The Yugoslav affair disclosed this aspect, and was nothing more than the first large-scale and serious manifestation of this new aspect of the crisis of Stalinism. The Greek affair is on the same plane: it is an organic extension of the same roots which fed the "Titoist deviation." Vol. XIII - No. 9

"The American worker is very combative — as we have seen during the strikes. They have had the most rebellious strikes in the world. What the American worker misses is a spirit of generalization, or analysis, of his class position in society as a whole. This lack of social thinking has its origin in the country's whole history - the Far West with the perspective of unlimited possibilities for everyone to become rich. Now all that is gone, but the mind remains in the past. Idealists think the human mentality is progressive, but in reality it is the most conservative element of society. Your technique is progressive but the mentality of the worker lags far behind. Their backwardness consists of their inability to generalize their problem; they consider everything on a personal basis. Now, the war will teach the American workers LENIN social thinking. . . and this means revolutionary thinking." Leon Trotsky, Discussion on America, 1940.

The North Atlantic Pact Conspiracy

In recent weeks Washington has been the scene of frenzied secret negotiations on a scale this country has never known in "peacetime." Acheson and other ranking officials of the State Department meet in one secret session after another with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. The same officials huddle in strictest secrecy with the Ambassadors of Britain, Belgium, France, Netherlands and Luxemburg. All that the public is permitted to know is that a "suitable formula" is being worked out for U. S. "participation" in the North Atlantic Pact.

A "suitable formula" for whom? A "suitable formula" for what? Under discussion here, as everybody knows, are the most far-reaching decisions affecting not only the welfare of the American people, but of the whole world, of the fate of civilization itself. Issues far less vital are customarily discussed in public; at least public hearings are held. But on the fateful question of war and peace we see this brazen resort to secret diplomacy.

What are they hiding? What are they perpetrating behind the backs of the people?

The capitalist press conveys only rumors. Before the ratification of the North Atlantic Pact, before a text of this treaty has even been submitted to the Senate, there are rumors of still another treaty - a Mediterranean "defense alliance" - which will come as a supplement at a "later date."

Simultaneously, an arms program is being

The Wailing Liberals

The liberals are thronging once more to the Wailing Wall. They are moannig that the Truman administration is failing to carry through on its election pledges. Eight weeks ago they were jubilantly hailing the opening of the "Fair Deal" Congress.

"The Fair Deal Falters" now complain the New Republic editors (Feb. 19). The difficulty, they claim, lies in Truman's poor leadership qualities and his propensity to "trust the fate of his program to congressional leaders."

drafted to "implement" the North Atlantic Pact. Right now the State Department is preparing a "world arms bill" granting the President sweeping powers to "transfer" any and all types of munitions to any quarter of the globe.

Nobody knows what the costs of such a huge arms program will be. Business circles are, of course, rife with speculation on this score. Business Week, Feb. 19, hints that arms "agreements to North Atlantic Pact nations may be the answer" to government spending and a new inflationary spiral that might ensue. The plan obviously is to let this multi-billion dollar decision, along with other corresponding decisions in this sphere, rest in the hands of one man, namely the President.

The fact is that once the projected "defense" pact along with the "implementing" arms program is ratified by Congress, then, regardless of what "formulas" may be contained in the final treaty and arms drafts. the power of deciding on war or peace will actually pass into the hands of Truman. Congress will be left the role of a rubber stamp.

There is still time for the American people to safeguard themselves against the terrible threat implied in all this. The warmaking powers must be taken out of the hands of capitalist politicians in Congress and in the White House. The people themselves must have the right to decide on war . or peace by referendum vote.

that it is "frankly appalled" at the "defeatist attitude" of Democratic leaders on the filibuster and the fate of the civil rights program.

If the top Trumanite union leaders haven't spoken out as frankly, it's not because they aren't plenty worried by what's happening in Washington. They just haven't guts to tell the truth to the union members they fooled.

Similarly, the land-reform laws left the landlords in control of the countryside. "The government," sharecroppers told Gayn, is always in league with the landlord. What we want is not more Japanese land laws, but an order from General MacArthur. The landlords would obey that."

