The combination of the two is a naive petty-bourgeois illusion of the social-democratic rank and file (workers, peasants) and deliberate treachery on the part of the social-democratic leaders (all these Turatis, Modiglianis. and their ilk). Let me once again remark in passing that I was and remain opposed to the formula of a 'National Assembly on the basis of worker-peasant committees' precisely because this formula approaches the social-democratic slogan of the 'Democratic Toilers' Republic' and, consequently, can render extremely difficult for us the struggle against the social-democrats.

transitional demands in the struggle of communism against fas-

"While advancing one or another set of democratic slogans, cism, and, generally, against bourgeois society.

The Threat of Social-Democratic Betrayal

"The assertion of the official leadership (of the Comintern) to the effect that the social-democracy no longer exists politically in Italy is a consoling theory for optimistic functionaries who see ready-made conquests where it is still a question only of great tasks. Fascism did not liquidate the social-democracy but on the contrary has conserved it. In the eyes of the masses the social-democrats do not bear the direct responsibility for the regime whose victims they are to a certain extent. This gains them new sympathies or strengthens the old ones. At a certain moment the social-democracy will coin political currency from the blood of Matteotti just as proficiently as 'Rome coins Christ's blood. It is not at all excluded that in the initial period of the revolutionary crisis the leadership can turn out to be concentrated chiefly in the hands of the social-democracy. If large masses are drawn immediately into the crisis, and if the communist leadership conducts a correct policy, then the social-democracy can be reduced to a cipher within a brief period of time. But this is a task and not a conquest already attained. One cannot leap over this task: one must solve it.

Blunders of the Comintern

"Let me recall in passing that Zinoviev, and later the Manuilskys and Kuusinens, have already announced on two or three occasions that the German social-democracy no longer exists in essence. In 1925 in a statement to the French party, written by the flighty Lozovsky, the Comintern announced that the French Socialist Party has completely departed from the scene. Against this lightmindedness the Left Opposition protested resolutely each time. Only boobies or traitors will seek to instil in the proletarian vanguard of Italy the idea that Italian social-democracy can no longer play the role analagous to that played by the German social-democracy in relation to the German revolution of 1918.

"It may be objected that inasmuch as the social-democracy has already deceived and betrayed the Italian proletariat (in 1920), it will not succeed in repeating its treachery. Illusions! Self-deception! In the course of its entire history the proletariat has been deceived many times, first by liberalism and then by social-democracy.

"Apart from everything else, it is impermissible to forget that since 1920 a decade has passed; and since the victory of fascism - 8 years. Ten and twelve-year-old boys and girls, who witnessed the fascist activities of 1920-22, comprise today the new generation of workers and peasants who will struggle most selflessly against the fascists, but who lack, however, political experience. Communists will come in contact with the masses themselves only in the course of the revolution itself, and in the best case they will require a number of months in order to expose and abolish the social-democracy, which I repeat, was not liquidate by fascism, but on the contrary conserved." (Published in September-October 1930 issue of the Bulletin of the Russian Opposition, Translated by John G. Wright).

A Phase of the Counter-Revolution

"Is it permissible to say, for instance, that the existing German (Weimar) Republic is the conquest of a bourgeois revolution? Such a characterization would be absurd. What took place in Germany in 1918-1919 was a proletarian revolution which for lack of leadership was deceived betrayed and crushed. The bourgeois counter-revolution, however, was forced to adapt itself to the situation created by the crushing of the proletarian revolution and to assume the forms of a parliamentary 'democratic' republic.

"Is something similar (within certain limits of course) excluded for Italy? No, it is not. The enthronement of fascism came as a result of the 1920 proletarian revolution which was not carried to its conclusion. The fascists can be overthrown only by a new proletarian revolution. Should this again not be carried to its conclusion (owing to the weakness of the Communist Party, the maneuvers and betrayals of the social-democrats, the Freemasons, the Catholics), then the 'transitional' state which the counter-revolutionary bourgeoisie would be compelled to create after the foundering of the fascist form of its rule could not be anything else but a parliamentary and democratic state.

"What in reality is the political aim of the anti-fascist concentration? Foreseeing the collapse of the fascist state, as a consequence of the rising of the proletariat and, generally, the oppressed popular masses, the concentration is making preparations to check this movement, to paralyze and rob it by passing off the victory of refurbished counter-revolution as the victory of the democratic bourgeois revolution.

"If one does not constantly keep in mind this dialectic of living social forces, then it is possible to become hopelessly confused and lose one's way. As I see it, there are no disagreements on this score among us.

Marxist Attitude to Democratic Slogans

"Does this mean that we, Communists, reject in advance any and all democratic slogans, and, generally, all transitional and preparatory slogans, and limit ourselves solely to the slogan of the dictatorship of the proletariat? This would be hopeless sectarian doctrinairism. We do not at all think that the proletarian dictatorship is separated from the fascist regime by a single revolutionary leap. We do not at all deny a transitional period with its transitional demands, including democratic demands. With the aid of these transitional slogans, which always open up the road for the proletarian dictatorship, the communist vanguard must conquer the entire working class to its side, while the working class as a whole must rally around it all the oppressed masses of the nation.

"I do not exclude even the slogan of a Constituent Assembly which under certain conditions can be imposed by the course of the struggle, or more correctly, by the process of the revolutionary awakening of the oppressed masses. On the broad historical scale, i. e., from a perspective of a whole number of years, the fate of Italy is undoubtedly concentrated in the alternative: fascism or communism? But to assert that this alternative has already today become the conscious attainment of the oppressed classes in the nation is obviously to indulge in wishful thinking once. Badoglio "saved the day" but the next day the masses were out in the street again, and when the officers summoned up the nerve to give the order to fire, the soldiers refused. All Badoglio could save in this situation was face, and he replaced the Milan commander with someone else.

ATTITUDE TO FASCISTS

It was plain from the very beginning that although the new government wanted to be accepted as non-fascist, Badoglio did not intend to take any strong measures against the bulk of the fascists. In fact, he contented himself with detaining a few notorious top leaders and incorporating the black-shirted militia into the regular army. The reason for the mildness of these measures is explained by the fact that Badoglio did not want to antagonize most of the fascists; he expected rather to use them as a base for his government.

