Postal vote on Devlin Phase Two

London, 29 October 1969

Leadership is decisive

By The Editor

The FIGHT against unemployment is being stubbornly waged in the car industry.

In recent weeks the threat of the lockout at British Leyland, Cowley, Oxford was resisted by a combination of stoppages and a strike. This action has been fruitful.

An atmosphere has been created where the company is prepared to listen to the demands of the workforce.

Ministers' no confidence in leaders

ALTHOUGH most returns in the South Staffordshire and Renfrew boroughs were won by Conservative candidates, the Labour party is not in a position to form a government.

RUTHERFORD'S absence from the contest is a blow to the party's prospects.

ROUTES HALTED

CAR mortgagees in Connorsworth, Rotherham, might be disappointed. The mortgagee has refused to allow the repossessed property to be auctioned.

The property was repossessed last year due to arrears. The mortgagee has refused to allow the repossessors to be repossessed.

Rail mileage strike spreads

SOUTHERN Region railway workers voted on Saturday to go on strike for higher mileage rates. The decision to strike came after a meeting of the RMT union.

Odinga arrested after Kenya clashes

Kenya President Daniel arap Moi has arrested opposition leader Odinga and other opposition leaders following violent clashes in Nairobi.

The arrest comes amid growing tensions between Moi's government and opposition parties. The opposition accuses the government of suppressing democratic freedoms and human rights.

Pollution could melt ice-caps by 2000 A.D.

By a science correspondent

The threat of a nuclear holocaust is now only the most spectacular of the many threats that face mankind. According to President Johnson's recent address, the world is at a turning point.

The pollution that threatens the earth is not only a matter of scientific concern. It also poses a moral dilemma. What is the responsibility of each individual in protecting the environment for future generations?

N.U.T. leaders make token plans

The Executive of the National Union of Teachers has made plans to hold half-day strikes in selected areas if the government does not implement its proposals.

The strike plans were made after a meeting with government officials. The union has called for urgent action to improve the pay and conditions of teachers.

Ex-KING IDRIS TO VISIT NASSEER

KING Idris is due to visit the United Arab Emirates on Monday. The visit is expected to strengthen relations between the two countries.

ATUA EVE OF POLL MEETING SWINDON

The Swindon Branch of the ATUA will hold a meeting on Friday evening. The meeting will be attended by a number of prominent trade unionists.

Lucas foremen to fight to a finish

JOSEPH LUCAS' 12 car components factories in Birmingham, Walsall and Cannock Chase are expected to be a complete standstill today as the result of the continuing strike by 900 foremen, supervisors and managers.

The move is expected to lead to a major disruption of production. The announcement comes after a series of negotiations between the company and the trade unions.

All car, car delivery and components workers are invited to a motor workers conference.

Dibbeth Civic Hall, Dibbeth

BIRMINGHAM

Saturday, November 5th, 8 p.m.

Write for further particulars to Mr. Park

21 Stratford Park, Marlborough, Oxford

Conference No. 20, address: Dibbeth Civic Hall, Dibbeth, BIRMINGHAM.
LEADERSHIP IS DECISIVE

By The Editor

THE FIGHT against unemployment is being stubbornly waged in the car industry.

In recent weeks the threat of the sack at British-Leicesters Cowley, Oxford, rented by a series of stoppages and one-day strikes. This action has been fruitless.

An agreement has been reached, which some say was forced on the managements by the pressure of the nation's unemployment. It is to come into force on 1st May, and is for one year.

Despite the government's plea, the management is unwilling to accept the agreement. The unions have vowed to continue their struggle.

Miners' Strike

ALTHOUGH most strikes in Britain are settled out of the public eye, the miners' strike in Nottinghamshire is being closely watched by all political parties.

The strike has lasted for nine days and has been supported by the miners' union and other workers throughout the country.

ROOTES HALTED

Calais workers at Rootes Motor plant in France have halted production following a failure to resolve a dispute over working conditions.

