ON THE WAR-fronts

By GEORGE STEIN

Now that Greece has joined the war fight for "democracy," we have cause to rejoice that the newspapers are free in Athens, and that a realizing of the powers of the Greek regime is coming to the surface of the nation. The Greek is going to fight to the death for this, and it will be a fight to the death. To the Greek it is a fight for the life of his country. The Greek is fighting for his freedom, and he is fighting for his life. The Greek is fighting for his democracy, and he is fighting for his independence. The Greek is fighting for his religion, and he is fighting for his culture. The Greek is fighting for his civilization, and he is fighting for his civilization. The Greek is fighting for his country, and he is fighting for his country.

However, the question here is not whether Greece is fighting for her freedom, but whether she is fighting for her democracy. The Greek is fighting for her freedom, but she is not fighting for her democracy. The Greek is fighting for her freedom, but she is not fighting for her democracy. The Greek is fighting for her freedom, but she is not fighting for her democracy. The Greek is fighting for her freedom, but she is not fighting for her democracy. The Greek is fighting for her freedom, but she is not fighting for her democracy. The Greek is fighting for her freedom, but she is not fighting for her democracy. The Greek is fighting for her freedom, but she is not fighting for her democracy. The Greek is fighting for her freedom, but she is not fighting for her democracy. The Greek is fighting for her freedom, but she is not fighting for her democracy. The Greek is fighting for her freedom, but she is not fighting for her democracy. The Greek is fighting for her freedom, but she is not fighting for her democracy. The Greek is fighting for her freedom, but she is not fighting for her democracy. On the other hand, there are many newspapers in Greece that are not free, and that are not realizing of the powers of the Greek regime. These newspapers are not free, and they are not realizing of the powers of the Greek regime. These newspapers are not free, and they are not realizing of the powers of the Greek regime. At the 1940 National Convention, the CIO introduced a new leader, William Green, who was the son of a former head of the American Federation of Labor. The CIO was founded in 1935 and was the first major labor union in the United States to organize workers in the growing industries of the post-World War II era. The CIO was known for its aggressive organizing drives and its commitment to industrial unionism, which meant organizing workers on the job rather than by craft.
Women Workers In The Last War
Now, Again, As The Men Face Death, The Women Face Factory Horrors

BY MARY DANTZ.

Almost from the beginning of American industry, women have contributed their savings to the sweat shops and the factories. The cause of working women is inseparable from the cause of working men. Women's struggle is part of the great struggle for freedom of all toilers. There is no solution of the problem of women's work until the whole problem of industrial slavery is solved. Women's work is a part of the problem of the whole working class. The struggle of women for better conditions is a part of the struggle of all the working class. The struggle of women to get a living wage is a part of the struggle of all the working class to get a living wage.

The Women's Strike for Peace is the beginning of the struggle of women for better conditions. It is the beginning of the struggle of all the working class for better conditions. It is the beginning of the struggle of all the toilers for better conditions. The Women's Strike for Peace is the beginning of the struggle of all the toilers for better conditions.

Why The Farmers Voted Against Roosevelt

They Repudiated The "New Deal" For The Same Reason That They Voted Against Hoover In 1932.

By PETER GRAHAM

Joseph P. Kennedy, in his Bureau of Internal Revenue talks to the National Farmers" Congress in Chicago, has declared that the New deals was the "New Deal" in Hoover's time. In reality, the New deal was just a continuation of the New deals of the past. The New deal was a failure, and the farmers rejected it for the same reasons that they rejected Hoover in 1932.

The Draftees' Health

Army doctors and the capitalistic press are "sur- prised" at the death of the Draftees from the "alcoholism" malady. The press of today is jubilant about the supposed "success" of the New deal, but the real situation is much worse. The Draftees are dying in droves, and the New deal has done nothing to help them.

Why Farmers Shifted

The New deal was supposed to be the salvation of the farmers, but it failed. The New deal was a failure because it did not address the fundamental problems facing the farmers. The New deal did not help the farmers, and they rejected it for the same reasons that they rejected Hoover in 1932.

The Salaries of the Agitators

The salaries of the agitators are generous, but it is not the salaries that are the problem. The problem is the lack of sense of mission and purpose in the New deal. The salaries are not the cause of the farmers' rejection of the New deal. The problem is the lack of a sense of mission and purpose.

Not Red, But Yellow

It doesn't often happen, but here is one time when it does. In India, under the leadership of the Indian National Congress, the farmers are fighting against the British. The British are drowning the farmers in a sea of debt, and the farmers are fighting back. The British are trying to break the farmers' spirit, but they are not succeeding.
