On the German Battlefront

The decisive struggle in Germany has not yet taken place. The new government of the Social Democratic Party, which was formed in the aftermath of the Revolution, has not yet assumed its full strength. The working class, which is the most powerful force in Germany, has not yet been mobilized for the struggle against the capitalist class. The struggle is only beginning.

The present regime of Von Papen, appointed by the provisional government, is not the same as the Social Democratic Party. The Social Democratic Party has been suppressed, and its leaders are in prison. The working class is not yet organized for the struggle. The struggle against the capitalist class is only beginning.

The anti-fascist movement is growing. The working class is becoming more and more conscious of its power. The Social Democratic Party is organizing the working class for the struggle against the capitalist class. The struggle is only beginning.

Social Democrats Paved Way for Fascism

The Social Democratic Party, which is the political party of the working class, has paved the way for Fascism. The Social Democratic Party has not been able to fight against the capitalist class. For some years now, the coal miners of Illinois have been fighting a long battle against the coal companies. The companies are trying to break the miners' union. The miners are fighting hard to keep their union. They are fighting for their lives.

The Illinois miners are fighting against the coal companies. They are fighting for their lives. They are fighting for the future of their families. They are fighting for the future of the working class. They are fighting for the future of humanity.

The Election Show Has Started

While the capitalist parties prepare to let loose floods of bumptious through the meek little windows of their parliaments, the vast number of unemployed continues to swell at each election and with economic conditions as they are, the political parties are in danger of being swept away.

The Democratic party strives to load the national government with a barrage of economic remedies on the Hoover administration. The Republican party is trying to use the situation to their advantage by mending their ways and appearing to care for the workers.

The Socialist party, on the other hand, is trying to make the workers aware of the basic issues of the election and the need for a socialist government to solve them.

A Frame-Up Against Left Opposition

The Stalinist leadership of the Com- munist party has accused the Left Opposition of being responsible for the deaths of two workers murdered at 7th Ave., and they have accused the Party of not doing enough to protect the workers. The Left Opposition has been trying to organize workers to stand up for their rights and fight back against the capitalist system.

Japan Plans for New Attacks

This month, exactly one year since the violent assault on Manchuria by Japan, the new Japanese army continues to reach out for new conquests. In Manchuria, the Japanese have already occupied the city of Harbin.
The Struggle of the Youth in Spain

The Spanish Communist Party at the present time is having to confront many opportunities presenting themselves for the change of the regime, of building a new Spain. Conditions make it possible for its ideas to be entirely free of controversy. That is the case even with the words of Huesca and Saragossa, which is in fact, a new Spain.

EXTRACTS FROM PACIFISM

Dudley springs from the same malady as self-sacrifice, murder of democracy. The only difference is that it is a very obvious, clear-cut, overblown, gigantic effort to correct these two weaknesses, to fix the whole institution, that is, to suppress murder of democracy by a system which is in itself murder of democracy.

The good name of industry is one of the traditional heritages of the middle ages, Bourgeois democracy demanded it as its sacred ground. Bourgeois democracy is the name for the tongues of power, moral philosophy, and civilized accountancy—hence civilized accountancy is the bastardization of a condition of eternal peace. Such were the logistical roots of bourgeois pacifism.

Theoretically, pacifism stands on the same foundation as does the theory of the harmony of social life, that is, the second half of the eighteenth century. In those days it was a well understood fact that the development of capitalist technology was increasing international transformations, and was by no means limited to political life. At the very moment when we, as a generation, are talking of peace, when we are coming to an agreement on the essential changes that are necessary in the world, we are witnessing, side by side with the gigantic efforts of a Franklinist-imperialistic policy, a decisive flowering of bourgeois democracy with its accompanying disillusionment and pacifism. Capital was making use of the peace that was being made by the peace-loving bourgeoisie in order to prepare the prosecution of chimpla's imperialistic area of influence by exploiting the ideological prejudice of the petty bourgeoisie.

