New Robber Deals Mark Secret Moscow Meeting

The Moscow Conference of three foreign ministers has been hailed by the capitalist press as a big step toward peace. Actually nothing fundamental has been changed by the horse trades there. The basic antagonism between the Soviet Union and Anglo-American imperialism remains as profound as ever. Whereas last week witnessed several picket-line skirmishes at injunction, this week the Buick local went through the same process

At a specially called strike strategy meeting of the Buick local it was decided to allow salaried help to enter the plants providing they applied for permits at the union headquarters. After scores of supervisors were denied admittance because of their refusal to obtain passes from the union, terrific pressure was brought to bear on the Buick strike committee by the regional UAW office.

When the Board members at the December 28 session, in opposition to GM's ultimatum, reiterated its intention to consider profits and prices in connection with the wage issue, AC before GM applied for the Walter Gordon Merritt, GM sttorney, announced: "Our chairs will be vacant."

But the next and final session of the Board, on Saturday, December 29, revealed that GM's chairs were "vacant" only in the direct and formal sense.

In the absence of the paid GM spokesmen, the members of the Fact-Finding Board themselves proceeded to act as attorneys for the multi-billion dollar corporation which only the day before had thumbed its nose at the Board.

Detroit SWP Organizer Warns CIO Auto Workers Against Treacherous "Fines For Strikers" Scheme RADE UNION By Bill Morgan

(The following is the text of the address deliv-ered over Detroit radio station WJLB on Sunday, has no difficulty in disciplining those few in-December 23, by Arthur Burch, organizer of the dividuals who jump the traces and violate the Detroit Branch of the Socialist Workers Party.

By Arthur Burch

The fifth week of the battle between the giants, the powerful CIO United Automobile Workers and the General Motors Corporation, finds the union leaders in full retreat. Business Week, the magazine of finance capital, boasts that the union is on the defensive, and in all candor, labor must admit this sorry state of affairs.

It is not because the ranks of labor are not solid, nor because the workers are not determined to fight and win. Nor is it because labor has not the support of the vast majority of the American people who would suffer severely if labor experiences a setback in this mighty struggle. It is due primarily to the false policies of the UAW-CIO leadership which fails to grasp the scope and stakes of this titanic and bitter conflict.

The International officers of the UAW have the idea that they can isolate the General Motors Corporation and play it off against its competitors. The union leaders thought that during the GM strike, Ford and Chrysler would take adwantage of the opportunity to capture the market for new cars, thus bringing General Motors to terms with the union. This was the whole basis of their strike strategy.

But such strategy belongs to the horse and buggy days, when competition among business firms still existed and the greedy monopolists had divine right. Shall this state of affairs continue? not vet strangled the so-called free enterprise system. What the UAW leadership fails to realize is that those days are gone forever. America's sixty ruling families with their system of interlocking directorates, with their complete control of banks, railroads, power plants, steel mills, and every other large-scale enterprise, present a solid front against labor and against the overwhelming majority of the people.

Among their most lucrative possessions, from which they derive exorbitant profits, are the huge auto plants. The auto industry is divided among GM, Ford and Chrysler, who act in unison in fixing wages and prices. These monopoly partners in crime have no business secrets among themselves. Their secrets are all directed against the welfare of labor and the American people.

Fruits Of False Policy

This is common knowledge today. Every thinking person is aware of it except, apparently, the UAW brainbrust, which still insists on its false, stupid, childish strategy. Instead of fighting among themselves; Ford and General Motors have acted as a well-trained team, and have been able to strike blow after blow at the union.

Taking advantage of the union's unrealistic policy, General Motors has refused to bargain and has stuck to its insulting offer of a 10 per cent wage increase. Ford meanwhile held out the bait of a substantial wage increase provided the union would first discuss his insolent demands for fining the union as well as the workers who are forced out on strike by company provocations. The UAW leadership took the bait.

Richard Leonard, International UAW representative, on behalf of all the top union officers, agreed to the humiliating proposal of permitting Ford to fire the best union militants and Leonard proposal, stop the retreat of the UAW deduct substantial fines from their pay enveldemocratic desires of the membership. In no case should the union collaborate with the company to carry out the union's duty to the membership No worker likes to go out on strike, for it means a reduction in his already diminished paycheck. And no small group can ever keep the vast majority of men out against their will. The men see to that through their own democratic processes. Unauthorized strikes occur because the great majority of the ranks favor them against their own top leadership. They occur because thcunion leaders have forfeited the right to lead by giving up the chief weapon of the union. The Leonard proposal to prevent unauthorized strike: means collaboration between the union heads and the company and is nothing less than a conspiracy against union militancy and against the best interests of the workers.