The old governmental apparatus was retained more or less intact. The Thought Control Police had been abolished, but most of its leading members found their way into important governmental posts. The chief of the Labor Division of the Ministry of Wellabor unions as a member of the Conditions in Korea, which Gayn visited for a period, were even worse. There a great revolutionary uprising, involving hundreds of thousands, if not millions of people, was being crushed. In the police reports at army headquarters Gayn found the story of the revolution. It began September, 1946, in the city of Taegu with a succession of strikes by the railroad, phone, metal, textile and electric workers, each of which was suppressed by the Korean police. It was next taken up by the students, who poured into the streets to demonstrate. Fighting broke out in which onethird of the 150,000 inhabitants took part.

*age three

From Taegu the flames of the revolution spread to the country at large. Sharecroppers and poor farmers attacked the homes of landlords and the police stations. But the revolution was stamped out by the U.S. Army with the aid of the Korean police and reactionary strong-arm organizations, which it formed into posses, supplied with arms and transported to trouble areas. In the Korean counter-revolutionary regime the Japanesetrained police force was not only retained ("Many men are born policemen," the American chief of the Police Division told Gayn.

'We felt that if they did a good job for the Japanese, they would do a good job for us"); it was strengthened by incorporating into it members of the reactionary hooligan bands which had helped the Americans. This police force used the most horrible methods of physical torture on the prisoners rounded up in the mass arrests, from beating with metal rods to such, refinements as placing burning wooden slivers under finger-nails. When an American junior officer assigned to guard a police station protested to his commanding officer at what he saw, he was told that he had orders not to interfere in Korean "administrative detail." The American Military Government not only countenanced this police brutality; it subsidized a Korean

A Blow to Sound Unionism

Solidarity against the employers is the keystone of sound unionism. The policy of class collaboration between union leaders and employers - which invariably means collaboration against the workers - can only undermine and eventually destroy genuine unionism.

The depths to which class collaboration can sink is shown by the collusion between CIO United Auto Workers officials and West Coast employers to bar "communists" and "fellow travellers" from employment, which The Militant exposed last week.

The Militant published documentary proof that Benedict Nathanson, UAW Aircraft Division director, as principal speaker before a closed meeting of industrial relations and personnel directors in Los Angeles last September, had urged the corporations "not to hire" anyone they consider "politically unreliable" and to "check with" union officials "as to the political beliefs of employment officials."

This same Benedict Nathanson who now offers to act as fingerman for the corporations against "communists" - meaning all union militants whom the bosses or the union bureaucrats don't like - was himself 'the victim of what he now proposes as a general corporation practice. Some ten years ago, before he rose above the union ranks and be-always talking about) to tell the whole truth now: That Truman and the Democratic Party are, as they have always been, reactionary to the core; that their "liberalism" was

Truman hasn't changed. His "qualities of leadership" haven't changed. His program hasn't changed. All that has happened is that a capitalist machine politician is now demonstratng once more by performance how Ittle his pre-election promises really meant.

All these liberals can do now is cry into their milk and act as if they don't know how it all came about. They haven't even the decency to admit that they deliberately helped to sell a political fake to the people. They haven't even the "morality" (which they're ame.

nothing but cheap demagogy; and that the only fair deal the American people will get politically will be through their own party, a labor party.

came a functionary on Walter Reuther's payroll, Nathanson was fired by the Commercial Tool and Die Company in Detroit. He was fingered as a "communist" by J. J. Griffin, head of the Tool and Die Craftsmen, a company-dominated outfit. It was UAW Local 157 that took up his case and got his job back for him.

Nathanson's own history is an object lesson on what his present policy leads to. But the issue involved is even broader than it appears on the surface. Let the union leaders and the employers succeed in barring "communists" from employment today and tomorrow they will be working together to fire "communists" already employed. Given an opportunity, the employers and the reactionary union officials will drive from the plants all unionists who oppose either company policies or the policies of the union bureaucrats.

Nathanson's speech, which reflects the thinking of the top UAW leadership, indicates a truly sinister trend. If allowed to take root and flourish inside the UAW it will poison the union. The UAW was built on the principles of union solidarity, no discrimination, democratic discussion. It will be preserved only if the auto workers cleanse the union of the alien and destructive policies typified by Nathanson's speech to the West Coast corporation agents.

