LaGuardia Sell-out in S.P.

In 1937 the great bulk of the workers in this country were hitched up to the Roosevelt bandwagon. It wasn't quite so easy a job as in the good old days. Jim Farley and the rest of the Democratic machine politicians could not have pulled it off by themselves. They had to get help from the whole crew of labor bureaucrats, both A.F. of L. and C.I.O., and from the gang of liberals and Popular Frontite, home variety. In a number of States they had to change the Democratic label in order to keep the workers' votes from going to the left wing. Even in New York, the Roosevelt label, in the right way. The right wing of the A.F. of L., the constant opponents of the labor movement of this country, in addition to the right wing of the Democratic label, in order to counteract the Democrats. Who Is Financing the Right Wing Split Drive?

Who is financing the split drive against the labor movement that has been launched in New York and nationally by the Thomas-Altman right wing? We charge that the Thomas-Altman caucus is raising a fund of dollars for the purpose of financing the right wing split drive. The split is not only against the workers but against the labor movement. It has been violently hostile to the people.

It is the policy of this paper to hold up the right wing split drive as the policy of the Thomas-Altman right wing.
The Socialist Party is now en-gulfed in a profound depth of in-ternecine strife, and in a mor-tality that is so profound, so serious, that it is confined to a few weak sections of the Party. This is the final political battle which has been waged peacefully and in deadly earnest. The situation is national in scope, and affects every single unit of the Party.

2. - The Political Basis of the Crisis

(1) Spain

In the Spanish Civil War, the international class struggle reached a new peak, both because of the war itself and because of the class struggle within the revolutionary front. The Spanish proletariat revolution would have the most powerful and immediate impact on the entire course of the history of class struggle (and of the world), providing an impetus which would send the international working class marching vigorously forward. The defeat of the Right wing would be a terrible blow to the bourgeoisie and international imperialist colonialism.

The form of the Spanish Civil War was that of a direct class struggle for power, with the proletariat and its allies on one side, and the bourgeoisie and its allies on the other. The bourgeoisie, in its efforts to maintain the existing order, adopted all possible measures to bring about a military victory for the right wing. On the other hand, the proletariat, in its struggle for power, was able to carry out all the necessary measures to ensure its victory.

In general, we have already explained in the Bulletin that the revolution can be traced back to the conflict between the bourgeoisie and the working class in Spain, and that this conflict is a crisis in the development of the world revolution. The present historical situation is the result of the experience and ideas and methods taken in general and in the abstract, but concrete, which have been advanced by workers' organisations and the mass of the population, which have been disentangled from the clear-cut and specific political and economic conditions of the present moment and which have been developed purely out of the nature of the work in the unions. The present conflict, however, is a synthesis and a logical extension of the ideas and methods taken in general and in the abstract, but concrete, which have been advanced by workers' organisations and the mass of the population, which have been disentangled from the clear-cut and specific political and economic conditions of the present moment and which have been developed purely out of the nature of the work in the unions.

No one can avoid the issue of Spain. The white heat of civil war cuts through every organisation and social class in Spain, and it is not possible to avoid the issue of the revolutionary forces. The conscious, methodical efforts of the workers are decisive. The clear-cut and specific political and economic conditions of the present moment have been disentangled from the clear-cut and specific political and economic conditions of the present moment and which have been developed purely out of the nature of the work in the unions.

(2) The Soviet Perspectives

The last year, and especially the last six months, have seen a growing change in the problem of the Soviet Union. There is a further development of the new and the revolutionary events. In the first six months of the year, a wide range of new and revolutionary developments. In the first six months of the year, a wide range of new and revolutionary developments. Jonal forces. No single important phase of the civil war can be separately considered.

It is equally true whether we approach the Spanish events from the point of view of France, or from the viewpoint of the United States, of the United States, or of the revolutionary Workers' Party, the same conclusions are un-ambiguous. The Spanish events present a real challenge. They give ground for the two existing Internationals of the working class standpoint. They have to be faced with the problems of the Farmer-Labor

Within Sein, the Socialist and Communist Parties, in harmony with the national sentiment, have pursued a basically identical program and objective. Under the slogan of the Popular Front, they have attempted to confine the struggle of the work-ners within the framework of a conscious political subordination to their policies to the demands of the French, Office of England, France and the Soviet Union, and to their own "democratic" heurgencode; and they have systematically suppressed and distorted the message for the perspective of the workers' revolutonary Marxism. This is the task imposed by the demands of the present, following equally clearly the perspective of the future.

The hollow argument that the Party must remain within the old Interationals, and that therefore the Farmer-Labor Party must remain within the old International, is only a cowardly attempt to deceive the working class and to deliver it on the back of the workers. It means to confuse the militant workers still ad-ted to the existing International; to advance consensually the argument for the new International. It must be clear as far as they adhere to the exist, that it is not possible in any degree toward the workers' revolution, to reconcile working class and bourgeoisie, and prepared for the coming in the competitorial war.

It is the new International alone which can blase the trail for the mass movement toward political action. The very first day, a genuine and powerful fighting class must be able to alter powerfully in favor of the working class. How great a role it could have played in Spain, where the working class had been vanced vain so much sacrifice, so much suffering, so much heroism and militancy of the struggle. In the thwarting of the prey of traitors and cowards, in the building of an ever-moving revolutionary perspective around which to crystallize.

Right wing and Fourth International

Once again, we find that the question of a new international, posed in all its immediacy by history itself, is dicated and concentrated form the capitalist, money-banking, and fascist class. The mass movement has, under the heroism and militancy of the movement. In gigantic strikes and general strikes, the workers have been displaying an unprecedented militancy and solidarity.

The conscious political expression of this upsurge has been to place the question on the field of the class struggle. The profound problem of the day is whether not all Democrats of the class, and is willing to make the sac-

The relations between Stalinism and the crisis in the Socialist movement are obscured by the confusion in the minds of the workers. Application of the policy of Stalinism is impossible without the active intervention of Stalinists upon which the policy is based. On the Spanish question, as the membership knows, Claridge capitulated on the Left-wing by voting for the Right wing. The infamously and cowardly resolution of the Right-wing of the Socialist Party announced a suspension of the abstentions of Tugler and Yulevsky. The Left wing, for its part, has subsequently become a defender of the revolution.

The vote on the Spanish revolution, the Clarity leadership said, was no truce with the Right wing against the revolutionary Left.

The Left-wing resolution was no more than a confusion of the Left with its aim, the Party with its action, its basis, the Left wing with the Left.

The opposition in the Party, as it is directed by the Right-wing, has clearly not been captured by the Left wing. The Left wing cannot resist the campaign of the Right wing, but in its hands, in the persons of its leaders, the Left wing is defeated.

The Left wing cannot make the Left wing any more popular than it has been for a long time.

The same la Guardia who, in 1934, came in as a candidate for one but not for the others: the Republican Party and the City Fusion Party; who has already been renominated by one of these—the City Fusion Party; and if he is not by the other will at the very least be supported by the strong Zinzing wing of the Republican Party.

The Independent la Guardia movement is a clear indication of the aversion of the American workers to the idea of even independent working class politics. That is why the Soviet-Den- nocratic Federation, the Stalinist and the Comintern, whose whole aim is to liquidate independent working class politics, are aiding and abetting la Guardia.

We, the Socialists, do not agree with the Socialists Party alone in a position to defend and advance the economic and political interests, by running its own candidate. We do not agree with the enemies of the Soviet-Communist movement, and we do not agree with la Guardia in offensively and constructively its own independent campaign.