Lessons For UAW Leaders

We, of course, know why the Ford empire, as well as General Motors, is anxious to fire union militants. That is the surest way to undermine the union. It gives tremendous power to one individual, young Henry Ford the Second, who merely through the law of inheritance dominates the fate and destiny of over 150,000 men and women and their families. Possessing no exceptional ability, this young snip rules like the kings of old, with about the same pretensions of Shall workers suffer still further degradation by permitting the whims of one individual to govern their lives?

His insolent proposals have exposed the false illusions built up by the union leadership that Ford was a liberal and interested in helping the workers. The direct reverse is true. Ford is working hand in glove with the ruthless du Pont dynasty which controls GM. Together they are part and parcel of the tiny group of wilful and money-mad monopolists who are out to crush the unions.

Before taking any steps to crack down on the militants in their ranks, the UAW leaders should learn from the tragic story of the European labor movement. There, too, union leaders in country after country collaborated with the capitalists to stamp out militant action by the workers. With the unions thus weakened, the monopolists then resorted to fascism to destroy the labor movement entirely. The labor leaders were rewarded for their services by murder or the concentration camp. Our UAW leaders should learn before it is too late that the only way to protect themselves from the wrath of the capitalists is to protect the full fighting power of the union which put them in office.

Despite the retreat of the leaders, the ranks of the UAW are holding firm and are determined to win their strike. They have denounced the Leonard betrayal at every available opportunity. Both the Flint and the Detroit city-wide strike committees have greeted it with hostility. The Press Steel Unit of Ford Local 600 unanimously passed a resolution denouncing it, and it met with sharp opposition at the Ford Local Council meeting. Angered by the low wage offer from Ford, militant auto workers want to bury the leaders, and take a strong counter-offensive

Here is proof of army brass-hat plotting against American workers on strike for a living wage. Drawn by Col. T. H. Murphy, Chemical Warfare Service, Camp Monmouth, N. In their resolution they say, "If the General Motors employes can be made reasonably comfortable, both physically and

Unions in a number of cities have protested strikebreaking drills being given selected troops in their localities. The Militant has reported several such instances. There can be no doubt, as Murray's latest protest confirms, that Wall Street's military command is preparing to extend its front of operations against the American

Stalinist Scabbery

Once again it is necessary to ask where the Stalinists get the brass to say they are "in the forefront of all labor struggles." After six weeks of the CIO auto workers' strike against GM, the Stalinist leaders of the CIO United Electrical, Radio and sisting the strike mandate of to walk out and give the GM auto pickets immediate assist-

Why have the Stalinist UE officials failed to act on the UAW General Motors Conference appeal, adopted unanimously in Detroit on December 8, calling on the UE leaders to immediately strike the GM electrical plants under UE jurisdiction?

This UAW appeal, passed in the form of a resolution, says: "Enemies of labor and agents of Big Business press are now busy spreading lying rumors that we of the CIO are disunited on the issues in this GM strike, in order that they may weaken the solidarity of our ranks and thus defeat our strike." The resolution calls upon the national officers of the UERMW to "immediately recommend to their GM membership that a strike be called at opes. Seeing these UAW leaders in retreat, GM at once cancelled its contract with the union, the union. They realize that is the only way to while Ford, made further outrageous demands. He insisted on reintroducing the old speed-up and eliminating workers' seniority rights which had been won only through years of bitter struggle. As a final insult, the substantial increase expected from Ford in return for these humiliating concessions proved to be only a cent and a half more than GM had offered.

other, the UAW not only has lost ground in its Ford. Certainly it has made no headway whatsoever in its fight for the 30 per cent wage increase. This is the bitter fruit of the stupid strategy of the top UAW leadership. No wonder that dismay and consternation have seized the ranks of the workers leading to a wave of revolt against the policies of the UAW officials.