But the strikes and demonstrations calling for the removal of fascists from all posts put a crimp in his plan. It took three days but finally his cabinet was forced

BADOGLIO'S RECORD

What is the past record of Marshal Pietro Badoglio, the man whom Roosevelt doesn't want criticized?

From his youth he has been a member of the Italian military caste, who threw in his lot with Victor Emmanuel and followed his orders before fascism, during the reign of fascism when the king supported Mussolini, and now after the collapse of fascism.

He served as Mussolini's ambassador to Brazil in 1924-25. He served as Mussolini's governor of Libya from 1929-34 and there used the most brutal methods to smash the resistance of the Arabs.

He accepted a membership certificate in the fascist party. He led the barbarous subjection of Ethiopia in 1935-36 and was awarded with the post of Viceroy of Ethiopia.

In 1937 he wrote a book on "The War In Abyssinia," which he "dedicated to the fascist nation" and which contained a foreword by Mussolini.

During the same year he accepted a medal from Hitler.

In a telegram on the eighteenth year of fascist rule in 1939, he told Mussolini, "I am sure that imperial Italy's fortune will always be greater under your imperial leadership."

This is the man with whom the Allied leaders are ready to play ball if only he will take Italy out of the war as Hitler's willing to have truck with them. MEANING OF "ANARCHY"

All of a sudden we are hearing chy" and their dangers. But who in Italy wants chaos and anarchy? Surely not the masses, who are revolting against the chaos of imperialist war. Surely not the advanced workers, who are raising the slogan of a Socialist Republic to put an end to the anarchy of the capitalist system. Surely not the soldiers who want peace and who refuse to obey their officers orders to shoot down the demon strating workers.

But against whom are Churchill and Roosevelt directing their remarks about the menace of anarchy if not against these workers and soldiers? If the masses of Italy were to overthrow Badoglio and the capitalist system and set up a workers' and peasants' government, the Allied leaders would not be willing to deal with such a government, even if it sued for peace, because it would be the very opposite of their concept of law and order.

WILLING TO HELP

By "preventing anarchy" Roose velt means that "the King or a Prime Minister or a Mayor" must oppose all attempts by the masses to create "anarchy"-that is, to create a government and system based on the interests of the workers and peasants. But he does not mean that they must carry on this job alone. He is quite willing and eager to lend a helping hand in preventing any such "tragedy":

"Regarding Italy, the President said at his press conference that when a victorious army went into a country there were two essentials: first, to put an end the occupying troops to handle." (N. Y. Times, July 31.)

To prevent "anarchy," the capitalists called in Mussolini and his thugs to beat down the workers and destroy their organizations. Now, when Mussolini has outlived his usefulness, the danger is great that the Allied leaders will use the troops of the "democratic armies of liberation"

when there no longer appears to PHILADELPHIA, PENNA.

a lot of talk from the Allied leaders about "chaos and anar-hy" and their densers. But a bar and the bar and the second ITALIAN REVOLUTION (Continued from page 1) questionably finish the job that they have started. They would extirpate root and branch every remnant of the criminal fascist regime. There is no question but that all the exploiters, the profiteers, the tyrants, the oppressors of the people would be decisively crushed.

We can be sure that if the Italian masses are given their choice, the revolution will go on until the capitalists, the monarchy, the church hierarchy are deposed from power and a workers' and peasants' government set up — the only kind of government which can guarantee the will of the overwhelming majority of the people, the only kind of government which can guarantee the people peace, bread and freedom.

But there's the rub. The Italian people are not being left alone. They are not being allowed to finish the job. Roosevelt and Churchill have already announced that they intend to land an army of occupation in Italy, that they intend to rule the country by military force, that they intend to prevent the people at the present time from setting up their own freely elected democratic government.

Roosevelt and Churchill are obviously preparing to make a deal with the ruling class circles under the auspices of Badoglio or some equally reactionary scoundrel, before which the Darlan deal in North Africa will pale into insignificance. Roosevelt and Churchill do not come to Italy as friends of the Italian revolution. As representatives of capitalism they can come only as its foes.

Eisenhower assures the Italian people that Allied occupation will be a wonderful thing. It will be, he says in his proclamation, 'beneficent' and 'mild.' We have already seen how this 'beneficent' occupation authority ordered the fascist administrators to remain at their posts and continue their duties in Sicily. The Italian workers are demonstrating in action that they and not Roosevelt or Churchill are the real fighters against fascism.

The American workers are watching with intense interest and obvious sympathy and enthusiasm the struggle of the Italian people for their liberation. They do not want American troops to interfere with this struggle. The American people do not want to be conquerors or tyrants. They do not want to prop up a Badoglio or similar reactionary government. They do not want to take over Hitler's hangman work in Europe. They must make their voices heard right now against the Washington-Wall Street conspiracy against the Italian people. The cry must become loud and overpowering: HANDS OFF THE ITALIAN REVOLUTION!

THE MILITANT

The Beginning Of The Italian Revolution indicate the speed with which things headquarters, newspaper offices and homes; tury - that there is no substitute for the

The following is the text of a speech delivered by George Breitman, editor of The Militant, at a meeting held on Thursday, July 29, by the Central Branch, Local New York, Socialist Workers Party.

Like Churchill, we have the right to complain that there is much going on in Italy #Italian fascism has survived through inertia about which we have not been informed. Like Churchill too, however, we already have a general picture of what is transpiring in Italy. Unlike Churchill - and Roosevelt and the Ita'ian ruling class and Hitler --for whom the news is a source of fear and worry, the accounts of what is taking place are the source of much rejoicing for us, as they are for the masses of Italy and all Europe. For what we have seen in the last four days is the beginning of the Italian revolution.

