Behind the Lines

By GEORGE STERN
Author, "Hidden Life," Last Chapter of Stalin's 30-year Tyranny.

Despite the publication of books, the American people are not ready to hear the truth about the Russian tyrant. The press, radio, and television have refused to give Stalin the exposure he so richly deserves. Soviet leaders are desperately trying to keep the outside world from learning the truth about their regime. They are doing so, however, by using propaganda, censorship, and surveillance to control the flow of information. The nations of the world must stand up to the Soviet Union and demand an end to its interference in the affairs of other countries.

The war is not over, and Stalin's goals remain unchanged. He is still trying to expand his empire and control other nations. The United States and its allies must continue to work together to prevent Stalin from achieving his objectives. The struggle for freedom and democracy is ongoing.

PACKINGHOUSE WORKERS WANT ACTION POLICY

By WILLIAM SHERMON

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The packinghouse workers want action, not just words, as they struggle for better working and living conditions.

They are requesting an end to the use of slave labor in the packinghouses. They also demand improvements in housing, education, and health care. They are making these demands despite the fact that they are working in a difficult and dangerous environment.

The workers are demanding a living wage that allows them to afford basic necessities. They are also seeking improvements in the working conditions, such as better lighting, ventilation, and safety equipment.

The workers have organized and are standing strong, despite the challenges they face. Their struggle is an important part of the fight for a better future for all workers.
Independence of the Ukraine and Ukrainian Sudderlieh Muddle

By Leon Trotsky

In one of the first satirical publications which appeared in this issue of the Soviet Union, there is an article entitled "The Ukraine". The author, who is a former student of the University of Kiev, makes a very convincing argument for the political independence of Ukraine. The author states that Ukraine is a historical entity that has been fighting for its freedom since the times of tsarist rule. He also argues that Ukraine has the right to self-determination and that it should be granted its independence.

Trotsky also makes a strong case for the political independence of Ukraine. He argues that Ukraine has a rich cultural heritage and a distinct identity that is distinct from that of other regions of the Soviet Union. He also points out that Ukraine has a long history of resistance to foreign rule, and that it has a strong tradition of democracy and freedom.

The author concludes by calling for the immediate recognition of Ukraine's independence by the international community. He argues that this is not only a moral imperative, but also a practical one, as it is the only way to ensure peace and stability in the region.

The article is a clear and concise argument for the political independence of Ukraine, and it is sure to be read by many with great interest.
THE NEGO QUESTION

By J. R. JOHNSON
The War and the Negro

It should now be clear to every Negro that the Communist Party is today as great a disaster to the Negro people as it was in the American South. For the first time in history, the Negroes of the United States have been forced to decide whether they are going to be free or not. They have been forced to call upon all the workers of the world to fight against imperialism and capitalism, and to join in a worldwide movement for the freedom of all the people of the world. They have been forced to call upon all the students of the world to fight against the communist-urban revolutionaries of the world. They have been forced to call upon all the workers of the world to fight against the communist-urban revolutionaries of the world.

The NEGO question is, therefore, a question of life or death for the Negro people. It is a question of whether we are going to be free or not. It is a question of whether we are going to be able to live in a free country or not. It is a question of whether we are going to be able to build a better world for ourselves or not.

REVOLUTIONISTS NEEDED

Russia has been revolutionary socialism ever since the days of Lenin and Trotsky. Today, the NEGO question is as urgent as it was then. The NEGO question is as urgent as it was then. The NEGO question is as urgent as it was then.

The Stalinist war line has developed a new wrinkle.

The characteristic of the war is now recognition of a second front and recognition of the active support of the non-Russian World. This new wrinkle has been added to the Stalinist war line because of the fact that the war is now a world war.