But some people might ask: Won't the union's bargaining position be strengthened if it makes a move to prevent so-called unauthorized or wildcat strikes? To answer this question, we must dustrialists in a broad counter-attack against first of all delve into the cause of wildcat strikes. They are demanding that the whole General Motors empire be shut down. The job plants servicing GM are organized by the UAW and should be closed at once. But even if all the GM employes are out on strike, they alone should not have to bear the brunt of the nation-wide fight against the monopolists who control not only General Motors but all industry and the government to boot. The Stalinists wanted to link the increase of wages to an increase in production. But this is in effect the same scheme as increasing prices. Increasing production in a capitalist regime means super-exploitation of the workers and increased profits for the capitalists. The Stalinists thus insist that an increase in capitalist profits is the necessary precondition for an increase in wages. Stalinist policy, like the policy of the bourgeoisie, is in the direction of maintaining at a lower level the workers' share in the division of the national income.

Working class politics calls for the sliding scale of wages. Once wages are set at 260, they must way to conduct a genuine struggle against the high cost of living!

The Stalinists Cheer

Wall Street's spokesman. Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, is "jubilant" over the results of the Moscow Conference.' So are the American, Stalinists who have been attacking his imperialist policies.

The December 28 Daily Worker, organ of the Stalinists, hails the Conference as nothing less than "A Victory For Vigilance." Actually, it was a victory only for the counterrevolutionary policies of the Big Three.

The Stalinists hail a secret conference that was the very opposite of the diplomacy conducted by the Bolsheviks in the early days of, the Soviet Union-a conference resembling those of the Czar. Lenin lashed such secret diplomacy. He branded it as opposed to the interests of the workers. Lenin insisted on conducting the foreign affairs of the Soviet state in the full light of day and only in the interests of the working people of the world.

The Daily Worker interprets the conference decisions as in part due to the recent pressure campaigns they have staged. They have, for instance, demanded an end to secrecy on the atom bomb. The conference, they try to make out, is a step toward ending this secrecy. "Foreign Policies Based on Atombomb Didn't Work," says a headline. But Wall Street continues its monopoly control and continues manufacturing the bombs.

The Stalinists have likewise been demanding "Hands Off China - Bring the Boys Back Home." The Daily Worker now claims "Big 3 Pact Brightens Picture in Far East," But the conference was silent about Indonesia and Indo-Ohina! And in regard to China an agreement was reached to bolster up the reactionary brutal dictatorship of Chiang Kai-shek! wore American troops are on their way to China.

According to the press, "A spokesman for the men said another mass meeting protest would be held tomorrow."

This incident is highly significant. Since the cessation of hostilities, the millions of men held overseas by American imperialism have been clamoring to come home.

They bitterly resent being forced to act as policemen for Wall Street's plans of world domination. They do not want the bloody, dirty task of putting down colonial uprisings or workers' revolutions to bolster reactionary, dictatorial regimes.

Braving reprisals from the Brass Hats, thousands of these soldiers began writing Congress demanding action. The stream of mail grew to a flood without stirring Wall Street's political representatives in Washington. The soldiers began stamping slógans on their letters home, such as "No Boats, No Votes," "Write Your Congressman-Get Us Home." The families and friends of the veterans swung into action. Instead of responding Congress took a three-weeks vacation.

Apparently the soldiers have now begun organizing on their own. Circular petitions are said to be going the rounds for signatures. The reference to the "spokesman" in the Manila incident shows that rank-and-file leaders are appearing. The beginning of mass actions by the veterans overseas thus indicate a new stage in the mood of the soldiers.

According to a United Press dispatch, Col. Krieger, personnel officer in the Army forces of the Western Pacific, assured 15,000 men in the Replacement Depots in the Philippines they would be returned swiftly. He made his statement the day following, the demonstration. The success of the Manila demonstration will encourage soldiers elsewhere to indicate through stronger means than letters, how they feel.

The Manila incident is not the outburst of an isolated segment of the veterans, but represents widespread sentiment. On the other side of the world from Manila, in Frankfort, Germany, more than 100 Army Air Forces enlisted men, representing a group of 400, marched on Army headquarters on December 27.

Like the Manila soldiers, they protested cancellation of embarkation orders. Like the Manila soldiers they had selected a spokesman to speak for the entire group.

Such demonstrations will undoubtedly occur on an increasing scale, as the soldiers exert pressure for a change in Washington's policy and the speeding up of demobilization.

The desire of the veterans to return should be supported to the hilt here at home.

Withdraw all American troops from foreign soil!