What we have had demonstrated to us in this short period is the utter bankruptcy of Italian fascism. This system, which was supposed to last 1000 years - it never even had the chance to reach the voting age of 21. This system, which was going to organize a society in which the class struggle would be abolished, was itself abolished by the operation of the class struggle. This system, which was going to conquer the world, failed to conquer its own workers and neasants and soldiers and fell like rotten fruit at the first military crisis on its own soil.

Fascism turned out not only exhausted and bankrupt, but bereft of all powers of resistance. When the end came, this system did not even have the capacity for self-preservation. It collapsed like a busted accordion. That old blackshirt magic is gone. It is time for Burnham to write a new book about the nature of the future society ...

Here, comrades, we see reflected the decay of capitalism on a world scale. The same process is occurring in Germany, at a different tempo.

For some time now, it is apparent to all, alone. From this we can estimate how terrible is the crime of the Stalinist leaders of the Soviet Union who have refused to issue a revolutionary summons to the workers of Europe. What a different situation would obtain in Europe if there had been a Marxist leadership in the Soviet Union able and willing to arouse the masses in the Axis countries to revolt by offering them the aid and collaboration of the Soviet people. If that had been done, today we could be celebrating the victories of a Soviet Italy rather than the fall of fascism. And here also we have the proof that our analysis of the character of fascism is fully correct. Fascism was and is the instrument of the capitalists. The capitalists were the masters all the time, not the fascists as some people tried to tell us. When they no longer had use for the fascist system which had served them so long, the capitalists cast it aside. This doesn't mean that they won't turn to it again. What a devastating answer the events of the last few days give to the liberals and reformists of all stripe who whine that the way to fight fascism is by supporting the democratic capitalists! The precise manner in which the Mussolini regime fell is not fully known to us as yet, but that question is of episodic importance anyhow. The N. Y. Sun, in an editorial discussing the report that Mussolini fell over the issue of how best to defend Italy, correctly says: "It is obvious that Mussolini could not have fallen on this issue alone. The mine had already been prepared, the fuse laid. All that was needed was a spark and an explosion had to follow." What was the spark?

THE BADOGLIO GOVERNMENT

Mussolini knew the soldiers did not want to fight for fascism. He also had had a good opportunity to feel the temper of the working masses. We have read much about the demonstrations after Mussolini's removal, but now it begins to appear that there were a considerable number before as well. The Stalinists suddenly report that in March of this year 300,000 workers in the important cities, Milan and Turin, demonstrated on the streets. One account of the last meeting of the fascist leaders is that in his final speech to them "Mussolini admitted that general strikes had broken out in the large Italian cities." Before long, we can be sure, we will hear many verifications of this.

There is much we don't know about the situation, but the fascists knew enough to see that the ship was sinking: like rats they departed from it while it was still possible for them to do so. Fascism collapsed because it was used up and it knew it, even if the Burnhams didn't.

low the Mussolini regime has been re cessation of hostilities, although prohibiting the creation of political parties at present. This represents a recognition by the Badoglio government of the revolutionary moods of the masses and is a maneuver designed to check them by appearing to grant what they want. There is little chance that the promise to hold elections will ever be fulfilled by Badog io, if for no other reason because he won't be around four months after the cessation of hostilities.

How broad is the arena in which the ruling class of Italy can maneuver in the present crisis? No broader, I believe, than the outlook of most members of the U.S. Congress. Their strongest card - the dumping of Mussolini - has already been played, and if anything it has served to aggravate the situation and speed up the developments. The fascist party is gone, and the ruling class has very little to lean on in its hour of need. The rulers have no base in the country outside of their internal class resources and the army, which is demorThe Militant's description of the demonstrations is out of date.

off scot free and they like even less to see Badoglio's men protecting the fascists and shooting at the workers.

Mass attacks on fascists, in which shots are fired on both sides; burning of fascist fascists in Italy."

WHAT THE WORKERS WANT

The press reports that the masses are breaking into the homes of the fascists and them and guide them in their comingtaking away the great quantities of food stored there. Yes, these workers who were brought up to be slaves, march right into. the homes of the men who were their rulers a few hours ago. Is that how slaves behave? Or is that the behavior of men who feel that they are the real masters in the country? On Monday workers in the factories of Milan threatened to leave the factories if the fascists were not removed from all posts. Tuesday, according to the press, "all workers were reported to have left their jobs." What is that but a political strike? And what is the newly reported railroad strike crippling all of northern Italy but a political strike? Apparently the workers have not forgotten how to use the weapons at their disposal, the weapons which they used so well in the period after World War I. And when strikes are here, can the reconstitution of factory committees be far behind? Less than 24 hours after Mussolini's ouster, demonstrators in Milan asked an editor to demand through his paper the release of all political prisoners. But they didn't even wait to see if he would do it. They began storming the jails at once and although some were killed in the fight, they forced the police to release many prisoners. Another story tel's of the prisoners themselves burning down part of their jail. The reports are full of stories of escaped political prisoners directing the activities of the demonstrators. The demand is so great that Badoglio must give way to it at least for the present. Why do the workers seek the release of these prisoners? It is not only because they want to see injustice abolished, but because they realize as Leon Trotsky said on many occasions that the leaders of tomorrow are sitting' in the jails and concentration camps of today. The Italian work-

FEARS OF ALLIED LEADERS

Twenty long bitter hard years. But the Italian masses have not forgotten their glorious traditions. Today they are directing all their efforts to the complete extirpation of fascism, but in and during the process they will necessarily come into greater and greater conflict with all those who in the past supported the fascist system and who hold the power now - the capitalists, the landowners, the monarchy, the clerical hierarchy and the militay leaders. Today the Italian revolution is still in its first stage but it will inevitably extend to a social revolution at a future stage when the masses try to solve their economic problems which are rapidly becoming aggravated. This is already confirmed by Paul Ghali, Chicago Daily News correspondent in Berne, who wrote on July 28: "Most of the demonstrators have cheered the King and Premier Badoglio. But the impression is growing that the workers are trying to get the upper hand in a movement openly demanding peace, with the whole Italian people supporting the demand.