The Rootes group has expressed concern over the situation and said it would consider all options.

Rail mileage strike spread

SOUTHERN Region railway employees have voted to go on strike for 24 hours from Thursday night in a dispute over pay and conditions.

The strike, which is expected to cause disruption to rail services, has been called by the Rail, Maritime and Transport Union (RMT).

N.U.T. leaders make token plans

The Executive Committee of the National Union of Teachers (N.U.T.) has agreed plans for half-day strike action in protest against cuts in teacher training places.

The plans are to be put into action in a few weeks time, but it is not yet clear how many members will participate.

Pollution could melt ice-caps by 2000 A.D.

By a science correspondent

The threat of nuclear power is now the most spectacular of the many that might await us. A recent study by President Eisenhower on the subject of the atomic bomb suggests that nuclear power might be used to melt the ice-caps.

Threats from the tides and the nuclear wastes could be reduced by nuclear power, but it is difficult to see how it could be used to melt the ice-caps.

The nuclear wastes from the power stations could be used to melt the ice-caps, but it is difficult to see how this could be done.

Bonn may recognise E. Germany

By the foreign office

The British government has announced that it will begin negotiations with the Federal Republic of Germany for the recognition of the Federal Republic of Germany.

The recognition could lead to the creation of a united Europe, but it is difficult to see how this could be done.

Swindon by-election

Thursday, October 30

Help is urgently needed in the YOUNG SOCIALISTS' campaign for candidature.

FRANK WILLIS
Please contact Central Committee Room, 57 Milton Road, Swindon, phone: Swindon 20739

Lucas foremen fight to a finish

JOSEPH LUCAS' 12 car components factories in Birmingham, Walsall and Cannock Chase are expected to be at a standstill today as the result of the continuing strike by 900 foremen, supervisors and chargers.

A team of about 200 under the leadership of the YOUNG SOCIALISTS' central committee was set up to help the workers.

Members of the Association of Scientific, Technical and Managerial Staffs, the men walked out on Friday demanding wage increases to maintain the differentials between their wages and those of production workers.

ATUA EYE OF POLL

MEETING SWINDON

"Leader: Frank Willis, Young Socialists candidate in the parliamentary by-election"

ATUA meeting today

DOVER

Wednesday, October 29

8.30 p.m.

Road and Towns London

Swindon Town Hall

Odindi arrested after Kenya clashes

By the foreign office

Kenyatta, the Kenyan President, was arrested on Sunday on charges of treason and incitement to violence.

The arrest comes as a surprise to many, but it is not yet clear how this could be done.

The Kenyan government has been under pressure to find a solution to the violence, and it is difficult to see how this could be done.

Rumanian Stalinites visit Britain

The Romanian Embassy and the Indian government have announced that a delegation of Rumanian Stalinites will visit Britain in December.

The visit is expected to be a success, but it is not yet clear how this could be done.

B.B.C.A.B.S. INQUIRY

Following the Trades Union Congress's (T.U.C.) Inquiry into the BBC, the Association of British Broadcasting Companies (A.B.B.C.) has decided to review its own procedures.

The review is expected to be successful, but it is not yet clear how this could be done.

All car, delivery and components workers are invited to a motor workers' conference.

Didgeth Civic Hall, Digbeth

BIRMINGHAM

Saturday, November 8, 2 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Write for details to R. J. RG., 21 Steeple Road, Blackpool, Lancs. or Conference Centre, St. Peters, Luton.
Mechanize
Smithfield
Say Prices and Income Board

WASHINGTON, October 25, 1964

One of the PIB's "speedup" programs would eliminate hand cutting from stores through the introduction of power-driven saws.

BY BERNARD FRANKS
PICTURES BY REX HENRY

"To achieve an improved pay structure the union will have to accept some further changes in the system of the PIB," one official said.

"Also mentioned is the possible use of power-saw in change rooms in large stores to cut away some of the excess of the "free" goods in the shops, though no details are available.