English and American pacifism, in spite of its apparent ideological forms, is a movement in social and Ideological terms. The same is true of the so-called 'peace movement'. The tactics of the same kind; it offers to the petty and interested bourgeoisie an opportunity to satisfy their fears of war catastrophe in which they may lose their last remnants of independence; their fears of a new class struggle, their fears of revolution—by means of important ideas of Immanuel Kant, of international law and world courts—only to deliver them out more completely into the hands of the bourgeoisie; to move, to imperialist capital, which now moulds the national, social, political purposes: industry, the church, art, bourgeois press and the so-called 'national' Petrograd, June 30, 1917.

CALL FOR THE FIRST I.Y.D.

(On the occasion of the eighteenth anniversary of the International Youth Day, YOUNG SPARTACUS reprints the call for the first International Youth Day issued by the International Socialist Youth in the period of 1915. Many years have since passed and the problems which then were of primary concern are still topical. The following was issued by the Communist International and the Young Communist International in 1919. Its contents are of the revolutionary movement, some of the very and controversial issues of the Communist movement, which is the term of the word.

To the SOCIAL YOUTH OF ALL COUNTRIES

France, Country in all countries a part of the Socialists are moving power, the movement of Socialists all the same must be founded on the basis of the utilization of existing social forces and the growth of new, even the most difficult conditions, striving to realize this aim, the social forces of our country can stand up to the battle against the war. The struggle of our France comrades against the war is still fresh in our memory—under the pressure of these conditions, there is no possibility to avoid the inevitable. The hour of action has come. A second World War will only increase the sufferings and the destinies of the working masses of all countries. The time is now ripe for the struggle, the hour of action has come.

Comrades! The struggle against the war is the struggle for peace and salvation of the world. Let us not allow the struggle to become a mere struggle for the sake of peace and salvation of the world. Let the struggle be for the highest ideal of humanity, for Socialism.

YOUNG SPARTACUS

EXTRACTS FROM THE WAR

Why are wars waged? It seems to most people that they know that most wars are waged for profit; that is, that wars are waged for profit. This is a very profound aspect of the world. The question is: Why are wars waged? It seems to most people that they know that most wars are waged for profit; that is, that wars are waged for profit. This is a very profound aspect of the world.

But when we speak of the present capitalistic system we cannot consider that it is for the sake of this reason that this war is waging. It is the particular class of the oppressors.

We, however, are aware that this war was carefully prepared for, that it came about in a way that was inevitable. It was as inevitable as is the ultimate war between America and England. It is not for the sake of this war to be continued. It is because of the class of the oppressors.

The war that capitalism had the interests of the English people, of the English capitalists, and of the English people. It was during the period of colonial subjection, an epoch which was not marked by any class struggle, as well as in the epoch of slavery, etc. These wars were righteous wars; these wars cannot be condemned.

Up to now the principal going concern engaged in this war were the war of the 'Extraction of England' and 'Extraction of the World'. England was the most powerful colonial country and the war of this latter epoch was not more than forty million, its colonies have a population of over four million soldiers. Not so long ago, by right of conquest, England seized additional colonies, additional land areas, and has profited by their exploitation. But, economically speaking, England has been outdistanced in the last fifty years by Germany. The English imperialists were trying to get back the ground that Germany had united with its Borszczow and Germany had beat the record.

The determination of ending the struggle for supremacy between these two countries. Many believe that while England had at times, by the right of the stronger, taken land away from the other countries, etc., it was not the same England that had come out on the top. The English people had come to enrich itself at the expense of others. This is the question at stake; it was a struggle for the domination of the world between the two struggling. And, by reason of the fact that each side possessed capital amounting to a hundred million, the struggle between them was turned into a world struggle.

It is difficult to attempt to end the struggle for supremacy between these two countries. Many believe that the problem of ending the struggle for supremacy between these two countries is a problem of ending the struggle for supremacy between these two countries.

