T WAS JUST A PIECE OF PAPER CUT FROM THE APPEAL, WHICH BORE A NAME. IT WAS not in the possession of others which I have handled in the past two months, and yet there was something about it that called into action that subtle power of instinct which warned me that I was confronting something unusual. And I was right. The name was not uncommon, but the state was Georgia, where the Appeal is just beginning to grow, and the person is the sole subscriber in the town of Trenton. Not a word of comment accompanied the pledge. It was eloquent in its silent expression. Something had stirred this coward's mind and aroused his nature to action, and he has pledged himself to send 260 subscribers to this paper during the next twelve months. I turned from the paper before me and went through our subscription books, and found over FIVE THOUSAND NAMES OF PERSONS WHO ARE THE SOLE SUBSCRIBERS AT THEIR RESPECTIVE POST OFFICES. I stopped and pondered long, and this is what I thought: HOW CAN I ARGUE THIS HOST OF MEN AND WOMEN TO ACTION? Comrades, we are living in a time of distress as dire as a famine in India. Men, women and innocent children are freezing at our very door; thousands of poor humanity are enduring a living hell in every city, town and hamlet. Distress and suffering are beyond all human description, and this while granaries are bursting with plenty, and the cattle die of want. The barons of capitalism eat the fat of the land, banquet their dogs, cats and monkeys, and protect them from the cold, while humanity shivers and starves. We give our law makers $5,000,000 a year, while the light in our humble cottage goes out. We even pay one of our labor leaders a luxurious salary, while we accept a pittance. And yet we are the cause of it all. We are paying the price of our ignorance, and ignorant slaves we will ever be until we LEARN HOW TO BE FREE. The truth is clear, the path is plain, the way to overthrow the capitalist system, and take control of the capital their united labor has created, is IGNORANCE, not CONQUEROR but TRUTH. We must take the truth and startle by its intensity and boldness. Let my mind's eye see: when you read these lines you must feel the intensity with which you read these lines. I know that you are living a MULTITUDE, but every man is an individual of the means of their salvation. I AM GRASPING FOR THE UNCONVERTED. This is why I am driving YOU out for subscribers. THIS IS WHY I CANNOT LET YOU REST. Beest with enemies on all sides, defamed by the same kind of high priests who cried to the multitude to crucify Jesus, and labor betrayed by many false leaders, of the capitalist, the Socialist party the suffering people. We boldly come not to mend, but to END this strife in order to end strife, we in order to destroy all class destination. The working class is thought. IT IS COWARDLY BRAVE; IT IS WEAK WHEN IT IS IGNORANT WHEN IT never be what it should be until we thought of Socialism. How the idea of every man, and we men read the lines would be felt by write in language that burns, I also ways and by-natures of the nation and, never faltering, persuade men and women to read the words that I write. Let me hear it plain and loudly said:

While we're on the subject, we'll say:

William Howard.

In the time of the brave, the captains published a fiery tale to the thoughts of the people. They told of a new world, far beyond the reach of the old, and there were those who believed it. They spoke of the wonders of a future nation, a place where freedom and prosperity would reign. But many others were skeptical, and they said:

One of the least predictable apologists who spoke of the new land and to those who might one day inhabit it was a man named William Howard. He was the author of the "Standard-Bearer's Record," a compilation of his writings on the coming conflict. In the following words:

"What I have written is not intended as a call to arms, but as a call to the people. It is not my intention to make war, but to help bring about a better world."

This statement shocked many, and it was met with much controversy. Some thought that Howard was a traitor, that he was working for the enemy. But others believed that he was speaking the truth.

The year 1856 was a turning point in the history of America. It was the year that the North and South began their long struggle for freedom. The war that followed would be long and bloody, and it would change the course of history forever.

The Trail of the Juggernaut

Professor J. C. C. Clark of the Northwestern University has been visiting the Juggernaut in its travels. He has had an opportunity to observe the progress of the machine, and his findings have been very interesting. He has found that the Juggernaut is capable of performing incredible feats of strength. The machine is able to lift weights of several tons with ease, and it can move objects with great speed and precision. The professor has also noted that the Juggernaut is able to operate under a variety of conditions, including rough terrain and adverse weather. Overall, he is impressed by the machine's capabilities and believes that it has great potential for future use in construction and other fields.

The jury is still out on the final role of the Juggernaut in society. Some see it as a tool for progress and efficiency, while others fear its potential for abuse. The professor's findings have added to the ongoing debate, but it is clear that the Juggernaut is a machine of great power and potential.