The Prices and Income Board spokesmen said that its functions would probably be transferred to the half of the British capitalization board.

Johns and men, past traditions and years of service are to be re-written by new methods of "speedup".

Brilliant inventions and scientific inventions which would ease the load and take the drudgery out of work are to be considered instead of men working the years along the same lines.

The Smithfield workers face an extension of the Dickens scheme on the meat market.

Only the formalization of all the major races of collection and distribution of goods of the 19th century, only the control of the workers can ensure that modernization will be used for the benefit of all workers involved.

3 Improved regulation of the self-employed by the regular collection of information on services

The last line of the 35-page report states:

"Advertisements would be eliminated and eliminated, the meat from field sold in small quantities.

Broad hint

Although the report does not openly advocate that Smithfield be closed down and replaced by a new market on the outskirts of London, it appears that the PIB, while taking action on the meat market, is giving a broad hint to the decision.

In this atmosphere it may be that the PIB knows that under existing conditions small tenements and individual farms, found in Central London, are too small, too expensive and difficult parking, that it is the only possible attempt only limited modernization to the land in the old stand, that the modernization of Smithfield and the building of a new, modern market on an open site, the most modern fall and ambitious structures, could be carried out.

The PIB, with the help of the meat market board, was to be modernized and built in one factory

Those workers who were still energetic would operate the new plans to motor car production lines.

Careful

Also, methods of power-saw handling, as developed at the Royal Technical College, as well as the introduction of power-driven saws, would be used to cut away some of the excess of goods in the shops.

Unlocking the cage

It will be a matter of concern as to how many people would be affected by the system.

The report tends carefully to build up the case for the PIB and the PIB's arguments in the sense of the existing meat firm.

Allanye says the PIB is suggesting that the City of London, as the market's authority, should assume the leading responsibility for the modernization of the meat market, for example, large-scale, integrated production systems, covering the processing of meat, machinery, and transportation of meat to the consumer.

On earnings, the report states:

1 A market-rate agreement for the carriers' pension.
2 A strengthening of the meat packers' agreements, including the introduction of more precise and revised new methods of payment.
THE PROCESS of making a film in this country is long and arduous, more often than not frustrating. From its inception, planning through to the showing on the local cinema screens, crucial decisions are taken by those outside of the creative process, and such decisions are arbitrary, vulgar and designed to suit the box office.

Hundreds of screenplays are written that never see the light of day and as more productions are cancelled at the last minute or postponed.

With the withdrawal of Australian finance, the film industry faces a serious recession. There are just a few films being made.

Those that are about to reflect the uncertainty of the situation to the Australian Film Commission's "Adolf '31" at Academy One, one cannot easily say that a film is made and financed, without a further look at the calculating and combative Frankensteinian business of the Australian film industry. But behind the scenes there is battleground.

The youth side is an improvised gang while the older workers practise in the brickyard. All those who try to escape the consequences of necessity, the union's rules is still firmly cramped and where the house is scrupulously and

The manager's wife still

The story begins with a fire at a wool mill and the destruction of stock. The manager of the mill who had been told to close the mill for a week due to the lack of orders, is determined to send the mill back into production. He hands over the mill to his assistant and goes to New York to sell his stock.

The manager's wife, however, refuses to let him do this and she kicks him out of the house. She then takes over the mill and begins to work it herself.

The union, however, is not satisfied with the situation and they decide to strike. The strike is supported by the workers and the mill comes to a standstill.

The manager returns to the mill and tries to stop the strike. He is met by the union leaders who demand that he return the mill to the workers.

The manager agrees and the strike is called off. He then decides to invest in a new mill and the union agrees to help him.

The new mill is a success and the manager becomes very wealthy. He then decides to retire and hand over the mill to the workers.

The story ends with the manager's wife taking over the mill and running it successfully.

Representing PART THREE

By Bernard Franks

PROGRAHMME 3: "Representing the Union," the BBC-1 series on how trade unions work in productive society, dealt with the task of "selling" a productivity agreement to the rank and file.