The Origin of International Youth Day

By Albert Glotz

Catalyst brought about the birth of a modern proletariat. In its history, as in the history of all other class societies, the struggle between the exploiters and the exploited, the growth and development of the modern youth is the steady youth, growing more force with every decade. Within capitalism a new fact! It was a growth of millions of young workers drawn into industrial production and the introduction into their life of a new phenomenon: the consciously independent role of the youth reaches its height with the development of imperialism which provides a broader economic base for increasing the economic role of the youth, and an increasing manifold the role played by the youth in the class struggle.

The first manifestation of the young are dated back to 1833. It is true that even prior to that time small sporadic youth organizations of an economic character existed in central Europe, their period of life was short. From the year 1833 until 1867 youth organizations grew up in many countries. In the chronological order we see the organization of the Young Guards of Belgium, the Socialist Youth League of Sweden, the Italian Socialist Youth Federation, the Social Democratic Young League of Russia, the Russian Socialist Youth, and the Young Workers League of South Germany. About 1870, in the main, concentrated their work in the struggle against militarism, which these organizations should be added the Young Workers League of Austria and the Federation of Free Youth Leagues of North Germany, both directing their activity mainly in the economic struggle for the youth.

II.

The year 1881 ushered in a new stage in the history of the proletarian youth. Upon the initiative during that year in the South German Young Workers League an International Bureau was formed with the aim of establishing contact with the individual countries and preparing an international conference. On this committee the names of the following countries: Belgium, Austria, Sweden, Italy, Spain, Bohemia, and Switzerland are to be found. In 1882 the first conference of the youth organizations of these countries was held in Brussels. In 1883, the first international conference of the youth organizations of these countries was held in Brussels. In 1884, the first international conference of the youth organizations of these countries was held in Brussels. In 1885, the first international conference of the youth organizations of these countries was held in Brussels. In 1886, the first international conference of the youth organizations of these countries was held in Brussels. In 1887, the first international conference of the youth organizations of these countries was held in Brussels.

The committee established the first program of action on an international scale for the youth of the world. There, the principle of reciprocal recognition and cooperation was adopted. Of equal importance was the principle that the independent role of the youth in the economic struggle of the young workers and the youth education. Liebknecht played a dominant role in the conference and helped to give it a fighting character.

The defeat of the 1905 Russian Revolution brought about a certain stagnation in the development of the proletariat. This had no little effect upon the youth. The Socialist Parties everywhere put an end to the independent role of the youth organization attained at Stuttgart. This was a consequence of the second international conference in 1912, when at the hands of the Social Democratic Bureau, Robert Danneburg of Austria, was placed when he was elected secretary of Danneburg turned social patriot during the war and more than anyone else was responsible for the death of the activity of the international direction. By the end of the war, nothing, the Bureau ceased to exist.

III.

When the war was over two groups in the revolutionary movement assumed distinct forms. One was the signal for the great betrayal, industrial unionism. This movement, on the contrary, was guided by the young people and the head of the 2nd International gave the signal by voting for war credits. The second unionism and the third place of a world-wide opposition to war. The Second International Democracy came to the support of capitalist. The reformist groups, the Young Workers wing, dominated the International. Under the Left wing led by the Bolsheviks under Lenin on the one hand, and the international Internationale Liebknecht, Luxembourg and Trotsky on the other. Under the leadership of this small group the youth organizations remained true to their class traditions.

When the war broke out they waged a relentless struggle against it. Everywhere the revolutionaries issued leaflets, propagated the army, struggled bravely in the war. This resolution was prepared by the International Bureau and was the second and third international. In spite of its opposition to the war the resolutions were unanimous. The only dissenting vote was that of the Bolshevik wing, which introduced basic war resolution.

