Every Labor Union Should Support the Candidate that has a Union Card—E. V. Debs on the S. D. P. Ticket

CASH PAID ON OR IN CAMPAIGN FUND.

THIS IS NUMBER 69.
FIFTY CENTS A YEAR.

GIRARD, KANSAS, U. S. A., SEPTEMBER 5, 1900.

THE PHYSICIAN UNDER SOCIALISM.

Dr. A. H. Adair (Philadelphia):—The question will arise, whether the people in our country will be allowed to vote for a candidate who is not an adherent of the Socialist cause.

The people in all the nations are now becoming more and more concerned with the question of political reform. In America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Canada, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In England, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In France, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Germany, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Russia, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Italy, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Spain, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Portugal, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Greece, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Egypt, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Japan, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In China, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In India, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Australia, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In New Zealand, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South Africa, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In Central America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.

In South America, the question of the people's right to vote for candidates who are not adherents of the Socialist cause is an important one.
American Notes

In Toledo, Ohio, the side-winder will have shut down, spewing 200 feet of oil every day for seven years around.

In four months of the present year 94 national banks were organized at capital surplus of $10,500,000.

Some of the guests of the Willard Astor were spending $1,000 a day for their entertainment.

C. H. W. Fairbanks, a pharmacist of Peru, Geauga county, Ohio, has invented a new fire extinguisher which will put out 250 feet of flames with a single blast.

On September 16th the last 2000 of the 1900 war indemnity bonds left the United States Capitol.

In the service of Kansas City, this is the last day of the I.M. and the last book in the issue of $1,000,000. The last book will be $1,000,000, and the last train will be the night of the first day of November.

In 1852 the United States ran their own stages between Chicago and New York, a distance of 1,000 miles. The company was formed in 1805 by 2,000 investors, who paid $1,000 each.

A total of $1,500,000 of mortgage debt on the Mississippi and Ohio river lands in the United States has been reorganized.

N. J. has been reduced at 4 per cent, and New York at $95. The interest rate is about $900,000 in interest payments.

In 1900, the Louisiana Pacific Railroad was completed, with a capital of $100,000,000, and the bonds of $30,000,000 have been redeemed.

The drop in the gold price from 1850 to 1852 was due to the fact that the gold supply was not limited in amount, and that the demand for gold was not excessive.

The provision of 1900 was made by the government to make it unlawful to introduce into any manufacturing establishment or any other place of business, by any person, in any manner, to use any engine or apparatus for the manufacture of tobacco or other goods, which is not in all respects of the same kind and quality as the goods that are to be manufactured there, or which is not in all respects to be manufactured there.

There has been a provision for the manufacture of tobacco or other goods in any manufacturing establishment or any other place of business, by any person, in any manner, to use any engine or apparatus for the manufacture of tobacco or other goods, which is not in all respects of the same kind and quality as the goods that are to be manufactured there, or which is not in all respects to be manufactured there.

Social Democrats are active in New England. The newspapers in that section are in favor of the Democratic party's platform.

The name is true of California, which has a population of 1,000,000, and of Ohio, which has a population of 1,000,000. The name is true of California, which has a population of 1,000,000, and of Ohio, which has a population of 1,000,000.

The city of New York has a population of 1,000,000, and the city of Chicago has a population of 1,000,000. The city of New York has a population of 1,000,000, and the city of Chicago has a population of 1,000,000.

Civilization.

John followed an aged citizen of Manitoba, a man who had been referred to as the "father" of the town. The old man was described as 95 years old, and was described as "the father" of the town.

The undertaking was formed in 1850 and was one of the first undertakings to be organized in the world. The undertaking was formed in 1850 and was one of the first undertakings to be organized in the world.

Scotty was on his way down the street, dressed in the height of fashion, and smoking a cigar. He was in every feature of his costume evidently of the working class, and was seen by the public as the type of the working class. Scotty and his family were the subject of a special report by the London Times, and the report was published.

The London Times, in its report, says that Scotty and his family were the subject of a special report by the London Times, and the report was published.

The London Times, in its report, says that Scotty and his family were the subject of a special report by the London Times, and the report was published.

The London Times, in its report, says that Scotty and his family were the subject of a special report by the London Times, and the report was published.

The London Times, in its report, says that Scotty and his family were the subject of a special report by the London Times, and the report was published.

The London Times, in its report, says that Scotty and his family were the subject of a special report by the London Times, and the report was published.

The London Times, in its report, says that Scotty and his family were the subject of a special report by the London Times, and the report was published.

The London Times, in its report, says that Scotty and his family were the subject of a special report by the London Times, and the report was published.

The London Times, in its report, says that Scotty and his family were the subject of a special report by the London Times, and the report was published.
APPEAL TO REASON, GIRDAR, KAN. U.S.A.

APPEAL ARMY

City of 50,000 from the land of despair.

Now, my friends, there are the representatives of the great army of the poor. They are not in this room, they are not in the land of despair, but they are just as much a part of the American people as any one of you. They have no voice in the councils of the nation, they have no influence in the direction of the government, but they are just as much a part of the American people as any one of you. They are just as much a part of the American people as any one of you.

Now, my friends, let us be reasonable. Let us be just. Let us be true to our country. Let us be true to our fellow citizens. Let us be true to our government. Let us be true to our country. Let us be true to our fellow citizens. Let us be true to our government.

The Appeal to Reason is a voice for the poor, a voice for the voiceless, a voice for the oppressed. It is a voice for the American people. It is a voice for the American people.

The Appeal to Reason is a voice for the poor, a voice for the voiceless, a voice for the oppressed. It is a voice for the American people. It is a voice for the American people.

The Appeal to Reason is a voice for the poor, a voice for the voiceless, a voice for the oppressed. It is a voice for the American people. It is a voice for the American people.

The Appeal to Reason is a voice for the poor, a voice for the voiceless, a voice for the oppressed. It is a voice for the American people. It is a voice for the American people.

The Appeal to Reason is a voice for the poor, a voice for the voiceless, a voice for the oppressed. It is a voice for the American people. It is a voice for the American people.