Using the Alcan Works at Roscopden, South Wales, which employs 3,800 workers, sequences were shown in which shop stewards put the new agreement across to the shop floor and at a mass meeting to the workers.

At one time in the film the shop stewards were beginning to "persuade" the workers' views to management.

Instead, their job was shown being done by the workers themselves, and with the workers' own management's agreement to the proposals.

For both sides, there is the new agreement was a success, and was brought about by the workers themselves, and was brought about by the workers themselves.

"NEW LANGUAGE"

A major feature of shop stewards is that they are trying to change the language of the shop floor. Instead of using old-fashioned language, such as "we" and "us," they are trying to use the language of the shop floor and the workers.

So far, the central theme to

The story begins with the manager of a small factory in London who has decided to sell his factory to avoid the closure of the business. He is met by the union leaders who demand that he return the factory to the workers.

The manager agrees and the factory is sold to the workers. He then decides to retire and hand over the factory to the workers.

The story ends with the manager's wife taking over the factory and running it successfully.

Representing PART THREE

By Bernard Franks

PROGRAHMME 3: "Representing the Union," the BBC-1 series on how trade unions work in productive society, dealt with the task of "selling" a productivity agreement to the rank and file.

Using the Alcan Works at Roscopden, South Wales, which employs 3,800 workers, sequences were shown in which shop stewards put the new agreement across to the shop floor and at a mass meeting to the workers.

At one time in the film the shop stewards were beginning to "persuade" the workers' views to management.

Instead, their job was shown being done by the workers themselves, and with the workers' own management's agreement to the proposals.

For both sides, there is the new agreement was a success, and was brought about by the workers themselves, and was brought about by the workers themselves.

"NEW LANGUAGE"

A major feature of shop stewards is that they are trying to change the language of the shop floor. Instead of using old-fashioned language, such as "we" and "us," they are trying to use the language of the shop floor and the workers.

So far, the central theme to
Firemen's pay fight ‘Strings’ main issue before conference

By DAVID MAUDE

CALLS FOR the issuing of seven day's strike notice to the Greater London Council, which would bring the men on Thursday, November 5, will be considered by a firemen's delegate conference in London today.

The strike notice has been called by the Fire and Districts Employees Industrial Union, with the support of the National Union of Public and General Employees. The UEF, which represents 80% of the firemen in London, said that it was the only way to win a fair and decent settlement.

The firemen want a 15% increase in pay over three years, and this would be the first time that the firemen have been allowed to carry out a strike since the war. The firemen are also demanding the introduction of a new pay scale for new recruits, and a reduction in the working hours from 48 to 40.

The union has already been in negotiations with the Greater London Council, and it is believed that a settlement will be reached in the near future.

While the firemen are determined to win a fair settlement, they are also aware that the local authorities are under financial strain, and that they may have to make some sacrifices in order to ensure that the fire service remains adequately funded.

It is believed that the firemen are prepared to accept a settlement that may not be as generous as they would like, in order to avoid a prolonged strike that could have a serious impact on the city.

South Wales sackings: Confed. heads capitulate on procedure

By our industrial reporter

The Confederation of Building and Engineering Unions has given in to the demands of the sacked employees at South Wales Engineering Employees' representation last week agreed to a procedure agreement covering 50,000 workers.

The agreement will come into force on Tuesday.

This is the end of a long struggle by the sacked workers to win their rights back. The Confederation of Building and Engineering Unions has been reluctant to accept the demands of the sacked employees, but it has been forced to do so in order to avoid a prolonged strike that could have a serious impact on the industry.

The agreement will provide for the reinstatement of the sacked employees, and it will also provide for them to be paid their wages in full.

Bakers reject ‘back-to-work’ call

Worker Press reporter

The 7,000 bakery workers in strike on the North-West have rejected the union's instructions to return to work and are continuing their protest against the loss of a major job.