Potential Fellow-Draftees!

By John F. Petrone

Bill Mauldin anticipated my complaint with one of the cartoons included at the end of his latest book, Back Home. It shows a feeble, evil-eyed old man, sitting in a well-padded easy chair at his club, brandishing his cane and quavering in his loudest tones: "I say it's war, Throckmorton, and I say let's fight." It's one of my favorite Mauldin cartoons, but it never draws a chuckle out of me.

Don't get me wrong. I am not trying to substitute an old-age theory of war for the tried and tested Marxist analysis of the capitalist causes of war. And I am not proposing a panacea that would abolish war without abolishing its capitalist causes. All I am doing is calling attention to a certain relationship that gripes me to the point of fury.

My blood began to boil faster when I read in the Feb. 19 N. Y. Times of a hearing by the House Foreign Affairs Committee on further Marshall Plan appropriations. Charles A. Eaton, Republican congressman from New Jersey, was quoted as saying: "Why don't we send our soldiers into Greece and clean up the guerrillas?" He was also quoted as saying that "we might save ourselves some money" if American troops accompanied dollars to Greece, and that "sooner or later we're going to have to do something there.'

It didn't make me feel any better to learn from the same story that the administration spokesman to whom these remarks were directed evaded giving a straight answer, and that after the hearing Eaton told reporters "his question was not meant to be an outright recommendation that American troops take the field against the guerrillas. He contended, however, that it was a question that should undergo debate, and that he had posed it for that reason.'

Running to the nearest Who's Who, I soon found my worst suspicions confirmed. Eaton, it disclosed, was born Mar. 29, 1868 - less than three years after the end of the Civil War. During the Spanish-American War, when he was 30, he didn't get a taste of that well-known character-building Army life because he was employed as a Baptist minister. When the First World War came, he was 49 and still earning his keep by preaching. Some ministers went into the Army as chaplains, but Eaton did his bit in New York as head of the national service section of the U. S. Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation from Nov. 1917-1919. This experience must have broadened his horizons because he gave up preaching and became head of the "industrial relations department" of National Lamp Works, Genéral Electric, and describes himself in Who's Who as an "expert in industrial relations," among other things. In 1925 he was rewarded with a seat in Congress, was present at the age of 73 to vote "aye" on U. S. entry into the Second World War. and today, on the eve of his 83rd birthday, hopes to be around to do the same on World War III.

I respect old age as much as the next man and I don't want to pit one age group against another, but it seems to me incidents of this kind ought to infuriate other young men as much as it does me. Potential fellow-draftees! I say that sooner or later we're going to have to do something here so that we won't have to "save ourselves some money" by a trip to Greece. Unfortunately, I have not yet worked out a suitable plan. At first I thought of forming a League to Counteract Belligerent Dotards, except that Attorney General Clark would quickly stick it on his "subversive" list. Does anybody else have a plan?'

And please don't tell me that young capitalist politicians also preach war and follow policies designed to bring it about - I know it as well as you do. But with them I at least have the small satisfaction of hoping a few may not be able to escape the draft and a taste of their own medicine. While the worst that can happen to the Eatons, if they live long enough to see what they so fervently desire, is a quick end from an atomic bomb. And I say that's too good for them.

Teachers with "Conviction"

By Ruth Johnson

College teachers aren't what they ought to be, according to a man who should know - Dr. Harry J. Carman, dean of Columbia College. Addressing a forum of 300 educators on Feb. 17, he explained that most teachers don't know how to teach, are dull and uninspiring, and "suffer from mental inertia."

All of these charges will be confirmed heartily by hundreds of thousands of students who struggle to keep awake during dull and fruitless lectures. But they won't learn from Carman just why they find the faculty seats full of incompetents, or what can be done to improve the situation.

We can find the answer though, in the qualifications that Carman lists: "integrity and responsibility," and "breadth of training, a sound foundation of general education and an understanding of society as a whole." Carman especially emphasized that to be a good professor a man must have "conviction." That is, "he should be one who, without recourse to propaganda, can stimulate the student to formulate for himself an intelligent and satisfying philosophy of life."