Think of workers hunting The masses are growing angrier. They down and taking care of strikebreakers don't like to see the fascist criminals let after a long strike and then multiply that by a thousand and you begin to get a rough idea of the situation which can be summed up as follows: "It's the open season on .

> ers want their leaders back - to advise struggles.

> The names of streets and squares are being renamed. The Rome radio continues to insist that King Victor Emmanuel's name is cheered. But in Milan the Corso Vittorio Emmanuel has been renamed Corso Matteotti after the socialist martyr. A square has been renamed Piazza Giovanni Amendola after another socialist victim of Mussolini. Let it be noted that no streets have been renamed after Badoglio... Nor even after Roosevelt.

> Red flags are flying in Milan, Turin, Bologna, and other cities, according to travellers returning to Switzerland. In Como demonstrators covered a statue of Garibaldi with a red flag. Police intervened, substituting the national flag. But we can be sure that the workers will be able to find other red flags

"Peace! Peace! An end to the war!" That is the popular cry from one end of Italy to the other. Above all the masses are revolting against the imperialist war. They want no part of it - whether it is led by a Mussolini or a Badoglio or anyone else. No one has heard a single report of a demonstration on behalf of continuing the war. Well-fed and round-bellied professors and politicians who fled from Mussolini to America are proclaiming that they will be satisfied with nothing less than the adherence of Italy to the United Nations and their war. But no one has heard of any workers in Italy raising such a demand.

What more evidence could we want to show that the masses of Italy are revolting against the imperialist war and that they want to settle accounts with the system responsible for the war and their suffer-formative condition for the rescuing powers of Britain and the United States so to act as to break down the whole structure and expression of the Italian state. We ceralready a number of Italian Trotskvists tainly do not wish to reduce Italian life to not a large number, it is true, but comrades a condition of chaos and anarchy, and find who have stood firm all these years in their ourselves without any authority with whom adherence to the principles of Bolshevism, to deal..." who are tried and tested leaders. A number

Aryone who remembers Churchill's efof these comrades are in a country close forts to destroy the young Soviet Republic to Italy — and some may still be in the and his writings on the early history of the Russian revolution knows what he means when he speaks of "chaos and anarchy." It is the specter of revolution haunting him. Roosevelt showed his agreement with the line of Churchill's speech when he denounced the OWI's early attacks on Badoglio and the monarchy. Eisenhower showed what the Allied line was when he gave credit for the removal of Mussolini to the House of Savoy which summoned Mussolini to power 20 years ago and supported him fully as long as he was of any use to the ruling class. And then there was the July 29 radio address of Roosevelt, which was the speech of a man trying to pretend nothing has happened. Roosevelt spoke at length about how the Allied leaders were going to punish Mussolini and his gang, but said nothing against Badoglio and Victor Emmanuel. I think the Italian masses are showing a splendid capacity to take care of the fascists themselves. Eventually, said Roosevelt, the Italian people will have democracy. But they seem to be intent on getting it now, not eventually The people listened to Roosevelt to hear the answer to the questions on Italy. Instead he threw them an extra pound of coffee and promised mustering out pay for the soldiers... Churchill and Roosevelt are aware that what is involved is not only Italy, but all of Europe and the very outcome of the war. They are taken aback by the suddenness with which Italian fascism collapsed. Perhaps, they think, German fascism may do the same thing any day and give way to a revolutionary government before the Allied armies are anywhere near Germany. This is the stuff of which nightmares are bred in Washington and London. Unquestionably their fears are well founded. The fa'l of Mussolini has given new hope and inspiration to millions in occupied Europe. Heads are being lifted again and the thought is forming: "If it was so easily accomplished with Mussolini, why can't it be done in the same way with Hitler and Laval and Franco?" The underground groups must also have taken on new courage. Doubts will enter the minds of even the staunchest fascists, and these doubts will later bring on paralysis and fear. Even Franco, who has the support of the Pope and who has kept out of the war, is reported by a London dispatch on July 28 to be taking precautions against possible opposition to his dictatorship. And Hitler knows in his own heart he hasn't far to go.

Things are moving faster than Roosevelt and Churchill expected and not at all in the direction they intend. What they want is some non-revolutionary setup which could be propped up by AMGOT as in Sicily. What kind of victory for the "democratic" capitalists will it be if the fascists countries go socialist and unite with the masses of the USSR to create a socialist United States of Europe? No wonder the stock market took a nosedive early this week when Wall Street heard the "terrible" news about Mussolini . . .

The greatest obstacle facing the Italian workers is the absence of a revolutionary Marxist party. A revolutionary party cannot of course, create a revolutionary situation artificially. But a revolutionary situation cannot result in a successful socialist revolution without the existence and leadership of such a party. That is the greatest lesson we've learned in the last quarter of a cen-

MARXIST PARTY NEEDED

Yes, there are plenty of groups pushing themselves forward, making a bid to assume leadership of the masses so that they can better serve the interests of the ruling class. If these groups have their way, they can make very difficult the creation of the revolutionary party. But so far none of these groups has any significant following. Even more important, none of them has a program that will exert much attraction toward the masses in even their present mood.

Five of them, the Action, Liberal Reconstruction, Christian Democratic, Communist and Socialist Parties, are presenting a common front in an effort to become the center of influence. What a miserable coalition they are is demonstrated by the manifesto they issued in Turin, which after 20 years of fascism had only the slogan of "liberty" to offer the masses. And it was shown again the following day when the Milan representatives of these parties issued a statement praising "the army" - which can only be an indication of willingness to support even Badoglio.