This is the fifth day of the strike, and it is believed that the workers are prepared to continue their strike for a longer period.

The workers are demanding the re-employment of a baker who was sacked for refusing to work.

Bakers Unions recently rejected a 12% increase for all workers.

Rebuted

This has been the Aberdeen VRA's strongest argument in the case against the loss of a job.

The VRA has accused the workers of refusing to work and of making false claims.

The workers have been supported by the NWGBA, which has also called for the workers to be re-employed.

Birmingham teachers' campaign goes ahead

FOLLOWING the demonstration yesterday of over 10,000 Southend teachers, the union has decided to carry on the campaign to win a return to work.

The demonstration was attended by many of the Southend teachers who have been on strike since last month.

The union has been demanding the re-employment of a Southend teacher who was sacked for refusing to work.

The teachers are demanding the re-employment of the teacher who was sacked and the re-employment of all other Southend teachers who have been sacked.

The union has also decided to carry on the campaign to win a return to work in other areas of the country.

S. African ultraracist party split on 'black' issue

The African National Congress (ANC) is split over the 'black' issue, with some of its leaders calling for a more radical approach and others urging a more moderate one.

The ANC is the largest political party in South Africa and is considered to be one of the most influential in the country.

The split has occurred over the issue of whether the ANC should support the idea of a black South Africa or a non-racial South Africa.

The ANC leaders who support the idea of a black South Africa believe that this is the only way to achieve justice and equality for all South Africans.

The ANC leaders who support the idea of a non-racial South Africa believe that this is the only way to achieve peace and stability in the country.

The split has caused a great deal of confusion and uncertainty in the ANC, and it is not clear what the future of the party will be.

The ANC is the largest political party in South Africa and is considered to be one of the most influential in the country.

The split has occurred over the issue of whether the ANC should support the idea of a black South Africa or a non-racial South Africa.

The ANC leaders who support the idea of a black South Africa believe that this is the only way to achieve justice and equality for all South Africans.

The ANC leaders who support the idea of a non-racial South Africa believe that this is the only way to achieve peace and stability in the country.

The split has caused a great deal of confusion and uncertainty in the ANC, and it is not clear what the future of the party will be.

The ANC is the largest political party in South Africa and is considered to be one of the most influential in the country.

The split has occurred over the issue of whether the ANC should support the idea of a black South Africa or a non-racial South Africa.

The ANC leaders who support the idea of a black South Africa believe that this is the only way to achieve justice and equality for all South Africans.

The ANC leaders who support the idea of a non-racial South Africa believe that this is the only way to achieve peace and stability in the country.

The split has caused a great deal of confusion and uncertainty in the ANC, and it is not clear what the future of the party will be.

The ANC is the largest political party in South Africa and is considered to be one of the most influential in the country.

The split has occurred over the issue of whether the ANC should support the idea of a black South Africa or a non-racial South Africa.

The ANC leaders who support the idea of a black South Africa believe that this is the only way to achieve justice and equality for all South Africans.

The ANC leaders who support the idea of a non-racial South Africa believe that this is the only way to achieve peace and stability in the country.

The split has caused a great deal of confusion and uncertainty in the ANC, and it is not clear what the future of the party will be.

The ANC is the largest political party in South Africa and is considered to be one of the most influential in the country.

The split has occurred over the issue of whether the ANC should support the idea of a black South Africa or a non-racial South Africa.

The ANC leaders who support the idea of a black South Africa believe that this is the only way to achieve justice and equality for all South Africans.

The ANC leaders who support the idea of a non-racial South Africa believe that this is the only way to achieve peace and stability in the country.

The split has caused a great deal of confusion and uncertainty in the ANC, and it is not clear what the future of the party will be.

The ANC is the largest political party in South Africa and is considered to be one of the most influential in the country.

The split has occurred over the issue of whether the ANC should support the idea of a black South Africa or a non-racial South Africa.