But how can a man or woman who answers these needs continue to teach in the face of the national witch-hunts? The red-baiting hysteria on the campuses has already picked off a mildly reformist leader of the Socialist Party in Michigan, and six professors in Seattle suspected of being friendly to Stalinism. Several states are preparing laws to deprive any suspected radical of the right to teach in public universities. The capitalists want teachers with only one "conviction" - the conviction that "free enterprise" is the holy of holies.

That can't be reconciled with Carman's requirement of "an understanding of society as a whole." No one can understand society today without a study of Marxism, the science of political economy. To try to explain economics or politics with-Marxism is like trying to explain atomic energy without nuclear physics.

Nor can a teacher stimulate "an intelligent and Phila. Settlement satisfying philosophy of life," without exposing the ruthless practices of capitalism that make cynics and opportunists of all its adherents.

The sharp sword of dismissal hovers over any The sharp sword of dismissal hovers over any professor who dares to point out the nature of capitalism and the need for a new composition of capitalism and the need for a new economic order based on the needs of mankind. The school system from grade school to university, is based not on the welfare of students, but on the aims sought by the ruling class. Text books are written, lectures tailored and policy determined with one idea only: to glorify and preserve imperialism and justify World War III.

The only "men of conviction" welcomed in this world of Wall Street academics, are men with the "conviction" that their future depends on being intellectual yes-men of capitalism.

Lesson in Democracy

By Fred Hart

How are the laws of this country made, anyway? Every school child is taught that our laws are exclusively the product of the democratic process. Whenever the majority of the people decides in favor of a particular law, the matter is settled. At least, this is what the school books say.

Well, the people of Oregon have just received a different lesson in law-making.' At the last election, the majority of the Oregon voters cast their ballots in favor of old age pensions, securing $50 a month to every man over 65 and every woman over 60. This meager sum was to be paid by the state.

The sponsors of this measure apparently obtained some excellent legal advice. Here is how Newsweek, Feb. 21, reports some of the clauses of this pension law:

"The drafters had tried to make it airtight: Apparently, it provided that any conflict with the (state) constitution was null, it forbade future amendments by the legislature, and it outlawed judicial review by the courts. Finally, it provided that any state funds, whether previously earmarked by law or not, could be dipped into to pay the pensions."

But although the people voted for all this, there will be no old age pensions paid in Oregon. Why not? Because of a "ruling" made by Attorney General George Neuner. Placing himself above the constitution and above the courts, this gentleman "ruled the pension measure to be 'incomplete, inoperative, and not self-executing.' Labelling it merely a 'statement of policy' he said it had no effect unless the legislature acted." The legislature, of course, refused to act.

From where did this individual derive his powers to flout the will of the majority? The office of Attorney General does not even delegate authority to review laws (which is the function of the courts) but only to enforce them.

For his part, George ("I am the law") Neuner has merely taken his cue from the U.S. Attorney General, Tom Clark. On a national scale this lawyer has been doing much the same thing as was done by his colleague in Oregon. Clark has just "ruled" that the office of the President has "inherent powers." The same Clark had previously "ruled" that a whole number of organizations and minority parties (among them the Socialist the following afternoon.

Workers Party) were "subversive." If Clark could do this, why couldn't Neuner rule null and void a pension law?

Apparently it is the Attorney Generals - federal and state - who have decided that they have the power to make and unmake laws at will. What we have here are multiplying instances of individuals who claim the right to act as do fascist rulers and other dictators, namely, to proclaim themselves to be the law.

THAT'S DIFFERENT - Dr. Ralph Spitzer has been fired from Oregon State University because he supports the Lysenko theory of genetics, Oregon State President Strand announced. (In the Soviet Union teachers are fired for opposing this theory.) Strand indignantly denied that Spitzer and another professor were purged because they belong to the Progressive Party.

LAST HIRED, FIRST FIRED - Negro workers are already "in the midst of a depression," Urban League Director Lester A. Granger concludes after studying reports of layoffs in key industrial cities. One out of every 4 Negro workers in Omaha is jobless and 71% of those on relief in Detroit are Negroes.

SWEAR OR STAY OUT! - Following in the footsteps of Oklahoma, the Arkansas Legislature now has before it a bill requiring students and teachers in state-supported schools to sign affidavits that they do not belong to the Communist