Thomas Complains

CIO United Auto Workers President R. J. Thomas charged on December 29 that all the automobile manufacturers, large and small, are acting in "collusion" to deny the auto workers the 30 per cent wage increase they justly demand.

"There is definite collusion between General Motors and Chrysler," Thomas affirmed, and added that "Ford is sitting on the sidelines waiting to see what happens in the GM case. All of them, and also the smaller manufacturers, are in sympathy with each other. All the others are waiting on GM."

This is a virtual admission by one of its

It proves that far from being identical with the Soviet Union, the Stalin regime is its most treacherous internal enemy. At the same time the book serves to mercilessly expose those cowards and capitulators in the capitalist countries who, under terrific pressure from the bourgeoisie, want to write off the Russian Revolution and abandon the Soviet Union in its hour of greatest danger and brutal Stalinist bureaucracy

PROBLEMS FACING WAR VETERANS By CHARLES CARSTEN-

Where Are The Jobs For Veterans? "There has been a lot of talk about jobs for the millions of men coming back, but nothing has been done to provide them," says a veteran of World War II. He is one of thousands becoming bitterly angry on finding only starvation-wage jobs - or none as all. "How long can a man and his wife exist on $30 a week and support a child or two?" he indignantly asks.

Even jobs at such scandalously low wages are becoming more rare as unemployment mounts. Employment in 11 major cities was surveyed by the conservative Wall Street Journal, which drew the following conclusion:

"The rolls of jobless veterans are growing by leaps and bounds across the country . . . Here and there, ex-servicemen are refusing to accept the kind of work available. They want a job with a future."

Veterans are unwilling to return to the low paying jobs such as gasoline station attendants, complains the Journal writer. But, he continues hopefully, "a California oil company is confident that they will be around looking for these jobs in a few months when unemployment gets more severe and they've run out of their discharge money."

Employers are banking on hunger to force veterans to accept low-paid, distasteful jobs. After forecasting a drop in industrial production, employment and national income, Isadore Lubin, U. S. Commissioner of Labor Statistics, said on December 17 that unemployment will reach 6,000,000 to 9,000,000 by apring.

Workers and veterans will suffer, not Big Busie ness. A study, submitted to the House Appropriations Committee by Secretary of Commerce Henry A. Wellace, predicted "huge business profits in the next five years despite serious unemployment." Wage and salary incomes will decline drastically, according to the report.

However, corporate earnings will be 100 per cent higher than they were in 1940. After increasing from 10 billion dollars in 1946 to 11 billion dollars in 1947, profits will remain at that level until 1950. Prospects for the handful of Wall Street bankers are bright. Compare the fabulous income of America's 60 Richest Families with the wages offered veterans.

More than half the jobs listed with United States Employment Service "range in pay from $20 . week to $30 for a 40-hour week," reports the December 21 N. Y. Herald Tribune. "Three hundred openings on the USES roster actually offered the veterans less than the $20 they can draw as unemployed relief."

It is true that veterans want better jobs than they had before the war. Many who never had a chance to prove their ability until they were drafted were promoted to corporals, sergeants and master sergeants. Given the opportunity, they know they could learn the skills necessary for more interesting, better paying jobs than they were forced to accept before the war.

Another large group of veterans were youths who were drafted before they had completed school or learned a trade. Many of them have family responsibilities now. They can't live on the beginner's wages employers offer.

From 20 to 40 per cent of the veteran job hunters have no trade. Among them are highly trained pilots who lack the 2,000 hours of flying time required by the air lines. An Army flier, who had acquired a wife and two children during his four years in the service, returned to his old employer, a Wall Street bank. They gave him back his old job as a $22-a-week messenger!

The press, government officials and do-gooders cautiously urge industry to hire more veterans, to "treat the boys right." But none of them advance

When these revolutions failed to materialize, Stalin in 1924 advanced his fatal theory of buildng "socialism in one country." The false policies based on this theory led to betrayal after struggles of the masses in all parts of the world. Instead of isolation, the Soviet Union found the iron ring of capitalist encirclement tightened around it. This paved the way for the rise of fascism and the subsequent attack by German imperialism upon the Soviet Union. Inside the Soviet Union the

What must the rank and file Stalinists think when Foster joins the Wall Street chorus in preising the conference decisions?