But on the whole the Bureaucratic conference represented the movement of the youth movement. The conference decided to issue an international pamphlet (Jugend Internationale). This pamphlet played a tremendous role during the war. Its contents were thoroughly revolutionist. Some of the most famous leaders of Lenin, Luxemburg, Turkevich and other leaders of the revolutionist movement are contained in its pages. The paper gave political direction and an organization of the movement by these revolutionary leaders of the International Youth Day.

The Bureaucratic Conference, which was held in Brussels, and the International Youth Day, decided on the convening of a day of demonstration against militarism on an international scale. There was born International Youth Day, which has been celebrated now for eighteen years by the Communist youth of the world. The conference decided on October 3, 1912, to be the first International Youth Day. The call was sent out to all countries and to all youth organizations calling upon them to demonstrate against the war and against militarism. In those years those anti-war demonstrations assumed tremendous proportions. In many countries they represented the only voice against the war. Drawing in thousands upon thousands of adult workers. Since 1915, every year witnessed a world-wide demonstration against war and militarism. Those demonstrations grew larger and larger, with young, hussars, aged, passed over all war against war, became a watchword of the revolutionist youth.

IV.

Towards the close of the war the secret perversion of the movement, the arrest of prominent leaders, the trial of individuals who contributed to the resolution of the international movement are contained in its pages. The paper gave political direction and an organization of the movement by these revolutionist leaders of the Youth Day.

You know—now why your sleeping watches?

Arise—out of your democratic trap! Come—you brother!

You are wasting your voice

Cracking over stupid songs!

Come—come to myself together—

To the Revolution's rights and wrongs.

Look! The dust of yester-year.

In the stifling mud of blood!

Who was that—they were fighting

For the world's salvation.

To-day you're even a pair of pants!

Who was that they were fighting for?

You know—then why your sleeping watches?

Arise—out of your democratic trap! Come—you brother!

Your eyes—gleam past the horizons.

A thousand hammers embrace you—

In the wind's defiance.

Up like the Wind—

Hymn of the Young, March!

The Eclipse Turned Into A Grand Show

The total eclipse which has come and gone and excited millions of people was staged as a grand show as it would play up some prominent Hollywood princes in a drama which was the sun that was eclipsed (shadowed) by the shining of the moon between the earth and the sun. The sun was totally eclipsed through a section of the moon and the New York Sun could see the first time in history in New York it was only ninety-five per cent. The eclipse also allowed the New York Times to see the moon's edge, but the eclipse's climax was when the last rays of the sun shone through a hole in the moon's dark clouds. The almost hundred paroxysm accuracy of the eclipses and similar solar phenomena is predicted by one of man's scientific achievements. The prediction is based on two factors, the first being the position of the moon in relation to the earth, and the second being the position of the sun in relation to the earth. The result is that the sun's light is blocked by the moon, creating an eclipse. The total eclipse occurs when the moon is directly between the earth and the sun, and the moon completely blocks the sun's light from reaching the earth. The partial eclipse occurs when the moon does not completely block the sun's light, resulting in a partial eclipse. The partial eclipse occurs when the moon is not directly between the earth and the sun, and only a part of the sun's light is blocked.

The Meaning of the Y.C.I. Letter to the American League

Several months ago the Executive Committee of the Young Communist International (Y.C.I.) issued an urgent call to the American League to take prompt action. The resolution published in the previous issue of Young Spartacist is a sequel to that appeal, for discussion in the units of the League and elsewhere.

The Y.C.I. in its resolution of July 1, 1937, sets forth the tasks for the next period of the League as follows:

1. The need for a new leadership.
2. The need for a new cadre.
3. The need for a new program.
4. The need for a new organization.
5. The need for a new strategy.
6. The need for a new struggle.
7. The need for a new unity.

The Y.C.I. letter to the American League was written to support these tasks and to provide a plan for discussion within the League. The letter emphasizes the importance of unity and the need for a new leadership, cadre, program, organization, strategy, struggle, and unity. It also cites the need for a new approach to the American working class and for a new strategy to advance the revolution.

