Electors' Prove Need For Independent Labor Action

By H. BARRIE

The balloting of the New South Wales Labor party was held for a very good reason—because it was a failure, because after six years of the party's rule in the state, more than 120,000 unemployed, 12,000,000 unreasonably, and the close trend of labor. It cannot be said that the New South Wales Labor party has failed for a very good reason.

The results are in. The Labor party has been returned to power with a mandate from the people, and the state skill center is now in the hands of the Socialists. The electorate has spoken, and the Socialists have been returned with an even greater majority than in the last election.

The Socialists have won a landslide victory, capturing 45 of the 50 seats in the state parliament. The Labor party won 4 seats, the Country party won 1 seat, and the Liberal party won none.

The Socialists have promised to continue their policies of social justice, workers' rights, and economic reform. They have vowed to fight for a fairer distribution of wealth, to eliminate poverty, and to ensure that every person has access to quality education and healthcare.

The Socialists' victory is a testament to the power of grassroots organizing and community mobilization. They have built a broad-based movement that has resonated with the people of the state.

The Socialists have also promised to continue their work towards a more equitable and sustainable future. They have pledged to invest in renewable energy, to protect the environment, and to ensure that the state's natural resources are used in a responsible and sustainable manner.

The Socialists' victory is a victory for the people of the state. It is a victory for social justice, for workers' rights, and for a better future for all.

The Socialists have won a historic victory, and they will continue to work tirelessly to build a better future for the people of the state.
Trotsky Defends Asylum In Slashing Reply to Toledano

The Trotskyite reply to Toledano's attacks on his asylum is a revealing document. Trotsky's eloquent and impassioned defense of his political principles and his commitment to the international workers' movement is a testament to his unwavering dedication to the cause of socialism.

In response to Toledano's charges, Trotsky provides a detailed and comprehensive analysis of the political situation, emphasizing the need for solidarity among all workers and the importance of rejecting the capitalist system. His reply is a call to action, urging workers to unite and fight for a better future.

Trotsky's arguments are grounded in historical facts and logical analysis, making his reply a powerful testament to the enduring relevance of his ideas. The Trotskyite defense of asylum is a striking example of the ongoing debate between the Trotskyists and Toledano on the issue of political asylum and the struggle for international solidarity.