On December 28, the day after the communique, the Daily Worker immediately shifted to the past tense in speaking of the struggles in the Far East. Wall Street "was" intervening in China. The British and Dutch "were" suppressing the Indonesians. The French "were" battling the Indo-Chinese liberation movement. In this way Foster announces his readiness to drop the radical phrases he has lately flung in Wall Street's direction.

The real reason the Daily Worker crowed over the conference is hard to find. Stalin's Russian house organs, Pravda and Izvestia, hailed the secret horse-trading. His American flunkey Foster followed their lead. Browder himself could not have responded any quicker to the Moscow tip-off on the "line." Yet after this disgusting belly-crawling ordered by Generalissimo Stalin, the cynical editor of the Daily Worker proclaimed that the American Stalinist machine is "rid of the fawning policy which Earl Browder had foisted upon it."

Help Them Get Home!

On Christmas Day in Manila, 4,000 GI's staged a demonstration. Carrying banners demanding "We want ships," they marched on the Twenty-first Replacement Depot Headquarters. The mass protest-was touched off by the cancellation of a scheduled transport sailing for home.

The depot commander, Col. J. C. Campbell, ordered the men to return to their barracks. "You men forget you're not working for General Motors," he said. "You're still in the Army."

With these brutal words, this Brass Hat revealed how the class struggle is reflected in the armed forces. He understood very well that the soldier-demonstrators belonged to the same class as the GM strikers. He showed his knowledge of the tie-up between the GM corporation heads and the government. He made clear where he stood!

The men dispersed after some ten minutes.

chief authors that the UAW's "one-at-a-time strategy" is proving to be a complete dud. The UAW leaders planned to strike General Motors separately while playing off the other Big Three "competitors," Ford and Chrysler, against GM.

This "strategy," as The Militant pointed out from the start of the current auto labor struggle, is based on an utterly ignorant, not to say downright false, conception of the monopoly structure of the giant auto industry.

Every actual development in the GM strike and the simultaneous Ford and Chrysler negotiations has confirmed that GM, Ford and Chrysler, together with the whole cut-throat crew of American monopoly capitalists, have eagerly seized upon the stupid strategy of the UAW leaders and are making the most of it. It is not the UAW leaders who are playing off the auto corporations one against another. It is the auto corporations which are cunningly playing off one group of auto workers' against another, hoping to defeat them piecemeal.

Ford and Chrysler are making no attempt to take a "competitive advantage" over GM and "force it into line" with the UAW's demands, as the union leaders had so naively hoped. They have instituted a series of partial lockouts under the pretext of "parts shortages." They have used their own negotiations to supply GM with new union-busting ammunition in the form of arrogant demands on the union.

Thomas' complaints about "collusion," true enough in themselves, are however merely the lament of a backwoods "labor statesman" who feels he is being "double-crossed" by the auto corporations in whose "magnanimity" and "competitive" spirit he put his trust.

Despite his complaint about the real relationship between the auto monopolies, a relationship entirely at variance with the UAW leader's infantile "strategy," Thomas does not draw the only logical conclusion from his own admission. He and the other UAW leaders are continuing with their same lame-brain "strategy" of "one-at-a-time."

This "strategy" can only continue to undermine and weaken the struggle of the GM workers, isolate them, and confront them with the combined might of the auto corporations. Before it is too late, the UAW ranks must bury this still-born "strategy" six feet under.

The full fighting strength of the mighty UAW must be brought into united action to ensure victory against the combined forces of auto monopoly. That is the only effective answer to the collusion of the "Big Three." But the main portion of Trot- every vestige of the genuine with almost nothing 42 years ago. No other large corporation has been able to keep its records quite so secret as Ford Motor Company does. It has only seven stockholders today, all in the Ford family circle. It discloses only such information as it wants to, even to the government. Yet nothing can hide the fact that Ford extracted a billion dollars or two from the workers who produced the automobiles, war goods and other products that paid those profits.

In 1903 Henry Ford I had nothing but 17 patents that he valued at $40,000. Today the Ford family is second in wealth only to the Rockefellers, if not the richest in all the world. Ford workers, in contrast, have suffered breadlines, speedup and browbeating by 'one of the world's most notorious private armies of thugs.

