PEACE AND PROSPERITY. In the coal regions of Pennsylvania, the colliers have gained material and moral concessions. In some districts, they have been able to obtain improvements in their housing conditions, and in others, they have been able to obtain better wages. In addition, they have been able to organize into unions and to negotiate with the mine owners. These concessions have been won through a combination of peaceful methods and public pressure. The colliers have shown that they are determined to improve their working conditions and to achieve a better standard of living.

ONLY ONE WRONG FOOT. The state of Texas has come to be known as a great agricultural state, but the economy of Texas is largely based on its oil industry. The state has a large population of farmers, but the economy is dominated by the oil industry, which provides most of the state's income. The state's agriculture, however, is not as important as its oil industry, and the state's economy is highly dependent on the price of oil. This dependence on oil has made the state vulnerable to fluctuations in the price of oil, and the state has been hit hard by the recent decline in oil prices. The state's economy is currently in a state of crisis, and the state is facing a difficult future.

DON'T LOSE YOUR HEAD. When you are in danger, try to remain calm and think clearly. Keep your head and your wits about you. Do not panic or act impulsively. This will only make the situation worse. Instead, try to do the following:

1. Assess the situation: Take a moment to assess the situation. Are you in immediate danger? Are there other people around you who may be in danger?

2. Plan a course of action: Think about what you can do to ensure your safety. Do you need to move to a safer location? Do you need to call for help?

3. Take action: Once you have assessed the situation and planned your course of action, take action. Do not delay. This will only give the situation more time to develop.

4. Stay calm and focused: When you are in danger, it is easy to become overwhelmed and lose your head. Try to stay calm and focused. This will help you to think clearly and make good decisions.

5. Be prepared: Always be prepared for the worst. This means having a plan in place and being ready to take action if necessary.

6. Seek help: If you are in immediate danger, do not hesitate to seek help. Call 911 or ask for help from others.

7. Stay safe: Do not take unnecessary risks. This is your priority.

8. Stay calm: When you are in danger, it is important to stay calm. This will help you to think clearly and make good decisions.

9. Stay focused: Try to stay focused on what you need to do to ensure your safety.

10. Stay safe: Do not take unnecessary risks. This is your priority.

If you are in danger, remember: stay calm and focused, plan a course of action, take action, seek help, stay safe, and stay focused. This will help you to remain safe and protect yourself.
THE ORB AS CASH.

N. Y. P.

No letter to private individuals has appeared in this Department to-day for some time.

"In the last few days the orphans have been coming to me again and again, as if for some such purpose as that."

The letter was not written but was read to the addresser by one of the orphan-women. The orphans were not fewer than 2,000 in number.

"The orphans are coming for money," the orphans are to be kept in, and not to be sold, and not to be removed from the city.

ECHOS OF THE STRUGGLE

Cancer is not a disease. It is a struggle. The struggle is not over until the cause of cancer is eliminated. This struggle is not for the individual, but for the entire human race.

Concerning Cancer

For too many years, cancer has been treated as a disease. But cancer is not a disease. It is a struggle, a war against a common enemy. The struggle is not over until the cause of cancer is eliminated.
