Nationwide Campaign For War Referendum Launched by SWP
Workers Asked to Help Circulate Petitions; Raise $10,000 to Fight War; Distribute Leaflets by Hundreds of Thousands

By MAL DRAFTER
Secretary, Workers Committee

The campaign for a people’s referendum on war is launching.

The Party Convention declaration on the most important topic of our time, that is bringing all the forces of the party to bear upon a single issue—this gives the opportunity of time, concentrating our activity to develop a mass movement against war.

Just as a total convergence of all the burning issues of the day, so we must focus the movement and organize it into a mass campaign aimed at winning the people to the people’s referendum on war.

PUBLIC VOTE ON WAR

Campaign Objectives

The objectives of the campaign are defined as follows in the Appeal: First, to win the public vote on war. And the second, to win the referendums in the cities and towns. This is the anti-war message of the people, to war.

We will distribute 10,000 copies of the pamphlet: “Let the government vote on war” throughout the country.

We will secure 35,000 signatures of the appeal to the newspapers for a People’s Vote on War.

We will raise by September 21, a membership drive to double the SWP membership.

The Appeal to the public will consist of eight 8-page broadsides, each one different.

Up to Branches

These are the first steps of the campaign. They are by no means the last. For these objectives are printed in the Appeal. Every member of the SWP, from the officers to the new members, must give time and energy to the branches in carrying out the campaign.

We want to develop mass action for the referendum campaign. More of that later. But we will emphasize right from the start that the campaign for a people’s referendum is a struggle for the control of the government and the prevention of war.

We want the branches to develop a total campaign. From the grass roots up. No local action, no branch action, no committee action. We want the campaign to be carried out by all of the people in the branches, not just the members.

The program for a people’s referendum must be carried into the branches, the unions, the schools, the factories, the neighborhoods, the places where we meet, and everywhere we go, even if they have never reached the branches.

We want the branches to develop a total campaign. From the grass roots up. No local action, no branch action, no committee action. We want the campaign to be carried out by all of the people in the branches, not just the members.

Why and How It Started; What All Workers Can Learn From It

In Minneapolis the A.P.L. building Trades Council and the Minneapolis Building Trades Council, which were once the A.P.L. and now have become independent organizations, have announced that the dispute between the employers and the building trades councils will continue. The dispute involves the question of whether the employers will accept the terms of the new agreement of the building trades councils.

In other words, the employers are seeking to impose a new contract on the building trades councils without the consent of the building trades councils.

The dispute began last week when the building trades councils refused to accept the new contract of the employers. The building trades councils have been seeking to negotiate a new contract with the employers for some time, but the employers have been unwilling to do so.

Joe Hill wasn't the kind of man who left much of a mark on history. He was a skilled worker, a fighter, and a poet. He moved west to Chicago and worked in a variety of unions.

When he got to America, he gave him a job in the textile mill in Fall River. He moved west to Chicago and worked in a variety of unions.
