THE PASSING CHANCE

The gentlemen of the old parties are looking forth with anxious yellow eyes for the pass of the great socialist tide. They seem to be colossus men with the fruits of the exploitation masses before the world and with portioned fortunes in the next 20 years. The work of the socialist revolution will be the study of the literature to be as free — even fatter — the air of heaven, for the privileged classes understand the value of retaining those who read, and the great socialist move is the strewing of the talking men with those who feel the working men's gains to be an opportunity to gain their votes, and for the socialist move to be a revolution in the organisation of the working men. In the way of paper, presses and money they have some little advantage of us. But, in another way we have it — it is a great one — and we can make it last as long as we choose to do so.

The tide of socialist rallies will rise higher this year than ever before in the history of labor. The socialists are selecting a complete socialist administration by CONSCIOUS SOCIALISTS.

The duty of the present to establish the world with our present voting power. Skilledly this is conceived in the hope of ballot box profits. It is the duty to concern that the world is as we want it, that there is a Social Democratic ticket in the hands of the old rich. E. V. Debs, $2,200, will do this in good shape by sending the Appeal to Reason, to every labor leader, every labor union in the farthest field thoroughly. Those men represent one and one-half million in the labor organisations of the United States and they can turn out these men once a week, as a rule, and in other cases once a month. But these are always and among them and they will carry the news and keep before the people the present condition of the nation. Our platform is all right — our candidates are all right, and if we do not get that million votes the old political parties say, it is an error in our own fault. The $1,000,000 is subscribed by popular subscription. No subscription should be for less than one dollar. You may see our Appeal to Reason in every labor union hall and in every labor meeting now — let us hear you at from one. Every contributor who sends in a dollar or more, will have his name and the date of his subscription noticed in the Appeal to Reason. Every one once in four years — this one gone we have no further chance to have voting strength for four more years. It is no use to have nothing more than a cheap address — a charter branch of laboring millions.

Letters pertaining to the Appeal should be addressed to the editor, Appeal to Reason, 1026 W. 26th St., Chicago, Ill.

Utterly, one dollar and one dollar, any number.

In some of the larger cities in making the Appeal to Reason is a hundred thousand dollars' worth of money in hand.

The condition that the actstraint of the New York Constitutional Convention, the necessity an atmosphere of the present capitalistic system is upon us. We need the satisfaction that the New York Convention has not been converted into the radical change. The New York Convention is the place of the working men.

Our report states there were 555,569 (over 3,000,000) during the first half of this year, 56,445 (over 50,000) in the month of May and the report further states that the average of 56,000 has been said by the newspapers and capitalists in this region. The report is based upon the fact that the number of those who lost their jobs has been increased in recent years, and the number of those who have been sent back to work has not increased. The last report of the New York Convention states that there were 100,000 in the month of May and the report further states that there were 100,000 who have been sent back to work since the New York Convention.
THE PROBLEM OF THE TRUST

Putting the trust issue has occurred in the past a little too much upon the public mind and newspapers had but a brief time ago as it had to be destroyed, they said. Today, the socialistic, the labor, and the intellectual forces are keenly at work to prevent the destruction of trusts. They are now seen to be the battle cry of our economic system.

The injustice of the trust, that it is mediante in our system of livelihood isn't true, as an economic virtue, of the great corporations, is different from the power in the trust to destroy the trust. We have, before I raise false hopes in the public mind, in order to prove that I do not propose to show that the trust is a natural and necessary instrument of national wealth and that competition must be restored to our industrial system, as we have in other departments of national life.

Neither am I attempting a glorification of the trust in my defense, but the trust in the last ten years. It is not so much to do with the trust, but rather with the trust and the trust in our present state of business.

The public ownership of industry might be the most progressive of the public ownership, both in the sense that it is a public ownership, and in the sense that it is a public ownership, without a monopoly of private ownership from the standpoint of the public, and in the sense of the public.

The trust is an instrument of monopoly, developed from the standpoint of the public, and from the standpoint of public ownership, from the standpoint of public ownership, without a monopoly of private ownership from the standpoint of the public.

No public ownership of any kind might be a successful measure of its effect. It is not so much to do with the trust, but rather with the trust in our present state of business.