If the masses remember their socialist traditions, we can be sure their advanced elements will recognize the organizations. and methods and successors of the groups that betrayed them after the last war. One of these parties is called socialist - but what resemblance is there between this organization and the escaped political prisoners who are also called socialist. who are leading the masses in militant struggle today and from whom without question the > depend on the world working class. The Italian events won't occur within a hermetically sealed Italy, Revolt in Italy will be accompanied - and already we see signs of it - by even greater explosions in occupied Europe and above all in Germany. In the Allied countries too there will be great sympathy and support for the Italian revolution. In America and Britain there is a stronger and better organized working class than in 1917. The growth of the CIO here and the recently announced reconstitution on a national scale of the revolutionary shop steward system in Britain are signs of that. These workers will not take kindly to acts of hostility against the Italian people who are, as they can plainly see, truly fighting for democracy. The strugg'e of the Italian masses is a struggle on behalf of the interests of the workers of the whole world. We can assist them by raising our voices against, and by vigorously resisting, any and all plans hatched in Washington and London to strangle the Italian revolt. In the final analysis the only way to guarantee that there will be no counter-revolutionary intervention such as was directed against the Soviet Union in its early years, is by intensifying our efforts to establish a Workers' and Farmers' Government here. Such a government alone would be interested in extending a helping hand to the Italian revolution .-This means building and strengthening the Socialist Workers Party. We are and must be mindful of the fact that the Italian revolution is still in its first stage and that it is too early to predict the tempo or exact course of events. But that is no reason for closing our eyes to the trend developing. First the heroic resistance of the Soviet masses. Then India, Now Italy. Truly, as Comrade Trotsky told us at the beginning of the war almost four years ago, we have the right of revolutionary optimism. The future belongs to the Socialist United States of the World.

this party will have to be forced in the heat of the struggle against the class enemy. The difficulties of this will be appreciated when we remember that this was attempted in and after World War I and attempted without success. The mere fact that it is difficult doesn't mean that it can't be done. There are positive as well as negative factors to be considered in this respect too. In the first place the Italian working class starts out minus a few of the handicaps that have in the past acted as a drag revolutionary party. In Italy unfortunately on the revolution. If the working class doesn't have a party, neither does the capitalist class. And while the capitalist class strives desperately to create a party and a political base for itself, the working class is being given time to do the same. And time is precious in revolutionary periods because then everything is telescoped.

talk is coming about a Socialist Republic (not a democratic capitalist republic)?

All of these five parties are devoted to the liberal capitalist system. And because the Communist Party is involved it is certain that they are all pro-Allied in their sympathies. Pro-Allied parties, I firmly believe, will be quickly discredited - as soon as the Allies appear on the Italian mainland with their AMGOT or even earlier. when the Italian people learn the meaning of the AMGOT policy.

Looking at the events of the past four days, we already see the raw material for the party. We must not make the mistake of looking at the question only from a national viewpoint. The revolutionary party is a world party and the workers already have a world party in the Fourth International. We can be confident that the Italian vanguard will be driven in the direction of the Fourth International by events themselves and by the logic of the struggle. No other organization has the program, no other organization has the same spotless record and proud tradition. Events themselves will educate the masses as to the true character of the aforementioned five parties. The great masses will perhaps hear of Trotskyism for the first time when the Stalinists, Social Democrats and others start explaining to them why they cannot have a Socialist Republic now. The question is not whether the vanguard will find its way to Trotskyism - but rather whether it will find it in time.

placed by the Badoglio government in a desperate attempt by Italy's ruling class to tide over the crisis and save its power. Badoglio himself admits that it is a transitory government, but he doesn't realize just how transitory it really will be. Like the Musselini regime, it is based on dictatorial power. It is compromised from the outset by its utterly reactionary composition. Every last member of the cabinet supported or served Mussolini in one capacity or another. It cannot serve the interests of the ruling class or secure the allegiance of the masses any better than Mussolini could.

A late report informs us that the Badoglio government promises to free all political prisoners and to hold an election to the Chamber of Deputies four months after the alized, divided itself and looking on for the most part to see what the masses will do.

That lack of support explains why the only important act of the Badoglio, government so far has been to proc'aim martial law - and it explains also why it has been unable to enforce its martial law in most cases. Seldom in the history of capitalism has the ruling class of any country been in such a disadvantageous position. The Russian capitalists had the Mensheviks and SR's to fall back on when Czarism collapsed, and the German capitalists unfortunately had the services of the Social Democrats when the Kaiser was overthrown. But the Italian capitalists as yet have no counterpart of these treacherous organizations with any sizeable influence or following.

THE MASSES IN ACTION

The only real reserve of the Italian capitalists is world capitalism, which itself is divided by the imperialist war. On the one side is Hitler, who certainly has his hands full on the eastern front to say nothing of at home, and on the other side are the leaders of the democracies who also must reckon with their own masses in any moves which brazenly conflict with their claims that they are fighting a war for democracy and against fascism. Before long the capitalists may be wishing that they cou'd take a powder the way Mussolini did. Comrades, we are witnessing in Italy even though from afar and with little of the facts at our disposal - an experience in many respects without precedent in capitalist history. Consider what the Italian masses have undergone in the last 29 years: Four years of the first war, which bled Italy white. Two years of revolutionary explosion crushed only with the aid of the treachery and cowardice of the Socialist Party and because of the immaturity of the Communist Party. Two years of counterrevolutionary blows and attrition. And then almost 21 under fascism, the last three of which were spent in war again.

What are the workers like after such an experience? What have they learned from the concentration camps and the rule of naked reaction? Have they forgotten how to fight for their own interests? Has it cowed them? Permanently broken their spirit? Destroyed their self confidence and militancy? Made them forget the existence of the class struggle? Obliterated the lessons of the past? Convinced them ' that they can rely only on the democratic capitalists for their liberation? Up to now no one outside of Italy could answer these questions with any precision or certainty. But already after a few days we can see most of the answers.

First of all, let us note the rapidity with which the masses have been moving in the past four days. The Allies were still fighting for Sicily when fascism collapsed. The masses, and particularly the industrial workers of northern Italy, nearest to the German border, did not sit back and wait for the Allies to conquer Italy before they took their first steps. On the contrary, they moved into action on their own at once.

Badoglio's first (and perhaps last) major act was to declare martial law. "Demonstrations will not be tolerated," he said. "Assemblies are prohibited and public forces have been ordered to disperse them ruthlessly." But the butcher of Ethiopia was spitting into the wind so far as the masses were concerned. Demonstrations began almost at once in the industrial cities and with each passing day they have become larger and more militant and extended to new areas. An article in the latest Militant says: "The early demonstrations were for the most part peaceful and spontaneous, some of the slogans raised were confused, and the general feeling was exultation and relief. This is how all popular revolutions begin." The article went on of course to

"Some workers also are calling for a Socialist Republic, but these do not have full popular backing.