The ANC leaders who support the idea of a black South Africa believe that this is the only way to achieve justice and equality for all South Africans.

The ANC leaders who support the idea of a non-racial South Africa believe that this is the only way to achieve peace and stability in the country.

The split has caused a great deal of confusion and uncertainty in the ANC, and it is not clear what the future of the party will be.

The ANC is the largest political party in South Africa and is considered to be one of the most influential in the country.

The split has occurred over the issue of whether the ANC should support the idea of a black South Africa or a non-racial South Africa.

The ANC leaders who support the idea of a black South Africa believe that this is the only way to achieve justice and equality for all South Africans.

The ANC leaders who support the idea of a non-racial South Africa believe that this is the only way to achieve peace and stability in the country.

The split has caused a great deal of confusion and uncertainty in the ANC, and it is not clear what the future of the party will be.

The ANC is the largest political party in South Africa and is considered to be one of the most influential in the country.

The split has occurred over the issue of whether the ANC should support the idea of a black South Africa or a non-racial South Africa.

The ANC leaders who support the idea of a black South Africa believe that this is the only way to achieve justice and equality for all South Africans.

The ANC leaders who support the idea of a non-racial South Africa believe that this is the only way to achieve peace and stability in the country.

The split has caused a great deal of confusion and uncertainty in the ANC, and it is not clear what the future of the party will be.

The ANC is the largest political party in South Africa and is considered to be one of the most influential in the country.

The split has occurred over the issue of whether the ANC should support the idea of a black South Africa or a non-racial South Africa.

The ANC leaders who support the idea of a black South Africa believe that this is the only way to achieve justice and equality for all South Africans.

The ANC leaders who support the idea of a non-racial South Africa believe that this is the only way to achieve peace and stability in the country.

The split has caused a great deal of confusion and uncertainty in the ANC, and it is not clear what the future of the party will be.

The ANC is the largest political party in South Africa and is considered to be one of the most influential in the country.

The split has occurred over the issue of whether the ANC should support the idea of a black South Africa or a non-racial South Africa.

The ANC leaders who support the idea of a black South Africa believe that this is the only way to achieve justice and equality for all South Africans.

The ANC leaders who support the idea of a non-racial South Africa believe that this is the only way to achieve peace and stability in the country.

The split has caused a great deal of confusion and uncertainty in the ANC, and it is not clear what the future of the party will be.

The ANC is the largest political party in South Africa and is considered to be one of the most influential in the country.

The split has occurred over the issue of whether the ANC should support the idea of a black South Africa or a non-racial South Africa.

The ANC leaders who support the idea of a black South Africa believe that this is the only way to achieve justice and equality for all South Africans.

The ANC leaders who support the idea of a non-racial South Africa believe that this is the only way to achieve peace and stability in the country.

The split has caused a great deal of confusion and uncertainty in the ANC, and it is not clear what the future of the party will be.

The ANC is the largest political party in South Africa and is considered to be one of the most influential in the country.

The split has occurred over the issue of whether the ANC should support the idea of a black South Africa or a non-racial South Africa.

The ANC leaders who support the idea of a black South Africa believe that this is the only way to achieve justice and equality for all South Africans.

The ANC leaders who support the idea of a non-racial South Africa believe that this is the only way to achieve peace and stability in the country.

The split has caused a great deal of confusion and uncertainty in the ANC, and it is not clear what the future of the party will be.

The ANC is the largest political party in South Africa and is considered to be one of the most influential in the country.

The split has occurred over the issue of whether the ANC should support the idea of a black South Africa or a non-racial South Africa.

The ANC leaders who support the idea of a black South Africa believe that this is the only way to achieve justice and equality for all South Africans.

The ANC leaders who support the idea of a non-racial South Africa believe that this is the only way to achieve peace and stability in the country.

The split has caused a great deal of confusion and uncertainty in the ANC, and it is not clear what the future of the party will be.

The ANC is the largest political party in South Africa and is considered to be one of the most influential in the country.