Ford had already become a billionaire 20 years ago. In 1936 the Ford company acknowledged is had made $782,016,144 clear profits up to that time. Since then the Second World War has been the most profitable war in history for Ford as well as other auto magnates. Two years ago Ford Motor Company assets alone were officially reported above a billion (now $1,021,325,159). Considering Ford's enormous holdings throughout the world outside the Ford company, his personal fortune must today be close to $2 billions-all clear profit extracted from workers.

The same workers also made multi-millionaires of the 10 other original "investors" of Ford Motor Company. Henry Ford was able to buy out all these others from his own lion's share of the profits.

For the largest single investment, $10,500 by banker, John S. Gray, Ford paid $36,585,075 out ef workers-produced profits. The smallest investment, $100 by Mrs. Rosetta Hauss, sister of the late U. S. Senator James Couzens, paid off $350,000. Couzens himself, having invested $1,000, received $29,308,858 in addition to dividends ranging from 100 to 500 per cent annually.

Assuming an average working force of 100,000. this means that Ford took between $10,000 and $20,000 from each worker over the past 42 years.

Now these workers are demanding a decent living wage, a larger share of the product of their labor. They have every right to open the Ford books and learn how much they are entitled to.

"Back To Sea - -For What?" Asks Angry Seaman

Editor:

Yesterday, December 26, I received a telegram from the War Shipping Administration, lamenting the fact that there is shortage of seamen. The communication demanded that, as en experienced Deck Officer, I should report to Admiral Land's WSA-sponsored fink hall immediately. Troops and supplies must not be delayed, it bemoanèd.

Previous installments of Comrade Cannon's book described the emergence of the American Communist Party out of the left wing of the Socialist Party in 1919, the expulsion of the Trotokyists in 1928, the formation of a new party and the Minneapolis Strikes of 1934. In 1935, the Trotskyists turned their attention to a growing left wing tendency in the Socialist Party.

Following the convention, we were put right up against the m. For the second time we were deprived of our press. We still itated to bring things to a head because in addition to our general unreadiness, the work of the Trotsky Defense Committee was still uncompleted and we were afraid of jeopardizing it by a premature split. There again Trotsky showed his complete objectivity. Trotsky, who certainly was concerned from a personal as well as political point of view in the issue of the Moscow trials, wrote us: "Of course, it would be a little bit awkward to have a split now in view of the work of the Commission of Inquiry, but that should not be a consideration. The most important thing be the work of political clarification and you should let nothing stand in your road."

Trotsky encouraged us and even incited us to go forward to meet their challenge and not permit them to push us any further for fear it might lead to disintegration of our own ranks, demoralization of the people whom we had led that far along the road. We proceeded cautiously, "legally," at first. We demonstrated that we could have a press, and a pretty effective one, without violating the ban on publications. We worked out a system of multi-copied personal letters and branch resolutions. An ostensibly personal letter, evaluating the convention, was signed by one comrade and addressed to another. The letter was mimeosraphed and discreetly distributed in the branches. Every time an issue arose, a new stage of development in the Spanish civil war, a resolution would be introduced in a New York branch by an individual comrade, then mimeographed and sent to our faction groups all over the country as a basis for their own resolutions on the question. We had no press. They had the whole machinery of the party. They had the national secretary, the editor, the labor secretary, the organizers-they had the whole works-but we had a program and a mimeograph machine and that proved to be enough.

We Fight Against The "Gag" Law

Our faction everywhere was better informed, better disciplined and better organized and we were making rapid headway in recruiting new mmebers into the faction. Then our moralistic Socialist "democrats" gave the party a real dose of democracy. They passed ing, practically without any direction from our central leadership, the "Gag" Law. This was a decision of the National Committee to our trade union work on a scale we had never approximated bethe effect that no more resolutions could be introduced in branches fore and had at least begun the proletarianization of the party. about disputed questions. They had in mind particularly the We had won over to our side the majority of the Socialist youth Spanish civil war-a little incident in their minds. Then we revolted in earnest and began a campaign all over the country against the "Gag" Law. Our campaign led us directly to a convention of the expelled ranches of the Socialist Party in Chicago on the last day of December and New Year's Day 1938. There we recorded the results of the year and a half experience in the Socialist Party. It was clear that it had facilitated the organization of the Trotsky dance on the point of a needle. How many? Our entry into the Socialist Party had facilitated our trade union work. Our work in the maritime strike in California, for example, had been greatly aided by the fact that, at the time, we were members of the Socialist Party. Our comrades had betthen, we had never, had anything more than an occasional conists in the automobile workers union.