"A factor playing into the hands of Leftist groups is the deteriorating economic situation "

Today the masses expropriate the fascists of food." Will they hesitate on a future day to try to extend this step and expropriate the supporters of the fascists - the capitalists and landowners -- of the factories and the land? We must consider this question objectively, but we know that it is giving Churchill and Roosevelt many a sleepless hour.

Churchill's speech on July 27 made abundantly clear what worries the Allied leaders. He repeated the demand for unconditional surrender but added some remarks which show that he is seriously considering the advisability of coming to some deal with the reactionary Badoglio-Victor Emmanuel regime. He did not criticize Badoglio or the king in any way. He did not even suggest that they would have to apply the principles of the "four freedoms" to Italy before he would deal with them. On the contrary, he made it clear he was quite willing to come to a deal with them when he said:

"We do not know what is happening in Italy, and now that Mussolini has gone and the fascist power has certainly been irretrievably broken, we would be foolish to deprive ourselves of any means of coming to general conclusion with the Italian nation." Churchill is an old hand at fighting revolutions and he knows one when he sees it: "Past experience," he warned, "shows that in cases of great change of heart and character in government of a nation very often one stage is rapidly succeeded by another." And he added:

"It would be a grave mistake when Italian affairs are in this flexible, fluid and Italian prisons if they have not already been released this week. We can be confident that the comrades outside of Italy will be able to find the means to return there at the earliest possible moment just as Lenin and Trotsky found their way back to Russia in 1917 in spite of similar difficulties. And that, once they are there, they will find a way to influence and unite with the revolutionary socialist ex-prisoners and workers in the creation of an Italian section of the Fourth International.

Let us also bear in mind that the heroic struggles of the Soviet Union cannot but have driven home to many militants in the Axis as well as the Allied countries the lessons of the October Revolution. The Italian workers don't have to be told what the Russian masses did - they know, they remember, in fact they tried to follow their example more than 20 years ago. They'll soon see the difference between Stalinism and the October Revolution. I don't want to underestimate the menace of Stalinism, which is more than ready to repeat the role it played in Spain, but I don't think the Stalinist will get the same chance to repeat it. Stalin has dissolved the Communist International and said there is no longer any need for a revolutionary international. But the masses haven't forgotten either the tune or the words of The Internationale, and we can assume they haven't forgotten the meaning of it either. They above all will see the need for internationalism when world imperialism attempts to interfere with their own settlement of their problems.

Just as the Italian capitalists depend on world capitalism, so the Italian workers

The failure of the UAW to take such action rests not with the rank and file but with the leader ship. This is proved to the hilt by the explanation which UAW President R. J. Thomas gave at a meeting of UAW educational directors in the Detroit area, held on July 11. Thomas declared that he had received many calls on the day of the pogrom urging that he call out the flying squadrons in defense of the Negroes in the af fected areas.

He was opposed to this, said Thomas, not because it could not have accomplished the defense, but because the taking of the law in the hands of the flying squadrons would have been term ed a "union revolution."

Surely one fact has penetrated even Thomas' skull. Whenever workers organize and act to de fend their rights against the abuses of employers, the whole weight of public opinion, which is a fancy name for capitalist opinion, is arrayed against them. Has Thomas forgotten the sit down strikes of 1937, which were also denounced by the whole capi-

By Leon Trotsky

The class antagonisms which brought about tialy, it signifies the impotent longing for the victory^{*} of fascism, continuing their work under fascism, too, are gradually undermining it. The masses are more dissatisfied than ever. Hundreds and thousands of self-sacrificing workers, in spite of everything, continue to carry on revolutionary mole-work. A new generation, which has not directly experienced the shattering of old traditions and high hopes, has come to the fore. Irresistibly, the molecular preparation for the proletarian revolution proceeds beneath the heavy totalitarian tombstone. But for concealed energy to flare into open revolt, it is necessary that the vanguard of the proletariat find new perspectives, a new program and a new unblemished banner. Herein lies the chief handicap. It is extremely difficult for workers in fascist countries to make a choice of a new program. A program is verified by experience. And it is precisely experience in mass movements which is lacking in countries of totalitarian despotism. It is very likely that a genuine proletarian success in one of the "democratic" countries will be necessary to give impetus to the revolutionary movement on fascist territory. A similar effect is possible by means of a financial or military catastrophe. At present, it is imperative that primarily propagandistic, preparatory work be carried on which will yield large scale results only in the future. One thing can be stated with conviction even at this point: once it breaks through, the revolutionary wave in fascist countries will immediately take on a grandiose sweep and under no circumstances will stop short at the experiment of resuscitating some sort of Weimar corpse.

It is from this point onward that an uncompromising divergence begins between the Fourth International and the old parties, which outlive their bankruptcy. The emigre "People's Front" is the most malignant and perfidious variety of all possible People's Fronts. Essen-coalition with a non-existent liberal bourgeoisie. Had it met with success, it would simply have prepared a series of new defeats of the Spanish type for the proletariat. A merciless exposure of the theory and practice of the "People's Front" is therefore the first condition for a revolutionary struggle against fascism.

Of course, this does not mean that the Fourth International rejects democratic slogans as a means of mobilizing the masses against fascism. On the contrary, such slogans at certain moments can play a serious role. But the formulas of democracy (freedom of press, the right to unionize, etc.) mean for us only incidental or episodic slogans in the independent movement of the proletariat and not a democratic noose fastened to the neck of the proletariat by the bourgeoisie's agents (Spain!). As soon as the movement assumes something of a mass character, the democratic slogans will be intertwined with the transitional one; factory committees, it may be supposed, will appear before the old routinists rush from their chancellories to organize trade unions; soviets will cover Germany before a new Constitutional Assembly will gather in Weimar. The same will be true of Italy and the rest of the totalitarian and semi-totalitarian countries.

