Puerto Ricans Treated Like Slaves In Pennsylvania Camp

By Paul Kelly

 handicapped by crooked labor unions and political and economic exploitation in farm and machinery industries, have been driven out of the country, and not many of them have found work in the cities. Just as they have been driven from the farms of the East Coast, so now they are being driven from the farms of the West. Those who remain, either by force or by fraud, are being systematically robbed of their rights and are being treated like slaves.

Workers have been found working for $1.25 a week in the gravel pits of New Jersey and for $1 a week in the coal mines of Pennsylvania. In some cases the workers have been forced to work without pay. In others, the workers have been paid only half of what they were promised.

The workers are located in the anthracite and bituminous fields of Pennsylvania. They are being driven from the fields because they are not being paid a living wage. They are being driven from the fields because they are not being treated with the respect due to human beings. They are being driven from the fields because they are not being fed properly. They are being driven from the fields because they are not being given medical care.

The workers are being driven from the fields because they are not being allowed to vote. They are being driven from the fields because they are not being allowed to worship in their own way.

The workers are being driven from the fields because they are not being allowed to organize. They are being driven from the fields because they are not being allowed to speak.

Blood, Tears And Sweat In African Gold Mines

By Larissa Redi

In the South African gold mines, millions of Africans are being worked to death. The conditions in which they live and work are inhuman. The mines are filled with disease and death. The workers live in crowded and dirty shacks, many of which are built on the corpses of other workers. The workers are worked long hours and are not allowed to rest.

Many workers have been forced to work without food or water. They are worked without pay and are worked in conditions that are impossible. Many workers have died from working conditions that are inhumane.

New Philippine Government Uses Mailed Fist On Hukks

By Dave Dreiser

ANGELIS, Philippines—What "independence" has this country got if they can't even ship a teleprinter from an American soldier in the Philippines? To prove this point, the New York Times, in a recent article, states that "independence" has been won, and goes on to say that "the Philippines are now independent." But what this means is that the Filipinos are now subjected to the same treatment as the people of the United States.

"Whether the Philippines are now independent or not, it is clear that they are not free. They are still under the control of the United States and are forced to obey its laws. This is a violation of their human rights. They are not free to govern themselves. They are not free to make their own laws. They are not free to elect their own leaders. They are not free to speak their minds. They are not free to worship as they please. They are not free to vote for candidates of their choice. They are not free to organize trade unions. They are not free to strike. They are not free to travel. They are not free to send letters. They are not free to receive letters. They are not free to talk. They are not free to read. They are not free to write. They are not free to publish. They are not free to teach. They are not free to learn. They are not free to vote. They are not free to be governed by their own government. They are not free to be governed by any government.

Troop Disposition in the Philippines

When the Philippines were turned over to the United States at the close of the Spanish-American War, the number of American troops in the islands was reduced to about 10,000 men. The United States did not want to keep an army in the Philippines. It wanted to give the Filipinos the opportunity to govern themselves. But the Filipinos did not want to govern themselves. They wanted to be governed by the United States.

Vandals and Politics

It wasn't until a dozen years after World War II, when the Medicaid of the '40s and 50s had been built up on a broad base of support, and was rejected by a majority of voters, that the Yanks and the Siegels, in a final effort to pass effective anti-voting legislation.

These demands must be backed up by independent analyses of the major problems of our government. Negotiating groups and their leaders must be forced to remain in their positions, negotiating. If the demands are met, the government must be able to produce a program that will endure, not just a temporary solution. If the demands are not met, the government must be able to face the consequences of its failure.

The Socialist writer, Harry Laski, has pointed out that independent analyses of the ma-

dray principles and promises of the third party movement are crucial. The third party movesment, in order to be successful, must be able to offer a convincing and realistic alternative.

The Socialist party, which is the third party movement, must offer a program that is both realistic and visionary. It must offer a program that is both conservative and radical.

Ominous Trend

The war in the Near East is becoming more and more of a threat to the stability of the Middle East. The situation is becoming more difficult, as the various factions become more aggressive.

The leading figures in the Russian Bolshoi Revolution have been arrested, and are now on trial for treason. The Bolshoi have been considered the main threat to the stability of the Near East, and their arrest is a significant step in the right direction.

Wages, Prices and Profits

The Relation Between Wages and Surplus Value

By Warren Creel

The relation between wages and surplus value is fundamental to understanding the capitalist system. Wages are determined by the amount of labor power that workers sell in the labor market.

The labor market consists of workers who try to get the best jobs they can, while the employers, the buyers, try to buy cheaply. The workers must sell their labor power if they cannot live without a job. No worker can keep his job if he does not get paid his wages. The employer offers the lowest wage at which he can get the workers to work, and the workers have no choice but to accept it.

So the level of wages that come from bargaining in the labor market is the level that is set by the market forces that are controlled by the amount of labor value, through the process of competition between employers for the same amount of labor power.

Wages are the labor power that a worker receives for his work. Wages are not a fixed amount, but are determined by the market forces in the labor market. The level of wages that a worker receives for a certain amount of labor is the same as the amount of surplus value that the employer receives from the work of the worker.

The level of wages is determined by the amount of labor power that workers sell in the labor market. If the amount of labor power that workers sell is less than the amount of labor power that is demanded, then the level of wages will be low. If the amount of labor power that workers sell is more than the amount of labor power that is demanded, then the level of wages will be high.

The level of wages is determined by the amount of labor power that workers sell in the labor market. If the amount of labor power that workers sell is less than the amount of labor power that is demanded, then the level of wages will be low. If the amount of labor power that workers sell is more than the amount of labor power that is demanded, then the level of wages will be high.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 17—The Socialist Workers Party swept through the city yesterday and today with a great wave of enthusiasm and support. Many workers who formerly were only mildly interested in the party are now actively engaged in its work. There has been a decided increase in the number of those who are interested in the party.

The SWP candidates, including Joseph Hansen, were actively engaged in the campaign. They met with many groups and made many speeches, and their work was widely publicized.

The party’s success was due to the hard work of the candidates and the members.

Our Program:

1. Defend labor’s standard of living.
2. Build labor unions into fighting weapons.
3. Organize mass consumer cooperatives for better prices.
4. Build working-class political parties and candidacies.
5. Build a permanent socialist movement for a world with no class divisions.