Ours is the Program of The Fourth International

The question was never decided because there is no way of in it; the Bolshevik party is stronger for it. The history of this knowing by earthly experience how many angels can dance on such a restricted area as the point of a needle. After it was proved that we had made all these gains and the sectarians had gained ter connections in the automobile workers union where, up to nothing, the only argument that could be made in their behalf of the party from the point where I leave it here, with the was: "Yes, you doubled your membership, but at the sacrifice of foundation of the Socialist Workers Party on New Year's 1938. tact. The basis had been laid for a powerful fraction of Trotsky- the program." But that wasn't so. When we held our convention at can pick it up in these documents. As for what happened after Chicago at the end of our experience in the Socialist Party, it was the fight with the petty-bourgeois opposition and the eventual The great surprise of the convention was the revelation that shown that we had come out with the same program we had taken in-the program of the Fourth International.

> Our "round trip" through the Socialist Party had resulted in gains all along the line. We formed the Socialist Workers Party in Chicago on New Year's Day and began once again an independent struggle with good prospects and good hopes. The extensive discussion that took place in our ranks prior to the convention had revealed differences and weaknesses which later were to come out in the open. We had a great discussion over the Russian question. Overwhelmed by the treachery of Stalinism, the split, it seems that this is recent history, so recent that it does not need to be reviewed in this course. It is known to all of you. Now, dear Comrades, with your permission. I want to say a word about the great happiness and satisfaction I have had in giving these lectures. If a young comrade, studying public speaking were to ask me, an old campaigner, what a public speaker most needs, I would say: "He needs a good audience." And if he gets the kind of audience that I have had in this series of twelve lectures-so warm, responsive and appreciative, so interested in the subject and so friendly to the speaker-he will indeed be fortunate.

THE END

With this chapter we conclude the serialization of "The History of American Trotskyism." We are sure that many of our readers who have read all or part of the book from week to week will want a copy of their own to study. It can now be obtained from Pioneer Publishers, 116 University Place, New York 3, N. Y., at special reduced prices: cloth $2, paper $1.

isted. He was simply adapting himself to the half-baked theories of the anarchists and the Mensheviks which had been expounded since 1917 and are renewed at every crisis of the evolution of the Soviet Union. In addition to that, Burnham led an opposition against us on the organization question. He didn't like the Bolshevik method of organization, Bolshevik discipline and centralization and Bolshevik morality. These symptoms are well known, Anybody who begins by objecting to Bolshevism on the questions of methods, organization and "morality" certainly has Menshevism in his blood. The political program is the touchstone, but the disputes on the organization question often reveal the symp-

Where Mine Owners' Greed Brought Disaster

More miners' lives were sacrificed last week to the greed of mine owners who callously disregard essential safety measures. An underground explosion trapped 31 men in the Straight Creek Coal Company's No. 1 mine in Pineville, Kentucky. This is a general view of the village and the shacks in which the miners are forced to live. Relatives and friends of the entombed men are gathered at the entrance of the mine (arrow). with snow. In the center of it stands a grimy, battered shed of corrugated iron with a strange covered incline running out and up from it, black against the snow. From the incline pours a steady cloud of steam that hovers over it and dissipates in the frigid air. This is the pig machine.

Inside the shed men are pouring iron from the great ladles into a continually moving conveyor of pig molds that travel slowly up the incline. as the molten iron cools and hardens, and then drop the pigs crashing into flat cars that will carry them away. The platform men drip sweat as they poke the runners with long sticks keeping the flow of iron steady, but their backs are freezing cold. The lime man runs in and out, checking the flow of lime that sprays the inside of the pig molds, and the "sticker" men stand shivering near the flat cars, knocking down with long bars those pigs that have stuck to the molds after they have turned over.

Eight hours here is a terrible ordeal of cold. Punishing gusts of winter wind flap the loose sheet irons on the walls of the shed. The outside men are covered with snow, and on their shoes gleams a thin coating of ice. The pig machine gang earns less than a dollar an hour.

As you stand at the end of the furnace, you see a man heavily clothed in old rags climb slowly up the stairs leading to the trestle. At a landing he comes to a stop and leans on the railing. Looking over at you, he grins a little sheepishly, straightens wearily, and resumes his slow climb. He hasn't spoken a word, but you know what his smile meant. It meant, "So you noticed what I did, eh? Well, we understand. don't we! I've climbed these steps for many a year; and now the weight of all those other dead old years is resting on my back. So, it's hard to carry all that load up these stairs. Every year it grows heavier. I guess I must be ... setting old!"

