The average circulation of the Appeal to Reason is 266,000 a week. At the present rate of increase it will double in a few months.

DO YOU want to do a day's work for only 3 cents? Then vote for Socialism.

Low Winter Fares.

The American Circus.

If you don't know what you are

The Appeal to Reason is a weekly magazine that aims to provide critical analysis of current events and issues. The text on the page appears to discuss various topics, including activism and political movements, with a focus on social and economic justice. The text is written in a Victorian-era style, indicating that it might be from the late 19th or early 20th century. The page contains articles, advertisements, and editorial content typical of that period. The overall tone is serious and focused on the issues of the time, reflecting the editorial goals of the period's readership.
Look Out for Open Switches

Social Party. The only true law

But why should the union men frown upon the open switch? The theory, as stated when the Social Party offers their platform, is that the purpose is to facilitate the progress of labor by insuring an open and free competition of parties for the various offices and positions of influence in the government. The open switch is supposed to prevent any party from monopolizing the reins of power, and to give the people an opportunity to exercise their political rights in a free and orderly manner. The Social Party, therefore, advocate the open switch as the only true law for the mutual benefit of the people.

The Wandering Jew

By Marcus W. Robinson, Author of "Try to Learn"

Do not be deceived by the title of this story, for it is a profound and philosophical essay on the nature of man and the universe. The author has made a deep study of the subject and has presented his conclusions in a clear and concise manner. The story unfolds in a series of episodes, each one of which illustrates a particular doctrine. The reader is led to reflect upon the nature of man and the universe, and to consider the implications of the author's ideas. The story is a rich source of material for those who are interested in the study of philosophy.

Will You Write a Postal?

To Get Well

Read me this—
Write a postal card, taking the best mode of expression. I want to hear from you.

Beating up to the Floor

Senator Johnson, of Washington, spoke on October 11, speaking of the coal strike, saying:

"If the miners are beaten, it is in the interest of the country to have them beaten. A freer and better country is the aim of both parties, the objective of the political parties, and the destiny of the American people. If the miners are beaten, it is in the interest of the country to have them beaten. A freer and better country is the aim of both parties, the objective of the political parties, and the destiny of the American people."

No doubt. The miners are beaten. The issue is settled. The strike is over. The coal is now flowing into the mines, and the miners are producing coal. The result is a victory for the country, and a defeat for the miners. The miners are beaten, and the country is free.

The strike is over. The miners are beaten. The issue is settled. The coal is now flowing into the mines, and the miners are producing coal. The result is a victory for the country, and a defeat for the miners. The miners are beaten, and the country is free.
The Friend of the Poor.

For the benefit of the poor.

Have you noticed lately how prior privileges of wealth are in the orders of the day? The more people you have, the more of them you are.

The more money you have, the more wealthy you are. The more power you have, the more influence you have. Why? Because you have money to buy all these things.

Now, my friends, what would happen if we gave these things to the poor? If we gave them money so that they could buy the necessities of life, would they live better? Would they work as hard? Would they be as happy?

If we gave them power, would they use it wisely? Would they be respected? If we gave them influence, would they use it justly?

The poor need these things more than they need anything else.

The poor have no friends. They have no influence. They have no power. They are very happy in their poverty, but they are not content. They want more.

What can we do for them? We can give them more money. We can give them more power. We can give them more influence.

But let us remember that these things are not enough. We must give them something else. We must give them education. We must give them opportunity. We must give them the chance to prove themselves.

Let us work for the poor. Let us fight for their rights. Let us give them a voice in the government. Let us give them the chance to work for a better future.

The Friend of the Poor.

* * *

A letter to the Editor

Dear Sir: I am writing to you

because I am very concerned about the welfare of the poor.

I believe that we should do everything in our power to help them. I know that it is hard to do this, but it is important. We should contribute as much as we

can to charities that help

the poor. We should also

vote for candidates who

promise to help the poor.

Thank you for listening.

Yours sincerely,

[Signature]

* * *

A letter to the Editor

Dear Sir: I am writing to you

because I am very concerned

about the welfare of the poor.

I believe that we should do

everything in our power to help them. I know that it is hard to do this, but it is important. We should contribute as much as we

can to charities that help

the poor. We should also

vote for candidates who

promise to help the poor.

Thank you for listening.

Yours sincerely,

[Signature]