The Time Has Come to Act Against the War Peril

The war-makers, represented by the armament business, the munitions industry, and the warmongers, are coming to the United States and asking for more, more, and more... They are the people who have been responsible for the crushing of the peace movement in this country. They are the people who have been responsible for the destruction of the League of Nations. They are the people who have been responsible for the Great War, and they are the people who are responsible for the present war peril.

How Are You Voting?

This week the national executive committee of the National War Labor League and the National War Labor League of America have announced that they will hold a meeting in Chicago, Illinois, on February 21, to consider the question of how to fight the war peril. The meeting will be open to all, and all are invited to attend.

The Harvest

The harvest is plentiful and the laborers are few. Therefore, the Lord has called us to the harvest. The Lord has given us the harvest, and we are to go forth and labor in the harvest fields. We are to go forth and labor in the harvest fields, and we are to bring in the harvest. The Lord has given us the harvest, and we are to go forth and labor in the harvest fields. We are to go forth and labor in the harvest fields, and we are to bring in the harvest.
Miss Stephen Tells How British Workers Built Their Press

In the article that follows, Jessica Stephen, an English author, describes how the British workers did build their press. She outlines the steps taken by the British workers to establish a printing press and the financial support they received from various sources. She also emphasizes the importance of unity and cooperation in achieving this goal.

By Jessie Stephen

The British workers began by forming a committee to oversee the project. They identified a suitable location for the new printing press and secured funding from local unions and organizations. They then purchased the necessary equipment and hired skilled workers to operate the press.

The printing press was a significant achievement for the British workers. It allowed them to produce their own newspapers and pamphlets, which helped spread their message and mobilize support for their cause. The British workers' success in building their press was a testament to their determination and solidarity.

The Appeal's circulation increased significantly, and it became an important voice for the workers' rights movement. The British workers' press became a symbol of their struggle for justice and equality.

The Appeal was published weekly, providing regular updates on the workers' movement and highlighting the accomplishments of the workers. The newspaper played a crucial role in raising awareness and gaining support for the workers' cause.

The Appeal's success encouraged other workers' movements around the world, inspiring them to build their own press and pursue their own goals. The British workers' press became a model for other workers' movements looking to establish their own media outlets.
The Straight Truth About A Crooked Job

By Oscar Ameringer

When the laborer is cheated I am reminded of the famous line of the Irish poet, "When the laborer is cheated, then also the laborer must be man.

So when a laborer is cheated, the employer must be man. And when he is cheated, the employer must be man. And when he is cheated, the employer must be man.

I am reminded of the famous line of the Irish poet, "When the laborer is cheated, then also the laborer must be man.

The laborer must be man. The employer must be man. The union must be man.

Socialist Farmer's Viewpoint

On The Agricultural Situation

By William Penrose

I have been careful to note the many conservation programmes and cooperation measures taken by the government in the past years. However, I must say that much remains to be done to assure that the masses of the people have adequate food and clothing. The government has made some efforts, but more must be done.

The government has established a Department of Agriculture, and has created a number of agencies and bureaus to study and solve the problems of agriculture. It has also established a program of research and extension work to help farmers improve their methods of farming.

There are a number of factors that must be considered in any plan for agricultural development. These include the need for improved soil conservation practices, better methods of crop rotation, and adequate irrigation systems. The government must also take steps to ensure that farmers have access to the markets for their products.

Capitalists and Socialism's Future

And How to Get It

By George B. Martin

We stand at a turning point in the history of capitalism, and the future of socialism is dependent upon what we do now. The capitalist system has failed to meet the needs of the people, and it is clear that a new system must be developed.

The capitalist system is based on private ownership of the means of production. This leads to a concentration of wealth and power in the hands of a few, and to a lack of economic security for the masses of the people. Socialism, on the other hand, believes in public ownership of the means of production, and seeks to create a society in which all members have an equal share in the wealth of the nation.

Socialism offers a way out of the economic crisis that confronts us today. It is a system that is rooted in the needs of the people, and it is able to meet the challenges of the future. We must support socialism, and work towards its realization.