Fascism plunged these countries into political barbarism. But it did not change their social structure. Fascism is a tool in the hands of finance capital and not of feudal landowners. A revolutionary program should base itself on the dialectics of the class struggle, obligatory also to fascist countries, and not on the psychology of terrified bankrupts...

Germans from Italy. An Italian government accentable to the capitalist democracies is one that will continue the war on their side. Even with the powerful inducement which the Allies have in the form of food, it is doubtful that the Italian masses will willingly accept a government continuing the war as an instrument of the capitalist democracies. If the Allies cannot get a government to involve Italy in the war on their side, they will occupy it and establish military control or, at best, they will be satisfied with a government that will permit it to use Italy as a base of operations, in the same way that Hitler is satisfied with the Vichy government. In either case Italy will be ruled by the Allies.

to Hitler's downfall. The effect on the German masses of a socialist government in Italy would be incalculable, and might well be the spark setting fire to German fascism. The German masses will be shown a way out other than through submission to British and American capitalism.

It will be said that the Allies now pounding on Italy's door will not permit a Soviet Italy. Quite true. But in this case also the Italian masses will not only offer resistance to British and American capitalism; they will appeal to the British and American workers to ston their governments from interfering with a socialist regime in Italy. No one underestimates the difficulties which the Italian masses must face in any attempt to take power. The Stalinists and reformists will utilize these difficulties to persuade the masses to go over to the camp of British and American capitalism. The revolutionary workers of Italy will call upon the masses to exert greater efforts to overcome the difficulties. And SIX -

The Real Defense Of The Soviet Union

The Italian workers, by refusing to support the imperialist war and by continuing the class struggle, have taken giant strides on the road of their own emancipation and have at the same time struck a mighty blow in defense of the Soviet

It is clear that the USSR has benefitted the most from the breach in the Axis, Consider, for example, the single fact that the Kremlin has been literally crawling on its knees for more than two years begging in vain for the "second front." A genuine second front has now been opened up in Hitler's rear by the insurgent masses of Italy. With a correct revolutionary leadership it could spread and engulf the Hitler regime more swiftly than the advance of any armies.

We Trotskyists have maintained from the beginning that only this revolutionary front can really safeguard the USSR and lead to victory.

The Kremlin has done exactly nothing to speed up revolutionary developments in Italy. It has not even proclaimed a wretched program for a capitalist "Free Italy" as was done in the case of Germany a few days ago. Instead, the Kremlin has thus far announced only that it is in accord with the "program" enunciated by London and Washington which offers the Italian people military occupation and military rule by the AMGOT, whose purpose is not to spur revolutionary developments in Hitler's rear but on the contrary to attempt to smother

Just as the USSR profits the most from what has happened in Italy and the further spread and development of the revolution there, so it will in the final analysis suffer the heaviest blows from any retardation of the mass movement of liberation both in Italy and elsewhere.

The Italian events, still in their formative stage, have already thrown into glaring relief the treachery and bankruptcy of those misleaders of labor, in particular Stalin and his agents, who have sought to focus the attention of the workers solely upon developments on the military arena. The very first open explosions of the class struggle in Italy have pushed political and social problems to the foreground. They have brought with them verification that the Trotskyist policy for the defense of the USSR is the only correct and realistic policy.

The liberal press is full of admonitions that the fall of the Mussolini government does not yet mean the end of fascism because fascism has deep roots among the people and can be destroyed only over a long period of time, etc.

Here, as in all other questions, the liberals and social-democrats are unable to think a single thing through to the end. All they can do is to contribute confusion. Fascism, when it came to power in Italy and in Germany, was a mass movement. It succeeded in building a mass movement because the working class parties were bankrupt. The fascists were able to win over great numbers of people from the ranks of the middle class, the unemployed youth and even the most demoralized sections of the working class by demagogically advancing an "anti-capitalist" program. The fascists promised to usher in a national revolution in the interests of the common people. Once in power, fascism crushed the labor movement, destroyed the unions and political organizations. It junked its "anti-capitalist" program. It ruled society by means of repression and terror. It ruled, not in the interests of the common people, not even in the interests of its mass of middle class followers, but solely in the interests of the bankers. the giant industrialists, and landowners who had originally financed it, supported it, and placed it in power. Fascism lost its support and disillusioned its followers with every passing day of its rule. The people began deserting its banner. After twenty years, Italian fascism lost every vestige of support among the broad masses of the population. Fascism turned into nothing more than a form of military-police dictatorship ruling by naked force alone. Its only remaining support came from the bankers, the industrialists, the landowners, the exploiters. Has fascism then been destroyed in Italy? Of course! In the last years, only the husk of fascism remained. With the fall of Mussolini, and the revolutionary outbursts on the part of the Italian workers, the husk itself has been removed. In the scientific sense of the word, the Badoglio government is obviously not a fascist regime, but a police dictatorship. The liberals however contribute nothing but confusion on this question, as on all others. These liberals are experts in spreading confusion. Before fascism came into power, the liberals of all countries were busy proclaiming: It can't happen here! After fascism came into power they muddled up the waters over the nature of fascism and how to fight it. Now this same crew - who until recently were lecturing us that fascism was a new society similar to the Soviet state - is at it again. The muddle-headed liberals are the last people in the world from whom the American working class can learn anything about how to fight fascism in the United States or abroad.

Davies Convicts Himself As Frameup Artist

Since the release of the whitewash film, "Mission To Moscow," many people and publications have exposed and denounced its falsifications.

Now, in an article published in the August 1 N. Y. Times, ex-Ambassador Davies reveals himself publicly as a liar, a perjurer and a frame-up artist. In the Davies-Warner Brothers movie production Trotsky is portrayed as a Nazi and Japanese agent, a wrecker, saboteur, a traitor and enemy of the Soviet Union. Davies completely whitewashes the infamous Moscow Trials which was based upon these lies.

