Workers' School in New York City Opens Second Term.

Unsigned news report in The Daily Worker [Chicago] v. 1, whole no. 331 (Feb. 5, 1924), pg. 3.

NEW YORK CITY.— The Second Term of the Workers' School, 127 University Place, began Tuesday, Feb. 5 [1924].

The first term has proven that the desire and need for truly proletarian education are great. Especially necessary is systematic proletarian education that should help the workers meet the political and industrial emergencies that face them in the struggle with the ruling classes.

Education has so far been monopolized by the master class to maintain the working class in subjection. It is the duty of the Working Class to break the wall of darkness with which the capitalist class has surrounded them. WE MUST USE THE WEAPON OF EDUCATION TO HELP US ACHIEVE THE LIBERATION OF THE WORKING CLASS.

The task that the Workers' School has set before it is huge, but important. For its aim is to make the school a force in American life. Considering its limited resources, it must be said that the school has been a great success, both morally and educationally.

The second term begins with a continuation of many of the courses of the first term, such as Marxism, History, Evolution, Public Speaking, Literature, English (advanced, intermediate, and elementary). The following courses have been added so far:

Modern European History, J.S. Poyntz.

History of the American Trade Union Movement, Solon DeLeon.

History of the Three Internationals, Ludwig Lore.

Imperialism since 1860 in the United States, Charles Brower.

The Syndicalist Movement in Europe, Arnold Roller.