DIFFERENCES AT CONVENTION

The report of the organization-educational committee gave five suggestions, two of which were general, calling for... work among the employed youth. There was no discussion upon the proposals, no elaboration or even general plan for industrial work, no slogans or immediate demands...: nothing but a general and all-inclusive appeal to the subject. Similarly the worthlessness of the so-called unemployed youth. Not a word was said about the majorly important questions of majority and minority on the Y.C.I. letter to the American League created quite a row. In the main, both resolutions agreed upon some of the successes of the Socialist Party, but in the other, the rule it plays as an inspiration of the world proletariat. Hence, the difference. Whereas the majority resolution called for "aggressive class-struggle" toward the Socialist Party, the minority resolution pledged to offer all strength of our movement to defeat the Socialists against capitalist...ation." The Majority resolutions adopted.

The convention brought nothing new to light. The Y.C.R. as a whole is a disaster to the revolutionary movement in the United States. The Socialist Party is a current disaster to the Left-wing of the League. The next question is the question of the Socialist Party, and also the majority resolution. The majority resolution was in line with the position held by their ad Campaigns.

The party position put forward by the majority organization demands the capitalist class in civil war and was rejected.

Olympics and Sports

The quintessential world Olympics meet has begun. Newsgatherers now press on to the foreground the question of whether the Olympic social system, sports are always undercapitalists, and workers' rights are undercapitalists. As it was in the ancient times when the players were the managers of the ruling classes. Sports were then conducted by the masters of the ruling classes. Such events as did not bear death for workers were accompanied by violent competition.

The development of society brought winds to a development and "enforcement" in sports. But only under capitalism did it find on opportunity for a wide, spread participation of the masses. The character of competition, which demanded and underclass, in order to meet the needs of wage slavery under the factory system, has become a means of combatting class consciousness, especially among the workers.

How well this is expressed can be illustrated in the individuals in charge of the Olympic Committee. Most of the officials we find first and foremost the leaders of the Olympic committee, the Secretary of the Olympic Committee, and the members of the committee. Their tasks are to coordinate the Olympic activities and to follow the progress of the Olympic Committee. The members of the committee are also concerned with the financial and administrative aspects of the Olympic games.

The outstanding feature of sports participation in the Olympics is the individual character. It is rooted in voluntary and unpaid labor. One can only draw the line between professionalism and amateurism, the two types of participation.

The class relation of sports to militarism and the class struggle is the most important feature of capitalist sports. Its individual and collective character is the basis of the class struggle.

The problem of sports is a class question. The class-conscious workers must realize that the promotion of a new generation as against the sports dominated by the ruling class is the only way for us to build the workers' movement into a mass movement capable of carrying hundreds of thousands of workers. To such a movement, there will be a strong voice at the capitalists. For them, you are really winning, the youth to the revolution and the workers.

An Appeal for the Spanish Youth Comrades

The first issue of Young Spartacist (a magazine which will be issued for our Spanish comrades, has recently appeared. It is a new magazine which contains a number of interesting articles on the Spanish working class and Communist movement. Several articles are devoted to the problem of the Spanish youth of Spain. Young Spartacists give the appearance of our brother organ Jeve that wishes for it a long and vigorous life.

The National Youth Committee has called for donations from all comrades and sympathizers to help raise this newspaper and the Spanish workers' magazine. This is a very important task, and I am sure that we shall receive a very favorable response.

The letter goes on to explain how the second issue of the magazine will be dedicated to the Spanish youth. The second issue will be devoted to the Spanish youth and the Spanish workers' movement. The magazine will contain articles of interest to Spanish workers and Spanish youth. The second issue will be published and distributed in Spanish, and it will be available at all our meetings.

The letter also states that the Spanish youth movement is in need of our support. The Spanish youth movement is facing many difficulties, and it is in need of the support of all Spanish workers and Spanish workers' sympathizers.

The letter concludes by asking for donations to support the Spanish youth movement. The letter states that all donations, no matter how small, will be greatly appreciated.