In his Times article Davies gives a more accurate and drastically different account of Trotskyism. He writes that under Lenin the Comintern was created and "confirmed the Trotsky program of world revolution, and Soviet aid to class war outside of Russia, as necessary to successfully maintain a Communist state in a single country (the Soviet Union)." He goes on to say that, after Lenin's death and Stalin's victory over Trotsky, the Comintern changed its original policies which Trotsky continued to advocate in exile.

In "Mission To Moscow" Davies helped portray Trotsky as a betraver of the Soviet Union who has gone over to fascism. In the Times article he admits that Trotsky remained faithful to Lenin's program of world revolution while Stalin betrayed it. Out of his own mouth Davies convicts himself as a liar. In his film Davies whitewashed Stalin's crimes against the working class in the Moscow Trials as a diplomatic favor. In his explanation of Stalin's dissolution of the Comintern he is trying to cement the Roosevelt-Stalin alliance. Whether he lies or tells a few truths, this gentleman pursues the aim of convincing his fellow-capitalists that Stalin has abandoned Bolshevism and is a reliable ally of the capitalist counter-revolution against the insurgent masses of Italy, Germany and the rest of the world.

In his July 28 radio address Roosevelt made glowing promises to the people and to the soldiers about his post-war plans. He also announced the end of rationing on coffee. "Your government is drawing up other serious, constructive plans for certain immediate forward moves," he said.

Three days later the President concretized some of these plans. He demanded a "truly stiff program of additional taxes, savings, or both." He reported that Congressional war-appropriations for 1944 since January totalled $99,533,000,000. "The largest single item of expenditure for other than direct war purposes," the President advised, "is interest on the public debt." Next June, the public debt will exceed 200 billion. The annual interest on the debt will be approximately 4 billion. This sum of money is larger than the cost of the entire federal government in 1933.

Senator George, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, warned that further drastic income taxes "would be overwhelming for those taxpayers with low or moderate fixed incomes." George is worried about the ruinous consequences of "truly stiff" taxes upon the middle-classes. He is afraid lest the pauperized middle-classes become disillusioned with capitalism and make common cause with the being ground down to starvation levels. Frozen wages are being further slashed by skyrocketing prices and heavier taxes. Roosevelt has not rolled back prices. Now he proposes to roll up taxes. Fake promises of postwar security can't hide these grim realities from the workers. They face ever-lower standards of living unless they can successfully challenge Roosevelt's wage-freezing program. That is why the most advanced sections of organized labor are demanding a rising scale of wages to meet the rising cost of living and the increased taxes.

Harlem--A Protest Against Jim Crow

"This is not another Detroit! This is not a 'race riot.'" Thus Mayor LaGuardia, the liberals, Stalinists and "respectable" Negro leaders hastened to assure the world that the August 1-2 outbreak in Harlem, deplorable as it was, could have been much worse.

It is true that there were marked differences between the events in Harlem this week and the tragedy in Detroit last June. In Detroit organized bands of hoodlums and advocates of "white supremacy" intervened in a minor clash to aggravate the situation and terrorize the whole Negro population; such bands were absent from the Harlem outbreak. In Harlem a large section of the Negro people gave a demonstration of their dissatisfaction with the conditions under which they live; the only whites to molest the Negroes were the police, with the result that whites were able to walk freely through the streets at the height of the demonstration, and the affair never took on a Negroversus-white complexion.

Nevertheless, the underlying cause of the Harlem events was the same as the underlying cause of the Detroit events - the maintenance of the lim Crow system, which assumes the most oppressive form in times of social crisis such as we are now passing through.

The capitalist, Stalinist and liberal press congratulates LaGuardia on restoring "order" and on handling the situation so that greater harm did not result. But what now? Does anyone seriously believe that this has solved the situation? The underlying causes of the outbreak remains; the authorities have not proposed and will not propose any measures to eliminate these causes. This week Jim Crowism took five lives and inflicted injuries on hundreds. What is to prevent it from taking a toll ten times greater next week? What is to prevent it from developing into the form and on the scope of the Detroit anti-Negro terror?

The Militant does not denounce the masses of Harlem who felt constrained in their desperation to demonstrate against Jim Crow in the manner which they did. We recognize it to be an expression of their discontent, of their desire to conduct a militant struggle against their Jim Crow conditions. We understand that it happened the way it did because they are lacking the program and leadership able to direct their struggle into fruitful channels and against the real enemy - the capitalist system which promotes and upholds Jim Crow. Until the Negro people forge a program and

Leon Trotsky appraised this companion volume to his "In Defense of Marxism" as follows:

"It is the writing of a genuine workers' leader. If the discussion had not produced more than this document, it would be justified."

N. J. Labor Fakers Flout Rank and File Decision

The leaders of both major wings of the Democratic Party in New Jersey - Boss Frank Hague and Governor Charles Edison - have rallied around Vincent J. Murphy, secretary of the State Federation of labor and Mayor of Newark, as the Democratic candidate for the 1943 gubernatorial election. Supporting Murphy in addition are the Stalinists and the trade union bureaucrats.

No one is surprised by the fact that Hague and Edison have subordinated their squabbles and in effect kissed and made up, nor that the strikebreaking Stalinists continue to uphold company unionism in politics. But many workers in New Jersey will be angered by the brazenness with which their union leaders have flouted the wishes of their organizations.

Less than three months ago the delegates of the American Labor League met in Trenton and let it be known in no uncertain terms that they were fed up with their leaders' stalling on the formation of an independent labor party. They took such a determined stand on the issue that the leaders were forced to appoint a committee to conduct a labor party organizing campaign. Now, without even consulting their members, these leaders have committed themselves to support of Hague's candidaté.

This bureaucratic procedure strengthens the Democratic Party and weakens the movement for a labor party. But it will not destroy the growing sentiment for independent political action. The advanced workers don't want a labor front for Hague; they showed by remaining away from the polls last year that they don't want any part of the Democratic Party, even when it is supported by the labor fakers. They want a party of their own, and they will be satisfied with nothing less.

Labor party sentiment in New Jersey is so strong that even Hague and Edison are forced to endorse a so-called labor representative. This at the same time provides a gauge to the treachery of the Stalinists and the labor fakers.
