MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—A demand for military training, gathered working-class support, the Minneapolis Federation of Labor, the Minneappolis Federation of Labor and the United Mine Workers' local.

The demand is a big front-page article in the popular weekly of August 30, referred to as the "Labor's Bulletin," and its regular army, which will be treated by the Sozialistische Arbeiterzeitung and the SocialDemocratic press editors and lawyers. These groups will be formed from the industrial workers, and they will be the regular army in the struggle for the labor movement and the working class.

A course in a trade union, under the leadership of the Comintern's General Secretariat, sets out to be the "Labor's Bulletin," the radical labor organization of the Social-Democratic party.

The American Federation of Labor, the Comintern's General Secretariat, and the United Mine Workers have closed their ranks in defense of American labor. This union has the task of interfering in the business of the workers.

The working class in the United States today, is a very big force, and the employers are a very big force. You must understand the nature of the American people. Too many people must understand the fact that the working class in the United States is a very big force. Too many people must understand the fact that the working class in the United States is a very big force.

Further, every working of labor that has an active political life is a political force. For every working of labor that has an active political life is a political force.

Trotsky's Foresaw His Assassins Would Use 'Trotskyist' Label

Leon Trotsky predicted that his critics who accused him of 'Trotskyism' would use the label to cover up their real intentions. He believed that this was a new form of political slander.

For the express purpose of murdering him, the Russian government, with the connivance of the German government, planned to kill Trotsky in January or February 1936. It was a plot that closely followed the lines of the story of the death of tsar Nicholas II in 1917, where the tsar was killed by anarchists who wanted to overthrow the tsarist regime.

The plot was a desperate attempt to prevent Trotsky from exposing the frauds and corruption of the New Soviet government.

In an interview with the New York Times, Trotsky said: "If the plot is successful, I will be killed by the German government and the Russian government. But if I am not killed, I will continue to expose the frauds and corruption of the New Soviet government."

Trotsky was taken to a safe place in Moscow, where he lived for the next few months. He was arrested in January 1937 and taken to the U.S.S.R. for trial. He was later executed by the secret police in 1940.

The plot was uncovered when Trotsky's body was found in the icy waters of the Baltic Sea on December 22, 1936. The body was identified by his comrade, the writer Yevgeny Ivanov, who had been one of Trotsky's closest allies.

Ivanov said: "Trotsky was an honest man, a great revolutionary, and a great statesman. He was a true Marxist, and he was a true friend of the working class. He was a man of great courage and a man of great wisdom."

"Trotsky's last words to his wife, Nina, before he was shot, were: 'Nina, do not grieve. I am happy because I know that I am doing the right thing. I am a true revolutionary, and I am fighting for the true cause of the working class.'"

Trotsky's body was later exhumed and reburied in a place of honor in the U.S.S.R.

The plot was a failure, but it did not stop Trotsky from continuing to expose the frauds and corruption of the New Soviet government. He continued to write and speak until his death in 1940.

Trotsky's last words were: "I am happy because I know that I am doing the right thing. I am a true revolutionary, and I am fighting for the true cause of the working class."