You answered his grin with one of your own, and that, too, carried with it a message. It said, "That's true, old timer. You are getting old, and so are all of us. It's hard on a workingman when his body wears out and he can no longer toil as he used to . . . but that's life. Work, grow old and tired, and die when you can't work any longer, work out your life for the boss and never have anything for yourself. This we know, travel the same road."

Her back is bent from a lifetime of toil. Her eye is full of brooding sadness, and the sound of twilight is in her voice. Every bleak morning we see Sarah Johnson plod slowly through the snow on her way into the plant, and each afternoon we see her go her sad and weary way. Sarah is a woman who has lived too long, who has outlived her life and now exists merely in a period of waiting for . . . nothing. Poor, a Negro, a lifetime of cheerless toil behind her. Sarah's one happiness rested in her boy, Rob, the very image of his father, who was killed by an engine years ago. Every day as Sarah would come into the plant to sweep out the blast furnace offices and do little odd jobs, we'd stop her and ask what she heard from Rob, when he'd be home again, how he was making out. And how proudly Sarah would tell us of his progress in the Jim Crow army. When he was made a corporal, the pride was almost too sweet, too great for Sarah to bear. All day at her work she smiled to herself. All day she hummed under her breath.

But today Sarah does not smile, nor does she sing. Vacantly she does her job, puts in her hours, and wanders away from the steel plant at the end of her shift, plodding, bent and weary, home to an empty house that will never be less empty. For her Rob will never come back to her. Rob, who "looked jes like his daddy," will never come home again, for he is dead, killed in the last days of the capitalist war. And Sarah lives on.

The tapping hole is wet. You can see the moisture on the drill as it lies on the bricks. Tommy, the huge, broad-shouldered Negro keeper, puts the oxygen pipe into the hole to burn it out. Standing next to the trough, he grins and wobbles his knees in a comical burlesque of terror.

leaps from the tapping hole. Tommy whirls around, ducking, and steps out of the way. Molten iron and moisture, you know, don't mix. They explode. That's why Tommy wiggled his knees in make-believe fright.

It makes you sure, when you see a little thing like this, that such careless, matter-of-fact courage will do wonders on the impending picket lines.

Notes Of A Seaman Politics and political action are often subjects of heated discussions aboard ship and in the union hall. Many otherwise class conscious and militant seamen dogmatically reject politics as having no place inside the union. Nothing is more contradictory. For it is precisely the seamen's unions that throughout their history have been confronted with political problems. More than any other section of the working class the seamen have had to deal with and struggle against the capitalist government.

Consider the first great struggle of the seamen's union. For thirty years after the founding of the modern seamen's unions they were engaged in a struggle against the government to achieve the rights of free citizens.

men's halls is the framed commemorative entitled "Dawn Of A New Day." Under the leadership of Andrew Furuseth they had finally achieved the status of free citizens. The LaFollette Act of 1915 was to the seamen of that period actually the "dawn of a new day."

This "new day" came to an abrupt end at the conclusion of the First World War. The government through the United States Shipping Board delivered a smashing blow at the seamen's unions. After cutting wages and forcing the union out on strike the government shipping board broke the strike. The unions were virtually demolished.

The 'val of the seamen's unions came 12 years later in the great West Coast strikes of 1934. On the picket line the seamen's union retrieved many of the conditions they had lost. First among these was the union hiring hall. Ever since that time there has been an almost continuous attack upon the heart of the

"Ships That Never Come In"

The seamen's unions have come to an impasse on both coasts. It is clear that no real concessions are forthcoming to the seamen. The thip operators who are counting on large government subsidies have no intention of sharing those subsidies with the men who man the chips.

Every problem confronting the seamen today leads to Washington. No thinking seaman can escape the conclusion that the fight of the seamen for the right to have a decent life must be extended from the waterfront into the national political arena. The time has come to begin thinking seriously of the political weapons that can and must be fashioned by the seamen together with the rest of labor.

That seaman who maintains that politics has no place in the seamen's unions rejects the lessons of sixty years of seamen's struggles and is walking blindfolded down a long dark alley that goes no place.
